PARIS CHAMBER SPURNS HITLER OFFER OF PEACE

Shouts Down Plan; 'Insults' Envoy.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 30.—The first serious attempt to reach a Franco-German understanding since Adolf Hitler assumed power blew up in the chamber of deputies tonight when the deputies staged an explosive demonstration in favor of the traditional policy of encircling Germany with a steel ring of alliances.

Gen. Joachim von Ribbentrop, Chancellor Hitler's personal envoy, who arrived at the French capital this morning to pave the way for official negotiations, witnessed the tumultuous scene from the diplomatic gallery and listened to an official declaration from Pierre Laval, minister of foreign affairs, warning Germany that it must enter the Franco-soviet Russian system of collective pacts.

Howl Down Leader of Vets.

He saw Jean Goy, leader of a group of war veterans who are urging direct negotiations with Hitler, howled down by deputies of both right and left parties when he spoke in behalf of a rapprochement. He heard himself and Hitler's lieutenant, Rudolph Hess, contemptuously referred to by the fire-eating nationalist, Henri Franklin-Bouillon, as "gaillards"—an untranslatable word which is not an actual insult, but is about as polite as "those birds."

Von Ribbentrop, together with a representative of German war veterans who arrived secretly at the capital a few days ago, spent the day conferring with French war veterans. They discussed a possible basis for a Franco-German agreement.

On the way to the Hotel Ritz, where he was supposed to meet the French veterans this morning, the German envoy was badly shaken up in a mysterious accident about which he refused to say anything and which is rumored in some quarters to have been an attempted assassination.

Seen as End of Peace Effort.

With great secrecy arrangements were made for Von Ribbentrop to have a private talk with Laval tomorrow before he takes an afternoon train for Berlin. It is now considered doubtful whether either he or Laval will care to go through with the interview. In any case, the projected official visit of Hess, which was to follow in two weeks, is virtually certain to be canceled.

The real story back of all this is as follows:

For some time a determined effort has been made by the Nazis to influence French opinion in favor of direct negotiations. The campaign was launched by inviting two representative French veterans, Goy and Robert Monnier, to Berlin and arranging an interview with Hitler, which was then released to the French papers.

A large part of the French public hailed the new development with enthusiasm, but conservatives attacked it bitterly as a German maneuver to isolate France from its allies.

Laval Favorable to Plan.

Following the conversations initiated between the French and German war veterans it was arranged to send Von Ribbentrop to Paris to sound out the ground for official negotiations.

Laval is reported to have favored taking the German offer under consideration, but it is reported that conservative elements in the cabinet forced him to reverse his policies.

Laval's speech, while it did not shut the door completely on an eventual agreement with Hitler, was a dash of cold water for Von Ribbentrop.

"Translate Words Into Action."

"Chancellor Hitler has announced his desire for peace," the foreign minister declared. "We ask him to translate into action his words.

"Germany has been invited and will again be invited to participate on the same conditions as other countries in an eastern pact of mutual assistance, under which it is assured of obtaining the same guarantees as those which are given other associated countries.

"We have no intention of yielding to the reality of the situation created for us by the rearmament of Germany, nor to shirk the obligations that this imposes. But we want to believe that Germany, at a time when it is affirming a desire for peace, understands that in refusing to associate itself with a policy of collaboration to which it was invited by all, is only increasing its moral responsibility before other nations."

BARE FAMILY'S DASH TO MEET MYSTERY DEATH

Carlisle, Pa., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Another mystery was added today to Pennsylvania's tragedy a few hours after Elmo J. Noakes, a fruit packer of Roseville, Cal., had been identified as the leader of a mad flight across the continent with his three daughters and his 18 year old niece to keep a fivefold rendezvous with death.

Fingerprints from the marine corps, in which Noakes had served twelve years ago, clinched the identification and convinced Pennsylvania authorities that the quintet had traveled 3,000 miles in seven days in a 5 year old second hand car to fulfill their tragic destiny.

Disappearance Adds to Mystery.

But the discovery of a marked map among their possessions disclosed the disappearance of Larry Carney, who lived in the Philadelphia rooming house where the Noakes took refuge and who later attempted to convince police that the dead man was a "Horace Hughes" he had known in San Francisco six years ago.

The map, an oil company's guide to the Philadelphia area, was found in the car which Noakes abandoned at McVeytown, half way between Carlisle, where, it is believed, he strangled his daughters, and Altoona, 135 miles distant, near where he shot his niece and himself to death.

On it was written "Mr. Williamson, 1610 North 18th street, Philadelphia." A cross indicated the location of a building at 1630 North 18th street.

Tells Story of Identity.

Detectives learned that Williamson, a gasoline station employé, had given the map to Noakes to direct him to a place to spend the night. Further investigation revealed that Carney lived in the same rooming house.

Shortly after the bodies of Noakes and Winifred Pierce, the niece, had been found in the railroad station Carney viewed the bullet pierced forms and told the police:

"I know that fellow. His name is Horace Hughes. I knew him in San Francisco six years ago and I bumped into him on a street corner here Nov. 19."

When detectives arrived at the rooming house this afternoon to question Carney, the landlady told them that Carney, his wife, and his sister had suddenly packed their belongings and left for an unannounced destination several days ago.

Grandmother Identifies Girls.

Relatives from Roseville were preparing today to fly east to claim the bodies of Noakes, Miss Pierce, and the three little girls, Norma, 12; Dewilla, 10, and Cordelia, 8.

Photographs of the three girls were shown to their grandmother, Mrs. E. J. Taylor, in Salt Lake, Utah, and she identified them positively. Noakes was the father of two, Cordelia and Dewilla, she said, but Norma was a stepdaughter, born to Noakes' wife in a previous marriage. Mrs. Noakes is dead.

Deaths Called Suffocation.

Investigators hold the conviction that the man killed his daughters by suffocation, tenderly laid their bodies under a blanket on the bleak mountainside, and later shot his niece in the head and then killed himself.

The cause of the children's deaths, which has been one of the most puzzling features of the strange case, today was officially announced by Coroner E. A. Haegele as being due to "suffocation by external means." He declined to amplify on his statement, which was issued after a conference with a Harrisburg pathologist.

Noakes' infatuation for his young niece and a vague notion that he could surmount the barrier of kinship were accepted by the police here as the motive for the mad hegira across the continent, but the authorities still were anxious to know:

Why Noakes whisked his niece and children away from home so suddenly that he failed to collect two weeks' pay, although he was so hard pressed for money that he eventually had to abandon his car because he couldn't buy gasoline;

Ponder Girls' Deaths.

Whether destruction of the three girls in some lonely spot had been planned from the start, or whether it was on an impulse inspired by lack of funds;

Whether Noakes and his niece

Chicago's Big Stock Show Opens Today

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Farmers with the best of the nation's flocks, herds, stables, and fields are here with their animals and crop specimens in place ready for the official opening of the thirty-fifth International Live Stock exposition in the new $1,250,000 amphitheater at 42d and Halsted streets this morning. For eight days the live stock and hay and grain shows will be open to the public from 8 o'clock each morning until the close of the evening horse show about 11 o'clock at night.

Twelve thousand five hundred cattle, horses, sheep, and hogs, besides more than 5,000 entries in the sixteenth International Hay and Grain show are here to compete for the highest awards offered each year in the agricultural field.

Rush Monster Building.

The animals and crop specimens will be shown this year in an entirely new setting. Out of the ashes of the old Dexter pavilion which was destroyed by fire May 19, the new amphitheater has been built.

Within five months this gigantic structure, the largest exposition building in the world, has been built so that the International could be held according to schedule. The seating capacity is double that of the old building, furnishing accommodations for 12,000. With an unusually large number of entries in various branches o. the show, B. H. Heide, general manager, said last night that all of the exhibit space covering 252,000 square feet will be occupied.

The general admission for an all day visit to the show will be 50 cents. The visitor will have access to all exhibits, with an extra charge being made for reserved seats at the night horse show.

Dedication at 8 P. M.

Dedication ceremonies in connection with the official opening of the new amphitheater have been set for 8 o'clock this evening and will mark the opening of the first night horse show. Mayor Edward J. Kelley will join in the celebration with govenment officials of the United States and Canada. The program will be under the supervision of the American Legion, with Chicago posts participating.

Other international aspect of the show are to be found in the exhibits from Canada. The prince of Wales' Canadian herd of shorthorns will compete for prizes including the grand champion beef animal award of the show. His Canadian ranch also is represented by a Clydesdale draft horse.

Manager Heide predicted that during the week of the show more than 500,000 persons will attend, 100,000 of them coming from out of town.

In addition to the live stock and grain exhibitors, there are 1,300 farm boys and girls, members of 4-H clubs, here from forty-four states. They will participate in the thirteenth National Boys and Girls' Club congress.

Twenty-three agricultural college teams will compete in the intercollegiate live stock judging today.

But McCrory Still Deplores Raffle Tickets

E. McCrory of Plymouth, Ind., drove through Calumet City on Oct. 28. Motorcycle policemen halted his automobile, Mr. McCrory said, and told him to drive to the police station.

There, the police confided, he was to be charged with speeding and disregarding a number of stop signs. However, Mr. McCrory was given the choice, he said, of posting a $25 cash bond or "helping the boys out a bit toward getting new squad cars by taking chances on an electric carpet sweeper."

Buys $5 Worth of Tickets.

Mr. McCrory purchased $5 worth of chances on the vacuum cleaner and drove back to Plymouth, Ind. There he took his pen in hand and wrote a letter to THE TRIBUNE expressing general dissatisfaction with the conduct of police affairs in Calumet City.

Sale of tickets on the $50 vacuum cleaner progressed briskly to the satisfaction of the foot weary Calumet City force. The drawing was held on Thanksgiving day in or about Memorial Park. Yesterday, with results compiled and checked, the police were ready to make an announcement.

"It is a funny thing," the police spokesman said, "but Mr. McCrory has won the vacuum cleaner. It is a very fine instrument and he should be very happy."

He Still Doesn't Like It.

Mr. McCrory was notified of his good fortune yesterday as he went about his duties as a clerk in Plymouth.

"I don't care if I won the police station," he said. "I still don't like the way they ran the raffle. But I'll come after the prize, indeed I will. Maybe the raffle was on the square."

Mr. McCrory said he believed that he would be ready to make the rip to claim his electric carpet sweeper some time next week.

"I'll back in from the state line," he added as an afterthought, "so they won't take the cleaner away from me to satisfy a fine."

World's Largest Air Liner Ready; 53 Passengers

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Capable of flying the oceans with a large payload of passengers and mail, the world's largest transport airplane, built by the Glenn L. Martin company for Pan-American Airways, made its public bow here today. The monoplane has a maximum passenger capacity of fifty-three. It did not take the air today. That will come a week hence after the four 800 horse power two row wasp engines have been thoroughly worked in.

Marriage Licenses Show Increase Over Last Year

Chief Clerk Sydney Summerfield of the marriage license bureau reported yesterday that 3,437 marriage licenses were issued during November, an increase of 224 over November last year.

Machine Gun Gang Robs 65 in Ireland's

Three young robbers armed with a submachine gun, a shotgun, and a revolver walked into the Ireland Oyster House, 632 North Clark street, shortly before midnight last night, held up the manager and about sixty-five guests and employés in the grill room and main dining room, looted the pockets of all customers, and escaped with between $900 and $1,000 from the cash register and the safe.

The three entered as the manager, Louis Gazzolo, and the head waiter, George Littler, 4235 Sheridan road, sat at a table with Hayward Amstedern, a broker, who lives at 10 West Huron street.

Hold Up All Guests.

One of the bandits, displaying the machine gun, forced the three at the table and about thirty-five others in the main dining room to put up their hands, while a second robber entered the grill room and threatened the twenty persons there with the shotgun.

The third bandit then proceeded to empty the pockets of all persons in the two rooms, after which he forced Gazzolo to open the safe. From the safe he took between $900 and $1,000, the manager said, whereupon one of the other bandits scooped up the small amount of change and bills in the cash register.

Flee with Fourth Bandit.

The three then hurried from the restaurant and fled in an automobile, which was driven away by a fourth member of the gang.

The holdup required less than ten minutes, the victims told police, and was carried out with such dispatch that two patrons who entered the café did not realize a robbery was under way until they were inside the main dining room.

Armsteden, the broker, lost between $75 and $100, he told police. The loss of other guests was set at about $160, although police were unable to evaluate some small pieces of jewelry which were taken by the gang.

STEAM ENGINE SETS A BRITISH RAILWAY RECORD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 30.—A new British speed record was established today on an experimental run on the London and Northeastern railway between King's Cross station, London, and Leeds. The distance of 186 miles was covered in 151 minutes.

The mark was set by the ten year old Flying Scotchman engine drawing four coaches. The fastest speed was 94½ miles an hour. The average speed was 73.9 miles an hour. On the return trip this evening the Flying Scot, pulling six coaches, made the trip in 157 minutes, an average of 71 miles an hour.

The purpose of the experiment was to contrast a steam train with the German Hamburg flyer, drawn by a Diesel engine, which does the run between Berlin and Hamburg, 178 miles, in 138 minutes, an average of 77.38 miles an hour.

SAYS MURDER OF HEADMASTER OF SCHOOL SOLVED

Boston, Mass., Nov. 30.—(AP)—The Boston Traveler said today that the mystery of the slaying of Dr. Elliott Speer, headmaster of Mount Hermon School for Boys at Northfield, Sept. 14, had been solved and that an arrest would be made after the inquest to be held at Greenfield next Monday.

The Traveler said that Berkshire county officials would appear at the inquest, and, after the suspect's name is revealed, ask that he be formally arrested.

SHIP CRASHES ON MUSKEGON PIER IN FIERCE GALE

Four States Battle Snowstorms.

The 315 foot ore freighter Henry W. Cort of Detroit was sunk last night when it was driven by a 60 mile gale against the north arm of the breakwater of the Muskegon, Mich., harbor. It was uncertain early today whether any of its crew of 25 men had perished and coast guardsmen were planning to shoot a line at daybreak across the superstructure of the old whaleback—all that was above water—and send a man by breeches buoy to make an examination.

For a time it was feared that all the crew had been lost but about 3 o'clock this morning flares were sent up from the wrecked ship and lights were seen in the forward cabin windows. The vessel, it was said, had broken about one-fifth of the way back from the bow. The coastguard cutter Escanaba was standing by to make the rescue attempt at daylight. The storm was still raging at 4:30 a. m., with the waves crashing high over the breakwater and giving the ship a terrific pounding.

Storm Sweeps Midwest.

The gale was an integral part of a great storm which moved up from the Gulf of Mexico into the central west yesterday and piled snow from 12 to 18 inches deep over wide areas in Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, and Wisconsin. Those states last night were striving to dig their highways out of deep drifts and restore normal travel conditions.

Chicago and practically all of Illinois were missed by the snow, but the gale struck the city with great force, reaching 57 miles an hour in gusts and causing considerable damage to trees, electric lines, and signs. The wind is expected to diminish today and the official forecast indicated that only flurries of snow will fall.

Ship Far Off Its Course.

Reports from Muskegon stated that the Cort, bound for Chicago from Holland, Mich., with a cargo of pig iron, had been driven far from its course by the tremendous gale and that its skipper was aiming for the entrance to Muskegon harbor when the disaster occurred.

With her lights gleaming and with signal flares going up from the decks the boat approached the breakwater at about 9 p. m. Watching her from the shore was Capt. John A. Basch, in command of the Muskegon coast guard unit.

"I recognized the vessel," he said. "As she drew near the entrance the high waves tossed her against the concrete breakwater. There was a crash and the lights went out."

One of Coast Guard Perishes.

Capt. Basch and three of his men entered a boat and attempted to go to the rescue. As they drew near the breakwater from the inner side the boat was swamped by the mountainous waves. One of the guardsmen, Jack Dipert, 23 years old, of Frankfort, Mich., was swept overboard and lost. Capt. Basch and the other two lashed themselves to the boat and were washed back to the beach.

Two hundred members of a civilian conservation corps unit at Muskegon were sent to the beach to patrol it in the belief that Dipert's body and possibly the bodies of the Cort's crew might be washed ashore. Appeals for help were sent to other Michigan cities and the cutter was sent from Grand Haven, but was unable to board the wreck while the fierce gale continued.

Ship Built in 1892.

The Henry W. Cort was built at Superior, Wis., in 1892. It usually carried a cargo of 3,000 tons. The owners are the Lake Ports Shipping and Navigation company of Detroit. Capt. Charles V. Cox was in command.

A partial list of the others on board included Harvey Matthews, second mate; Angus Britts of Marine City, Mich., chief engineer; Louis Rose, assistant engineer; James Cox, brother of the captain and a fireman; Eleador Meldrum of Grand Marais, Mich., oiler; Allen Dubuque of Marine City, sailor; J. R. Taylor, wheelsman, and L. J. Roscie, assistant engineer.

The freighter scraped off Ballard reef, in Livingston channel, on Dec. 24, 1933. Laden at the time with 3,000 tons of pig iron, the vessel shipped water rapidly and sank five minutes after reaching dock. Divers were sent down, the hull pumped free of water and the ship refitted for service.

So severe was the storm on Lake Michigan that navigation out of Mil-

Tailor Meets Sailor; Now Tailor Is Holding a Bag

Nathan Wolff, 4000 Ellis avenue, is experienced as a tailor, but his knowledge of precious stones was, until yesterday, rather scant. Two men entered his shop, one representing himself as a sailor with a whole bagful of diamonds, and the other as a prospective buyer of the baubles. After some haggling the pair reached an agreement as to price. Wolff was persuaded to hold the sack and to give the sailor $310 as security, to prove that he would deliver the gems when the buyer paid him $5,000. He discovered some hours later that the diamonds were made of glass.

waukee was halted last night. At Manitowoc the Anna Arbor Car Ferry No. 6 was kept in harbor and another car ferry which went out of Frankfort, Mich., for Kewaunee, Wis., was forced to turn back.

Weather Forecaster J. R. Lloyd said that the storm was centered at Vicksburg, Miss., on Thursday, at Keokuk, Ia., yesterday morning, and at LaCrosse, Wis., last night.

"The temperatures which accompanied the snow on the west side of the disturbance were only from 28 to 32 degrees," he said. "In this respect the snow was remarkable. The high winds will continue on Lake Superior through Saturday, but should diminish in other regions. No extremely low temperatures are anticipated here."

Although the wind damages in Chicago were widespread, no cases of personal injury were reported. There were several instances in which lives were endangered by charged wires thrown down by the storm.

Wind Unroofs Water Tank.

The roof of a water tank on top of the eight story Goetz building at 412-20 Orleans street was ripped off by the wind and hurled several hundred feet. A People's Gas company crew at work in the street narrowly escaped being injured by the flying debris.

Springfield, Mo., observers described the snowstorm there as "the worst in history." More than 1,000 motorists were stranded twelve miles east of Springfield on U. S. highway 66, and it was stated that plows would have to do a full day's work to rescue them. The total snowfall exceeded 16 inches in western Missouri.

In Minnesota, south of St. Paul, roads had been drifted over by a foot of snow before noon. The fall was the heaviest in two years, and farmers asserted it would be valuable in furnishing subsoil moisture and in aiding to repair the ravages of last summer's drouth. Winona and Albert Lea were among the snowbound Minnesota cities.

Iowa and Wisconsin Hit.

At Centerville, Ia., the depth of the snow was 13 inches. Waterloo reported six inches and Marshallville eight inches. Bus service was interrupted and trains were delayed by the drifts.

The fall at La Crosse, Wis., was eight inches, at Eau Claire and Wausau four inches. At Ashland, Wis., snowplows were sent out to aid stranded motorists.

Around Pana and Quincy, Ill., the fall was so heavy that several highways were blocked and motor travel held to a minimum.

The snowfall in Kansas and Nebraska was lighter, few points reporting more than 2 inches. At Leadville, Colo., the official low temperature was 2 below zero.

30 Hurt in Southern Storms.

East of the Mississippi temperatures generally remained rather high. At Newton, Miss., terrific winds destroyed a dozen homes. Baton Rouge and Hammond, La., also reported great wind damage and it was estimated that in the two states 30 persons had been injured during the storm.

Airplane travel in the east was hampered by low visibility and in the west by the storms. Heavy rains caused flood conditions in some regions of North Carolina.

Chicago's November weather was unusual in several respects. The weather bureau's review for the month showed a total precipitation of 3.87 inches, 1.57 inches above normal. Even with this excess the total for the 11 months since Jan. 1 is 9.90 inches below the average of past years. Every month this year, with the exception of August, September, and November, has had much less precipitation than usual.

The month just past was the fifth warmest since 1871, the mean temperature being 45.8, against the normal of 40.3. The high reading was 67 on the 19th and the low 28 on the 12th.

NEW AIR LINERS TO CUT FLYING TIME TO EAST

American Airlines' new Douglas DC-2 air liners will be placed in service tomorrow morning between Chicago and New York, it was announced yesterday by Charles A. Rheinstrom, trafic manager. The planes, which cruise between 190 and 200 miles an hour, will fly the trip in four hours thirty minutes via Detroit and Buffalo. Previous schedules in Curtiss Condor ships will be cut by an hour and nineteen minutes, Rheinstrom said.

Three round trips daily will be flown in the new planes and the company will continue to fly two round trips in sleeper planes, making a daily service of five trips. The new Douglas ships will carry fourteen passengers and a crew of pilot, co-pilot, and stewardess.

NAMES COUNCIL GROUP TO DRAFT SUBWAY PLANS

Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the city council local transportation committee, yesterday named a subcommittee to begin the task of drafting a new traction ordinance. The appointment is a step in the plan to eventually bring about construction of a municipally owned subway under State street between Chicago avenue and Cermak road.

Members of the newly created committee are Aldermen B. A. Cronson [4th], John F. Healy [6th], Bryan Hartnett [12th], James J. McDermott [14th], George D. Kells [28th], Thomas P. Keane [31st], Joseph R. Rostenkowski [32d], Oscar F. Nelson [46th], and John A. Massen [48th].

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS FOREST PARK MAY BE GREATLY EXTENDED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Representative Parsons [Dem., Ill.] said today the forest service of the agricultural department and the national forest reservation commission would decide within the near future whether to expand southern Illinois new park from 300,000 to 1,250,000 acres.

This would be brought about, he said, through a consolidation of the Illini and Shawnee units in such a way that the federal government could go into the 13 counties and purchase blocks of land without the present red tape.

"I feel confident," said Parsons, "that the commission will act favorably upon the proposal."

Illinois' National park, divided as it is now into two units, spreads over Gallatin, Saline, Pope, Harding, Johnson, Massac, Pulaski, Union, Alexander, White, Randolph, and Hamilton counties.

To date, Parsons said, $161,000 has been spent in the Shawnee unit to purchase 50,000 acres, while $191,000 has been spent in the Illini district for 52,000 acres.

SEIZE, IDENTIFY POSTAL EMPLOYE IN SHOOTING OF 2

Frank Kilcoyne, 43 years old, 5704 Roscoe street, a postal employé, was arrested by the Town Hall police last night and was identified as the gunman who wounded two youths at Irving Park boulevard and Clarendon avenue Thursday night.

Elmer Querth, 4010 Clarendon avenue, who witnessed the shooting, saw Kilcoyne in a tavern at 837 Irving Park boulevard and summoned the policemen who made the arrest. One of the men who was wounded, John Logan, 21 years old, 3611 Palmer street, corroborated the identification, as did Bruno Skworzec, 25 years old, 2414 North Tripp avenue, a companion of Logan. Kilcoyne maintained his innocence.

Frank Denges, 21 years old, 4319 Wrightwood avenue, the second man wounded, was in a critical condition at the Bridewell hospital last night. He was struck near the heart.

KILLER OF POLICE LIEUTENANT GETS LIFE PRISON TERM

Willie Randolph, 25 years old, a Negro, was found guilty of the murder of Police Lieutenant James F. Day of the Gresham station by a jury in the court of Judge Donald S. McKinlay last night. His punishment was fixed at life imprisonment. The verdict was returned after the jury had deliberated for two hours and a half.

Judge McKinlay overruled a motion for a new trial. Assistant State's Attorneys John S. Boyle and Richard Devine had asked the death penalty, but expressed themselves as satisfied with the life verdict.

Randolph took the stand during the trial and repudiated a confession he said he had made only after police had beaten him. Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the homicide squad denied this story, however, declaring that Randolph had willingly volunteered his story.

DETAINS FIANCE AT PHONE; POLICE BLOCK SUICIDE

Because he prolonged his farewell phone conversation with his fiancée Milton Maltz, 25 years old, 4300 Pingree avenue, department store clerk, was prevented last night from carrying out a threat to commit suicide. Miss Georgia Silverbreath, 22 years old, 1726 Estes avenue, with whom he was talking, held him in conversation until policemen could be sent to the drug store from which he was making the call.

When Miss Silverbreath answered the telephone Maltz told her: "This is the last time you'll hear my voice. As soon as I hang up I'm going to commit suicide."

As Maltz continued his farewell, telling the girl he was despondent because he had lost his job, she sent a relative to notify Rogers Park police. They, in turn, called the Warren avenue station and Sergt. John Racek and his squad rushed to a drug store at 2358 West Lake street where they found Maltz in a phone booth. When Maltz saw the policemen he tried to put a tablet in his mouth, but Sergt. Racek knocked his hand aside and overpowered him. He was held at the Warren avenue station until he became calm, then was sent home.

AAA RULES HIT ROOSEVELT AS STOCK RAISER

Must Sell 40 Surplus Cattle on Farm.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today found himself in the plight familiar to farmers since the New Deal has draped overalls on dapper college professors and turned them loose in the barnyard.

On a visit to his 1,750 acre experimental farm near the Little White House, the President found he has a surplus of 40 head of beef cattle. His herd produced 50 calves this season.

The President expressed himself concerned over impending sale of the forty cattle. With the price at about two and a half cents a pound on the hoof, he said he did not wish to sell, but was practically being forced to do so.

Advised to take up his problem with the administration, the President laughed heartily. Another burst of merriment came when he said he had received no federal subsidy.

Staf Irked by Frankness.

As the President portrayed himself in the pinched position so familiar in rural areas, his staf squirmed in annoyance over his frankness. At every such honest expression, the official family join in a shushing chorus.

In the morning James A. Moffett, federal housing administrator, was being questioned by newspaper men. Among other questions he was asked how the program could get away from the obvious fact that federal low cost housing will tend to lower real estate values generally.

"Let's not get into any controversial questions," Marvin H. McIntyre leaped into the interview. "Let's just fire questions at him. Mr. Moffett will have to leave shortly."

Mr. Moffett, who had begun his answer, stopped suddenly. Mr. McIntyre yawned away a pleased smile.

Moffett Seems Chastened.

Mr. Moffett returned from the Little White House somewhat chastened in the eyes of observers. Although he said his dispute with Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes of last week, which has been patched up, was not discussed, his abject attitude indicated he had been taken to task.

In the housing administration Moffett has charge of development of home repairing and building through mortgage insurance. Secretary Ickes is also a builder as chief of subsistence homesteads, rural homesteads, and slum clearance projects.

A week ago Mr. Moffett took umbrage over a statement issued by the secretary which he interpreted as the first step towards a swallowing of his administration in the public works administration. Though the incident was passed off as a misunderstanding, it was rumored there was some feeling remaining between the administration's carpenters.

At his semi-weekly press conference President Roosevelt reported he had no news. He laughed off reports that plans are being made to effect a lump sum settlement of war debts. He smiled off questions on the administration relief program, stating it would not be ready until Jan. 3, when congress meets.

BETTY COMPSON IS NAMED BY A WIFE IN DIVORCE COMPLAINT

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Betty Compson, screen actress, was named today as an alleged former sweetheart of Gatty W. Jones, sales manager of a Los Angeles automobile firm, in an amended cross-complaint filed by Elsie Mae Jones to her husband's suit for divorce.

BETTY COMPSON.

The cross-complaint was taken to Judge Frank C. Collier of the Superior court with the request it be sealed from the public gaze on the ground a person of prominence was involved. Judge Collier refused the request.

Jones and his wife had been married 18 years. She charges she once found a letter from Miss Compson to Jones and that her husband threatened her with "dire consequences" if she ever mentioned the letter.

Mrs. Jones promised her stated her husband not to see the film actress again, but that she learned he sent Miss Compson his picture, autographed and with the inscription: "For Betty, the first and most loyal. Sincerely and always yours, Gatty."

"These charges are false," Jones said when informed his wife had named Miss Compson.

Miss Compson formerly was the wife of James Cruze, screen director. She now is married to Irving Weinberg, film agent.

Green Returns to Office, Silent on Insull's Case

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green returned to his office yesterday following his return to Chicago from Washington, where he conferred with his chief, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings. The Insull case was discussed at the conference, Green admitted, but he declined to say whether or not he would prosecute a pending indictment charging Samuel Insull Sr. and his associates with violation of the federal bankruptcy laws. Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson has a demurrer under advisement in this case and it was held possible that Green may be awaiting a decision on this before he takes action.

BARE FAMILY'S DASH TO MEET MYSTERY DEATH

Five Victims of Tragedy Are Identified.

had decided to begin life anew without the girls and eventually were overcome by remorse, or whether the two merely had pushed on in search of an adequate means of taking their own lives; and

Where the bodies of three girls were hidden between the time they were gently strangled to death and the time—at least 24 hours later—when they were laid beneath a dry blanket in a rain soaked pallet of leaves.

The bodies of Noakes and his niece are being held in Altoona, not far from the deserted railroad station where he shot and killed her and himself last Saturday, but the bodies of the three little girls lie in coffins tonight in a large, brilliantly lighted dining room where William Sterrett Woods, famous turfman, entertained half a century ago.

Coroner Haegel announced late today that burial of the children would take place at 10 a. m., tomorrow despite the objections of District Attorney Fred Templeton, who insists they must await the arrival of relatives. The funeral, financed by funds collected by the American Legion, will be one of the largest ever held in Carlisle.

Offers New Clew to Deaths.

Roseville, Cal., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Bitter hostility among relatives of the five persons dead in the Pennsylvania woods mystery brought suspended jail sentences for two women here tonight.

The women, sisters of E. J. Noakes, the man in the quintuple rendezous with death, were sentenced by a justice of the peace at the climax of an uproarious court session. Russell Pierce, nephew of the women and sister of Winifred Pierce, the 18 year old girl in the tragedy, charged his aunts with disturbing the peace.

As the family fight raged, R. U. Noakes, brother of Elmo, offered a possible clew to the mystery behind the deaths.

"There's been trouble in the family for years," he said. "I guess that's why Elmo left home."

R. U. Noakes said there was no doubt about the identifications of the bodies. He based the statement on the Marine corps fingerprints of his brother, photographs of the latter's three dead daughters, and the description of the 18 year old niece, especially her deformed left foot.

The two sisters of Noakes were accused by young Pierce of "abusing and cursing" his mother, Mrs. Pearl Pierce, another sister, after she ordered them from her home. They had gone there to discuss the tragedy.

Mrs. Winnie Chaffin, one of the sisters, screamed as Justice Don L. Bass announced the 90 day jail sentence. She collapsed and kicked the floor with her heels, shrieking loudly. The other sister, Mrs. Kate Gibby, also screamed.

Judge Bass finally restored order and informed the two women the sentence would be suspended. He ordered them not to attempt to visit or speak to Mrs. Pierce during the probation.

The sisters said they had only wanted to ask Mrs. Pierce which of her daughter's feet was deformed so they could help establish identification of the dead girl in Pennsylvania.

A. R. SEYFERLICH, FIRE CHIEF, DEAD; BURIAL TUESDAY

City Mourns Veteran of 38 Years' Service.

Funeral services for Fire Commissioner Arthur R. Seyferlich will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in St. Paul's Lutheran church, 2335 Orchard street. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery.

Mayor Kelly announced that all city hall offices would close at noon Tuesday in order that municipal employes might attend the funeral.

Commissioner Seyferlich died at 9 a. m. yesterday in the Henrotin hospital, where he had been taken Oct. 27 from his home at 2472 Orchard street for treatment for an infection in his right foot. Diabetic gangrene developed and his family physician announced that only amputation of the leg would save his life.

Although the veteran firefighter refused for some time to submit to an amputation, holding that "a one-legged fireman is no fireman at all," it was necessary last Tuesday to remove the foot at the ankle joint. Dr. Stanley K. Livingston, who was present at the operation, declared that the condition of the foot made amputation essential.

Death Comes Suddenly.

The commissioner's death came suddenly after his physicians had held out hope that he might recover. He had responded satisfactorily to blood transfusions Wednesday and Thursday. Then yesterday his heart weakened and he lapsed into a coma from which he did not emerge. The cause of death was given as diabetic gangrene, arterio-sclerosis, and acute dilatation of the heart.

William Brallie, one of the commissioner's chauffeurs, held his chief's hand as he died.

Mr. Seyferlich's widow and their son, Arthur W., hurried to the bedside upon receiving word that Mr. Seyferlich was sinking. They arrived just as he died. A few minutes later Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan and Father William Gorman, department chaplain, arrived.

Firemen to March as Escorts.

The body will lie in the chapel at 3905 Lincoln avenue until 9 a. m. Monday, when it will be taken to the Oriental consistory, at Dearborn and Walton streets. Knight Templar services will be held at the consistory at 11 a. m. Tuesday, followed by the church service in the afternoon. An escort of 500 firemen and more than 200 policemen will march in the procession. Burial services at the cemetery will be under the auspices of Ben Hur lodge, A. F. & A. M.

Mayor Kelly voiced Chicago's regrets and his personal condolences. "The city has lost a great hero," the mayor said. "He was a man who exemplified perfectly the 'I Will' spirit of our city and always gave unselfish devotion to his duty." Marshal Corrigan and other departmental officials joined in expressions of sympathy to the family.

Twice Head of Department.

Fire Commissioner Seyferlich, a veteran of 38 years of service in the fire department which he twice headed, was 65 years old.

After twice serving as fire marshal in the ebb and flow of politics, Seyferlich was called from voluntary retirement Oct. 14, 1933, by Mayor Kelly to become fire commissioner.

Born in Germany Feb. 23, 1869, Seyferlich joined the fire department Sept. 28, 1891. He became a lieutenant in 1896, a captain in 1903, and chief of the Second battalion in 1908. In 1911 he was named assistant fire marshal.

In 1922, while under suspension after a tilt with his superiors, Seyferlich was named fire marshal to succeed Thomas O'Connor. The next year he was demoted to first assistant and was succeeded by Edward J. Buckley, but was reappointed fire marshal by Mayor Dever following Buckley's death several months later.

Rather than submit to another demotion in November, 1927, Seyferlich resigned, to be succeeded by the present marshal, Michael J. Corrigan.

RELIEF RIOTING CLOSES STATION AT BLOOMINGTON

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—McLean county relief headquarters were closed here today following a demonstration in front of the building, in the course of which violence was narrowly averted as agitators twice essayed to force their way through a strong cordon of police and deputy sheriffs for the purpose of entering the building.

Speakers harangued a large crowd. On two occasions the group tried to enter the relief headquarters, and both times the police thrust them back.

The unemployed demanded the following: Withdrawal of "pauper" affidavits, cash relief, improvement of sanitary conditions for clients in the relief station, removal of all police from the relief station, new clothing, 40 per cent increase in relief, rent in full for all clients, and a quart of milk a day for each child.

HUNDREDS HONOR MARY M'DOWELL ON 80TH BIRTHDAY

Settlement Founder "Still Young."

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

White haired and kindly faced Mary E. McDowell was honored by a legion of friends last night on her 80th birthday. The young and old of the neighborhood with whom she has been closely associated as founder of the University of Chicago settlement poured into the settlement at 4630 Gross avenue to offer in person their birthday greetings.

Miss McDowell, beloved among her people as is Jane Addams of Hull house and Graham Taylor of Chicago Commons, was hostess at her own party. She made the plans, directed the preparations, and presided at the brief convocation in the settlement gymnasium last night. Then at the "open house" following she had a word for every one, shaking hands or inquiring after some who could not come.

Flowers, Wires Pour In.

Early in the day the arrival of letters and telegrams from social service leaders all over the United States kept the staf of settlement workers busy. Box after box of flowers came and presents were brought by her admirers.

"I hope we have enough punch to go around," she said anxiously, dropping into a chair in the living room. "I told them please not to send flowers, and just look," eying the great bouquets of chrysanthemums and roses placed in every available spot about the room.

From her stack of congratulations she selected a letter from Mayor Kelly, which read:

"I just want you to know that as mayor and a private citizen I appreciate the unselfish service you have rendered Chicago and humanity. May God bless you and give you an abundance of health, energy, and spiritual inspiration to continue your wonderful work for many years to come."

How She Stays Young.

Asked what keeps her so young, Miss McDowell considered a moment, then her eyes twinkled. "I guess I'm like the lady asked the same question when she reached her 70th birthday. She replied that she didn't have the least idea, unless it was her interest in unpopular causes. I've always been interested in unpopular causes."

Young people were offered a word of advice by the humanitarian who for forty years has known the problems of young people born to adversity.

"Young people should be well informed on all that goes on in the world, for then they can form critical and fair judgments," she counseled. "Balance is a splendid attribute, and lucky is the young person who has it."

As hostess at the party, Miss McDowell insisted on a brief formal birthday ceremony. She told something of the settlement's beginning. But mostly she reviewed the founding of the Bohemian Woman's club and the Settlement Woman's club, both of which she formed upon request from women in the neighborhood soon after the settlement was started in 1894. In fact, she told them, the birthday party was as much theirs as hers.

On Sunday there will be a program at Hull house honoring Miss McDowell. Here she began her settlement work as an associate of Miss Addams.

June Knight Weds

Five minutes after procuring a license from the county clerk, Miss June Knight, blonde motion picture beauty and former fiancée of Max Baer, heavyweight boxing champion, went into the court of Judge E. H. Wegener yesterday and was married to Paul S. Ames of New York.

Ames, who gave his age as 32 years, and his address as 39 Broadway, New York, is a wealthy former member of the New York Stock exchange. He is a brother of Stephen Ames, who married Raquel Torres, also a motion picture actress, last April 21.

Paul and Stephen Ames operated the brokerage firm of Ames Brothers, but sold their memberships in the stock exchange in April of 1933. Paul Ames was divorced from his first wife, but in July, 1933, obtained a license to rewed. The ceremony never was performed.

Ams and Miss Knight said they were leaving at once for Hollywood, where the bride is to begin work in two weeks on a picture for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company. Ames said the honeymoon would be postponed until the picture is completed.

NEW YORK VOTES 19 MILLION FOR MONTH'S RELIEF

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The board of estimate at a special meeting today appropriated $19,253,170 for relief for December. This is the largest sum appropriated by the city for relief and exceeds the next largest appropriation, that for October, by more than $300,000.

The city will be assessed $4,947,147, or 25 per cent. The remaining 75 per cent will be assumed by the state and federal governments under the FERA program. The state's participation will be 25 per cent, the federal government's 50 per cent.

With the relief appropriation out of the way, Mayor F. H. La Guardia turned his efforts today toward finding a way to meet the $8,000,000 deficit in the 1935 budget.

With the aid of the board of aldermen this may be accomplished in two ways, by reducing the $548,441,099 submitted at a total of all departmental estimates and by raising more general tax funds from new sources. Men in the administration say that both will be used.

Litsinger Sues County Officials for Back Pay

Edward R. Litsinger, who served as a member of the board of review from January of 1929 until the board was abolished in 1932, filed suit in Circuit court yesterday to compel county officials to pay him $725 in back salary. The sum represents the 15 per cent cut put into effect in 1931 under the economy program of the late Mayor Cermak. Former State's Attorney Swanson and County Commissioner Charles H. Weber have been successful in recovering pay in similar actions.

U. S. ORDER SPURS HUNT FOR NELSON AIDS IN SLAYING

Gun Gang Reported Seen; Get Hideout Clew.

The hunt for the young woman and man who rode away from Barrington Tuesday with George [Baby Face] Nelson after the desperado had been mortally wounded in a machine gun battle in which two federal agents were slain was being pushed with renewed vigor last night after a day marked by several important developments.

Federal agents and police detailed to the hunt for the fugitives were inspired to greater effort by an ultimatum issued by the department of justice ordering vigorous prosecution of all persons found to have harbored Nelson or to have aided the desperado even remotely. The order made it emphatic that the department intends to make all fugitives wanted by the government too dangerous for the underworld to protect by prosecuting vigorously not only leading criminals but minor fugitives.

Hunt Gun Gang in Suburbs.

Another development yesterday was the reported sighting in Niles Center of three men and a woman companion, armed with a machine gun and believed to be companions of the slain outlaw.

Jacob Behn, 228 St. Johns avenue, Highland Park, notified the police that he had passed a car containing three men and one woman in Cicero avenue between Dempster and Main streets. One of the men was putting bullets into an automatic gun clip, Behn said, and a man sitting beside the driver had a machine gun in his hands.

When they saw he had observed them they pursued him south in Cicero avenue, Behn said. The chase, it it was that, ended at Oakton street, where Behn turned west and the supposed gang car swung east.

Several Chicago detective bureau squads were sent out immediately to scour the north side area and assist suburban police in the hunt through the territory into which the gang car was believed to have fled.

Seek Lake County Hideout.

A special detail of department of justice operatives was hunting for a cabin about one and a half miles north of Wauconda, near Bang's lake, reported to have served as one of several hideouts used by Nelson and his companions. The search was started after government men came into possession of a penciled map which had been found on the roadside near Wauconda by Lester Jarrett, 13 years old, of Ivanhoe.

The small slip of paper bore a minute diagram of roads and cottages in the district, with a special marking on one cabin, believed possibly to have been a Nelson hangout by the agents, who are investigating even the slightest clews to the slain gunman's habits and companions.

That the widow of Baby Face Nelson was with him Tuesday afternoon when he and a companion killed Inspector Samuel P. Cowley and Special Agent Herman Hollis of the department of justice in a battle in Barrington seemed certain from testimony given at the inquest yesterday over the body of Nelson.

Undertaker Gets Call.

It appeared, also, from testimony of Agent John L. Madala, that Cowley's and Hollis' seeing Nelson and his companions driving on the highway just before the battle that followed their chase, was purely accidental. They were not shadowing him at the time, he said.

The story of the fatal shooting episode growing out of their chance encounter was sketched briefly at the inquest in the county morgue. Agent Madala told the jurors that Melvin Purvis, chief of the Chicago bureau of the justice department's division of investigation, talked to Inspector Cowley just before Cowley died, and when Purvis asked who shot him, Cowley murmured:

"Nelson—we got him."

That it was Nelson's wife who arranged for the finding of the body in Niles Center was made apparent from the testimony of Philip Sadowski, undertaker at 1845 North Hermitage avenue.

Agent Tells of Battle.

Sadowski said a man called him at 6:45 a. m. Wednesday and told him to go to Niles Center and pick up the body of a man named Gillis. He previously had buried the mother and sister of Helen Wawrzyniak, the girl who later became Nelsons' wife, he said.

Mrs. Juliette Fitzsimmons, 5516 South Marshfield avenue, sister of Nelson, said that last spring when the police search for Nelson and others of the Dillinger gang was intense, her sister-in-law, the former Helen Wawrzyniak, said to her:

"If anything happens to Lester I wish you would have our family undertaker bury him."

From that implied preparation for the outlaw's eventual funeral, and the fact that a woman was with Nelson when he shot it out with the agents, and the call to Sadowski, her family undertaker, the authorities said there was no doubt Mrs. Nelson was the woman who took shelter in a ditch while the bullets flew in Barrington.

No "Shoot to Kill" Order.

The department of justice revealed yesterday that Inspector Cowley had been in charge of the federal hunt for John Dillinger and Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, as well as the Nelson case in the field. Emphatic denial was made that federal orders had been given to kill Mrs. Nelson or any other wanted person. It also was announced that there is no government "preferred" list of public enemies.

Nelson is expected to be buried in St. Joseph's cemetery, River Grove, at 10 o'clock today, and if the woman sighted yesterday by Behn was Mrs. Nelson, it was believed she may attempt to witness the burial. A lookout will be kept for her appearance.

Chester Gideon, 21 years old, of Loveland, Okla., and Opal Caton, 24 years old, 1519 West Adams street, who were arrested Thursday at a bus station in the belief that they were John Hamilton and Mrs. Nelson were released yesterday.

Noses of 7 Slain Men and Women Evidence at Trial

SARAJEVO, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Seven noses figured in the evidence at the trial here of Rustem Irpan, Albanian charged with multiple murder. Witnesses testified he killed seven men and women in Albania, and carried their noses about as souvenirs.

PARENTS OF AGENT SLAIN BY NELSON ARE REUNITED AT GRAVE

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 30.—(AP)—The body of Herman E. Hollis, the government special agent who was slain by George [Baby Face] Nelson, was carried to its grave in Glandale cemetery today through a stinging smother of snow.

Only a few of the throngs who had paid the young federal operative homage as his body lay in state at the Iowa capitol earlier in the day braved the bitter weather to attend the final services.

Mrs. Hollis, dry eyed and calm, and her small son, Edward Laverne, sat at the edge of the grave as last prayers were read.

But the young widow lost her stoical composure when the casket was lowered into the grave. Jumping from her chair she screamed:

"Take me with you; O, take me with you!"

Then she collapsed and was carried to a waiting automobile.

Two figures lingered beside the grave. They were Mrs. Nora E. Hollis, the slain agent's mother, and William Hollis of Kansas City, his father. They were together again in their mutual sorrow after years of estrangement.

JUDGE PAYS $400 ALIMONY; ENDING CONTEMPT CASE

Ex-Mayor of Evanston Is Ordered to Court.

Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday dismissed a contempt of court citation against Municipal Judge Howard Hayes after his attorney, William Leigh, informed the court that $400 in alimony debts had been paid to Judge Hayes' former wife, Mrs. Grace Houston of 1400 Lake Shore drive.

Attorney Leigh said that Judge Hayes intended to come into court seeking further reduction of the monthly alimony he must pay. Mrs. Houston obtained a divorce in 1918, thereupon resuming the name of her first husband. Judge Hayes paid $225 a month alimony until March, 1933, when Judge Finnegan ordered alimony payments reduced to $100.

Bases Plea on Defeat.

Judge Hayes, who since the divorce has remarried and has two daughters by his present wife, will base his plea for further reduction on his recent defeat for reëlection to the Municipal court bench and consequent cut in his income.

Harry P. Pearsons, 61 years old, of the University club of Evanston, former mayor of Evanston, must appear in the Superior court of Judge Rudolph F. Desort at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for alimony debts, Judge Desort ruled yesterday.

His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Schmitt Pearsons, 360 Ridge avenue, Evanston, alleges through her attorney, Frank E. Cantwell, that Pearsons is $6,968 in arrears in alimony and other payments ordered.

$3,000 Alimony Paid.

Of this amount $1,780 is for alimony, more than $3,000 in alimony having been paid since a separate maintenance decree was entered July 12, 1932, and $1,800 is for unpaid solicitors' fees, the remainder being for bills for "necessary expenses," including a grand piano.

Mrs. Pearsons also is seeking a new alimony order allowing her attorneys' fees to contest an appeal from the separate maintenance decree issued by Judge Harry B. Miller of the Superior court and alimony payments which would continue during the appeal litigation. The appeal is scheduled for hearing by the Appellate court next week.

During arguments yesterday Attorney Lloyd C. Whitman, representing Pearsons, declared: "Mr. Pearsons has been paying Mrs. Pearsons month after month for 2½ years on the $40 a week permanent alimony ordered by Judge Miller. Now they come into court and ask you to send him to jail, to cripple him, to squeeze some more out of the turnip before the case is reversed by the Appellate court."

ROBBED OF WALLET IN LOOP.

Arnold Lieberman, 5120 Harper avenue, an optometrist with offices at 8 South Michigan boulevard, was robbed of $34 and a diamond ring valued at $275 by two men who crowded him into a doorway at 421 Plymouth court yesterday.

FEARS ACADEMIC FREEDOM LOST AT LOUISIANA U.

Professors' Association Head Sees Menace.

Senator Huey Long's dictatorship over the faculty of Louisiana State university is a serious menace to academic freedom, Prof. S. A. Mitchell of the University of Virginia declared yesterday in an interview after a meeting of the American Association of University Professors at the Stevens hotel.

Prof. Mitchell is president of the association, which has 11,000 members in 250 colleges and universities throughout the country.

Complaint Needed Before Ban.

"While I regard the situation at Louisiana State university as an infringement on academic liberty," he said, "the association can do nothing about it at this time. If a complaint is made to us by a member of the university's faculty or some other interested party and we find the condition existent and being aggravated, it is likely that we will take action."

The association's "action" would be to remove the university from its accredited list. This would mean that no members of the organization would take faculty positions at Louisiana State until the situation was remedied.

As the membership includes educators of the highest standing, the association's ban would lower the caliber of instruction at the university. The ban, however, would not prevent members of the association now on the faculty from continuing to teach there.

Recalls Action in Mississippi.

H. W. Tyler, retired professor of mathematics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and vice president of the association, told of the action taken in Mississippi in 1931.

"At that time Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo [now United States senator] arbitrarily discharged several presidents, deans and professors at Mississippi state colleges for political reasons," Tyler said. "The association then discredited all the state schools. When the new governor [Martin S. Connor] came into office he restored these men to their jobs and we returned the schools to our eligible list.

"The state of Louisiana is entitled to any ridiculous dictatorship it wishes, but we will be receptive to any violation of academic freedom brought to our attention."

26 Suspended After "Gag."

Censorship at Louisiana State has been invoked by Senator Long to prevent criticism of him in the student paper "Reveille." Twenty-six journalism students were suspended for protesting the "gag" and the seven members of the editorial staf of the paper then resigned, automatically ceasing its publication.

The association of professors yesterday voted to place De Pauw university at Greencastle, Ind., on the discredited list. This followed a recommendation for such action by a committee on academic freedom and tenure, headed by Prof. Carl Wittke of Ohio State university.

The recommendation was based on the committee's report condemning President G. Bromley Oxnam, president of the university, for dismissing Prof. Ralph W. Hufferd of the chemistry department in 1932.

Ousted Without a Hearing.

Prof. Hufferd had been at De Pauw for 12 years and had "disagreed with certain projects of President Oxnam, who is impatient of opposition, debate and delay," the report said. These differences were apparently patched up in 1931, according to the report, and Hufferd was assured he would continue on the faculty.

On June 12, 1932, Hufferd received a letter from Oxnam stating that "the trustees, upon my recommendation, voted to discontinue the professor as a member of the faculty," the report said. Hufferd was given no advance notice or hearing, the committee found.

The report further stated that since 1928 when Oxnam became president 60 members of the faculty have resigned, failed of reappointment, or have been dismissed, although "an unwritten understanding of permanency for successful teachers was supposed to exist."

The association will conclude its three day meeting today.

CLUB EMPLOYE DIES FROM FALL.

Henry Casty, 70 years old, 4906 Kenneth avenue, an employé of the Hamilton club, died yesterday of injuries he suffered Nov. 27 when he fell from a ladder in the club while putting up draperies at a window.

U. S. Bears the Bulk of Relief Load in Many States; Vast Discrepancies

THE TRIBUNE yesterday printed a dispatch from Washington showing the income and profits tax payments from the various states as contrasted with the relief funds received by each from the federal treasury.

Following those comparisons, another set of figures is printed herewith showing the total relief expenditures in all forty-eight states from Jan. 1 to July 1, 1934, together with the percentages paid by each government toward relief—federal, state, and local. The records disclose that the federal government has been paying almost the entire bill in many states. With a national average of 62., the share of total relief costs borne by the federal government has varied from a minimum of 28.9 per cent in Massachusetts to 99.4 per cent in South Carolina and Mississippi. The figures follow:

SEEK TO SETTLE PRESS GAG ROW AT LOUISIANA U.

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Louisiana State university authorities tonight centered attention on getting the presses of the Reveille, student publication, rolling again as a means of settling the row over Senator Huey Long's censorship of the paper.

Reports that Grace Williamson of New Orleans, one of the Reveille staf who resigned rather than submit to censorship, had been reinstated and named editor, went officially unconfirmed, but were not denied.

L. Rea Godbold, Brookhaven, Miss., one of 26 journalism students suspended by President James M. Smith after they had demanded that the president reinstate the resigned editors, said he had started a petition to Miss Williamson urging her to decline the post in the interest of campus press "freedom."

RELIEF LEADERS DEFEND DELAYS ON PAY ROLL CUT

1,330 County Employes to Go by Dec. 15.

Members of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission were "educated" yesterday in the new philosophy governing the number of employés required to distribute relief. During an all day session Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary, found it necessary to explain to some of the members why 1,330 employés are to be dropped from the Cook county staf by Dec. 15, and to other members why the action was not taken long ago.

Leo Lyons, Cook county relief administrator, said that 569 employés will be discharged today. He listed specifically the number of employés to be lopped off in each department. The unemployment relief service reduction affects 241 staf members, while in the county bureau of public welfare division, 225 will be taken off the relief pay roll tomorrow.

Questions Delays in Cut.

"Why wasn't this done six months ago?" demanded Omar H. Wright, a downstate member of the commission.

"I haven't got any answer," Administrator Lyons replied.

Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the commission, undertook to explain.

"I think we are making the cut without consideration as to close supervision of relief clients," he said slowly. "We have gone ahead on the theory that it would lower total relief costs. There was only one thing to do to meet criticism [of the large pay roll]—to attempt to obtain the same results with a smaller staf. We don't know for certain how it will work out."

Victor A. Olander, another member, declared that the commission should not "give way" to such criticism. Then, not satisfied with the chairman's explanation, Mr. Reynolds told of the change in expert opinion as to the amount of supervision necessary in relief cases.

Defends Reduction Now.

"There has been a change in my thinking," he admitted, "as to the application of supervision to that 80 per cent of our relief population whose dependency is solely due to unemployment. Ordinary unemployment cases do not require intensive case work. Washington has approved every one of these steps. Also the procedure in our district offices is being simplified.

"But I still contend that the staf we had until the present was necessary, and that our case load would have been greater were it not for the intensive investigation we have employed in the past. The relief load is stabilized now; therefore, right now is the time to reduce our staf."

Relief Hits All Time High.

An all time high for the state, $12,842,528, was approved by the commission as the amount needed for relief during December, although this is $633,000 less than the requirement estimated two weeks ago. Of the total, $7,000,167 is for actual relief in Cook county, $4,843,969 is for downstate counties, and $1,040,453 is the cost of administration.

COUNTY SCHOOL CRISIS IS PUT UP TO GOV. HORNER

The fate of forty-four Cook county country town schools, which must have financial aid to stay open after Christmas, rests in the hands of Gov. Henry Horner, it was asserted yesterday by Otto F. Aken, county superintendent of schools. Mr. Aken received a letter from L. R. Alderman, director of the educational division of the Federal Emergency Relief administration at Washington, who stated that the federal body will make the needed $150,000 available if the governor shows conclusively that the state is unable to do so.

On Nov. 6 Supt. Aken sent to the state executive a letter outlining the dire straits of the suburban schools districts, and suggesting that some action to find the funds or appeal to the federal authorities be taken in a special session. He has received no response from the governor, he said.

CAPTAINS, KINGS DEPART; LONDON RECOVERS POISE

Debris of Royal Wedding Cleared from Streets.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—London, its biggest jamboree since the armistice over, tonight appeared willing to let the duke and the duchess of Kent enjoy peace and solitude at their honeymoon retreat at Himley hall in Worcestershire, the earl of Dudley's country estate.

The captains and the kings departed, the paraphernalia of pomp and circumstance was packed away for the time another prince gets married. Débris of the decorators and the merrymakers was cleared from the streets and the parks, and this evening the city, keyed to concert pitch for the royal wedding, had returned to normal.

Royalties Begin Departure.

The galaxy of visiting royalties that gathered in London for the brilliant Westminster abbey ceremony that united the fourth son of King George and Queen Mary and Princess Marina of Greece began breaking up today.

Among the first to leave were the king and queen of Norway, who departed for home on tonight's boat train. The prince of Wales was at the station to see them off.

Although the new duchess of Kent, by virtue of her marriage yesterday to King George's youngest son, becomes the fourth lady of the land, the order of succession to the throne will not be changed.

Princess Elizabeth Fifth Lady.

The eldest granddaughter of the king and queen, 8 year old Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the duke and duchess of York, will retain her third position in that line. Elizabeth will not fare so well in the ranking of the ladies of the land, however. She moves from fourth to fifth place.

The order of succession to the crown follows:

The prince of Wales and his issue [the prince is not married]; the duke of York and his two daughters, Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose; the duke of Gloucester and his issue [the king's third son is also unmarried]; Prince George, the duke of Kent, and his issue, and Princess Mary, the king's only daughter [now the countess of Harewood], and her issue.

BATTLE ON NRA LABOR ISSUE IS BEGUN IN COURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The legal battle which will finally determine organized labor's collective bargaining powers under the NRA was launched here today by the federal government.

The government asked the United States District court for the Western district of New York to impose on the Houde Engineering company of this city the New Deal's controversial doctrine of majority rule in all labor relations under NRA.

Launching of the Houde case brings the first legal test of the national labor board's famous decision against the Houde company. In this decision, not yet approved by the courts, the labor board interpreted section 7A of the NIRA to mean that an employer can bargain collectively only with the union which represents the majority of his workers. The board's ruling was hailed as a major victory for the American Federation of Labor and has been defied by business groups.

Three Points at Stake.

In filing the government's complaint against the Houde company, United States Attorney George L. Grobe asked the court to order the company to do the following things:

1. To bargain collectively with the United Automobile Workers Federal union, No. 18839; this union, a branch of the A. F. of L., was the one which a majority of the Houde workers chose as their representative when the labor board conducted an election among them on March 21.

2. To cease collective bargaining with all other unions, especially a company union known as the Houde Welfare and Athletic association.

3. To refrain from all action which might interfere with or coerce the employés in their self-organization for the purpose of collective bargaining.

Company Refuses to Bargain.

As the basis for its suit the government points out that the Houde company, which is determined to test the validity of the majority rule doctrine, has continually refused to bargain collectively with the United Automobile Workers local union. The company has persisted in this refusal since the workers' election, at which a majority voted for the United Automobile Workers.

The specific refusal which the government holds violated section 7A and majority rule took place when a committee of the United Automobile Workers sought on Oct. 9 to meet with representatives of the company for collective bargaining. On Nov. 10 the company finally replied in writing, refusing the committee's request.

PONY'S PICTURE HELPS TO SOLVE POLICE PROBLEM

With the aid of a photograph Sergt. H. J. Tierney of the Rogers Park police yesterday solved the problem of the ownership of a Shetland pony found tethered in the rain in front of 1841 Columbia avenue.

Searching his desk, the sergeant produced a picture of himself standing beside a pony which looked remarkably like the waif. The name of Howard Carpenter, 4740 North Western avenue, the photographer, was found on the back of the picture. Carpenter was taken to the station and admitted he owned the pony.

Capt. Patrick J. Harding agreed to release Carpenter after the photographer promised to keep the pony in a barn nights and ship him away for the winter.

FUR LINED Imported CAPESKIN GLOVES Last at

Frankly, we don't know. But we do know that this is one of the biggest glove values ever offered around this town. Imagine a full-lined glove, sturdily sewn, of fine Imported capeskin selling at such a figure! Why ordinarily the price for a glove like this is at least two or three times this price. The fur is warm rabbits hair; the fine, soft supple cape leather a rich shade of brown. Get in early—we mean it. ONLY 1200 pairs at $1.95!

JAPAN PROPOSES NAVY AGREEMENT ON OWN TERMS

Insists New Treaty Must Give Tokio Equality.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, Dec. 1 (Saturday).—(AP)—Fernand Pila, French ambassador, today handed to Foreign Minister Koki Hirota a reply declining a Japanese invitation to France to join the empire in denouncing the Washington naval treaty of 1922.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Japan tonight proposed new efforts to reach an agreement on naval limitation, but insisted that the agreement must give it full equality in naval armaments.

Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to London, told Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador at large, that Tokio was willing to try to reach an understanding on the basis of recent British compromise proposals. A ten year treaty was envisaged in the British suggestions.

Matsudaira, however, said Japan would insist that the treaty provide full equality for the Japanese navy, refusing to accept the British thesis that the principle of equality might be recognized and equality in fact withheld.

Fails to Brighten Prospect.

Thus the prospect for an ultimate favorable outcome of the tri-power conversations, in progress here for several months, appeared little brighter tonight despite the new Japanese move.

Naval circles at first believed Matsudaira, in his conference with Davis, had indicated the Japanese might yield on their original proposals, in which they demanded equality.

Later, however, it was learned authoritatively that the Japanese not only stand as firmly as ever for abolition of the present 5-5-3 ratio, but that they believed the outlook for compromise actually no better than before.

Envoy Calls on U. S. Official.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Hirosi Saito, Japanese ambassador to Washington, conferred briefly today with William Phillips, undersecretary of state. He said they had discussed purely routine diplomatic affairs and had not mentioned the London naval negotiations. The state department maintained an official silence.

State department officials also declined to comment on Foreign Minister Koki Hirota's speech yesterday before the Japanese diet, in which he reviewed Japan's foreign affairs, including the London naval talks.

Observers here pointed out, however, that although Japanese spokesmen had several times served notice of that nation's intention to denounce the Washington naval treaty of 1922, the foreign office has as yet made no official statement on the question. Hirota's official reticence in broaching the subject of abrogation may have been deliberate in anticipation of a last minute compromise in London.

PANAMA LIMITED RETURNS TO OLD RUN TOMORROW

After a layoff of 30 months the Panama Limited, de luxe train of the Illinois Central railroad, tomorrow will return to its old run between Chicago and New Orleans. The train, which operates on a 20 hour schedule —one hour faster than its predecessor —is being put back into service as part of an improvement program launched by the railroad.

Mayor Kelly, Gov. Horner and mayors of cities along the Panama Limited's route to the south have been invited to attend the ceremonies that have been arranged by L. A. Downs, president of the railroad. Consular representatives of South and Central American countries also will be present.

The program will be held at noon, preceding the departure of the train at 1 p. m., in the main waiting room of the Central station. Patricia Kelly, 8 year old daughter of Mayor Kelly, has been asked to christen the train with water from Lake Michigan, the Mississippi river and the Gulf.

TINKOFF DENIED PROBATION AND ANOTHER TRIAL

Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone of Madison, Wis., sitting in the district court here, yesterday denied a motion for probation on behalf of Paysoff Tinkoff, attorney and accountant, who was sentenced to serve 18 months in Leavenworth penitentiary for aiding and abetting a client in income tax evasion.

Tinkoff was given until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to file a new bond of $15,000 pending outcome of an appeal from his conviction. If he does not provide the bond he will be held in jail.

PICKPOCKET, FACING LIFE, SLIPS HANDCUFFS AND ESCAPES TOMBS

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—"Angel Face" Louis Abrams, a notorious thief and pickpocket facing life imprisonment as a fourth offender, slipped his handcuffs on the way across the Bridge of Sighs from the Tombs today and escaped.

He was one of 22 prisoners being brought to General Sessions from the prison. His absence was not discovered for 15 minutes, when it was found one of the other prisoners in the court pen had a handcuff dangling from his wrist. A vain search was made.

Abrams, 36, and better known as a pickpocket than as a first rank burglar, was arrested for the fifteenth time Oct. 25, charged with the theft of $5,000 worth of finished and unfinished eyeglass frames.

Conviction would have meant life imprisonment, for he has three previous felony convictions.

FIND CONGRESS LACKS POWER TO ENACT TVA LAW

Baker, Beck Call Rate Ruling Invalid, Too.

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The legal opinion drafted by Newton D. Baker and James M. Beck holding the Tennessee Valley authority act unconstitutional was made public tonight by Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Edison Electric institute, at whose request it was submitted.

The institute, which represents most of the power producers throughout the nation, recently announced that such an opinion had been submitted and had found the federal law to be unconstitutional.

No National Defense Provision.

In their joint opinion Mr. Beck and Mr. Baker declared that analysis of the TVA act indicated that its content did not constitute regulation of interstate commerce or provision for national defense, but rather a project for the federal government "to embark in the power business." The opinion goes still further and finds that the very enactment of the law "was beyond the constitutional power of the congress."

As a final argument the opinion declares that the TVA program is unlawful because of the "arbitrary and discriminatory" manner in which its policies are being carried out. This is true, according to the opinion, even if the program and policies of TVA are assumed to be within the terms of the act and the act is assumed to be constitutional.

For the government to engage in the power business, the opinion asserts, is "at once a denial of the police power of the state and an invasion of state sovereignty over territory as to which the state has made no cession of sovereignty to the federal government."

Calls Flood Control Disguise.

Mr. Baker and Mr. Beck voiced the belief that the references in the TVA act to flood control, navigation, and national defense are merely "a disguise for the plain but unconstitutional purpose of the statute."

The act, according to the opinion, does not authorize the acquisition and operation of electrical distribution plants, nor the extension of utility rate legislation beyond the narrow limit of sales to municipal plants. The proposal of TVA to regulate rates of private utilities to which it makes power sales is attacked as outside the constitutional sanction. Mr. Beck and Mr. Baker assert that in this respect the law violates the fifth amendment to the constitution by denying "equal protection of the laws."

HAPPY THRONGS JAM STORES FOR EARLY SHOPPING

Post-Thanksgiving Trade Soars Over 1933's.

Christmas shopping crowds swept into State street in such numbers yesterday that merchants at the close of the day predicted a decided upturn in Christmas business this season.

A canvass of merchants by the State street council disclosed that the day after Thanksgiving business had far exceeded the same day last year and indicated further that the shopping season has begun in earnest much earlier. Last year heavy crowds did not appear until Dec. 8. This year extensive buying got well under way on Monday of this week, three days before Thanksgiving.

Trafic officers along State street reported difficulty in handling crowds at intersections and described the throngs as noticeably larger than at the same period last year. Stores already are increasing their sales stafs.

Buy Substantial Gifts.

"Merchants reported a 'fine day' and seemed overjoyed by the turnout of Christmas shoppers," said H. W. Rieger, executive secretary of the council. "It was a much better day than they had expected. The merchants found that shoppers are heading their lists with substantial articles such as clothing and home furnishings, and are buying in all departments."

One store executive was jubilant over a "phenomenal sale of toys" and a "run on radios."

"We couldn't wait on the radio customers fast enough," he said. "Throughout the store in every department people were buying and we had to place a staf of helpers at each end of the escalators to keep the crowds moving from floor to floor. We were particularly struck by the spirit of happiness and friendliness the shoppers brought to the store with them."

Crowds Amaze Employés.

In another store a young woman who operates an elevator sighed wearily as the closing hour neared. "I've never seen such crowds. They've been coming up all day without stopping," she said. "But that means good Christmas business, so I can't complain."

A visit to the stores revealed a wide variety of buying. Toy departments were jammed with children out of school for the Thanksgiving holidays, accompanied by parents who hoped to get some ideas on Christmas presents. Bargain counters in women's underclothing, children's sweaters, blouses, hose, men's pajamas, and shirts, linens, and bedding were particularly popular.

Another day of heavier buying than is usual for Saturday is expected by the stores today.

Circuit Judges Reappoint 14 Masters in Chancery

Fourteen of the present masters in chancery of the Circuit court were renamed yesterday at a meeting of the Circuit court judges. Those reappointed are Otto C. Rentner, Julius Miner, Francis Benda, William R. Swissler, Benjamin Adamowski, Max M. Korshak, Leonard Reid, George E. Gorman, Isadore Brown, James P. Harrold, Ninian H. Welch, John A. Sbarbaro, Harry A. Riley, and Ning Eley. Masters for the six remaining vacancies will be named next week, Chief Justice Joseph Burke said.

LIQUOR AGENTS ASKED TO WORK WITHOUT PAY

Salary of 1,000 Rests with Congress.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam today offered to let a thousand of his liquor tax agents go on fighting moonshiners and bootleggers—without pay.

Unless the agents choose to continue their work on the chance that they will get pay checks some time in the indefinite future, they will be dropped from the pay roll tonight.

This ironic situation, which Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau says may disrupt his whole liquor law enforcement, climaxes a long series of complications which started when congress tried to turn the liquor force into a political grab bag.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings ruled today that, under a rider tacked onto the emergency appropriation act of 1934 by a patronage hungry congress, Secretary Morgenthau has no authority after midnight tonight to pay the salaries of 1,000 out of his 1,400 liquor tax agents. But, the attorney general explained, the agents are free to remain on the payless pay roll in the hope that congress eventually can be persuaded to repeal the rider and restore their salaries.

TWO PRISONERS PULL GUN IN CAR; ESCAPE DEPUTIES

Pair Take Officers' Auto for Getaway.

Paris, Ill., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Police throughout southern Illinois were searching tonight for two convicted prisoners who held up two deputy sheriffs and the latters' women relatives with a smuggled pistol and escaped in their escorts' automobile while being transported from here to the Chester penitentiary early today.

The fugitives are Nicholas Olfer, alias John D. Adiduk, 21, a former convict in a Pennsylvania prison, and Roy Colter, alias Culbert, 23, a half breed Indian and former prisoner at Nashville, Tenn.

One Refuses to Flee.

A third prisoner, Alvin Taylor, 22, of Paris, who was also being taken to the state penitentiary, refused to join in the escape. All three men had been convicted in Edgar county Circuit court on charges of larceny and were sentenced to serve one year to life.

The escape occurred on a highway south of Vandalia. One of the prisoners suddenly produced a pistol and held up Deputies Everett Snider and Robert Mitchell; Snider's wife, and Mitchell's daughter, Nellie. Taking the officers' money and weapons, the convicts forced all the others out of the car and sped away in the machine.

Abandoned Car Found.

A short time later the deputies' car was found abandoned about a mile west of Ashley. Tracks found nearby indicated the fugitives had fled on foot across country, through a peach orchard and south of state route No. 15. It was believed they were heading toward Dubois.

Police were puzzled concerning the source of the prisoners' weapon.

CCC Worker Commended for Action Averting Fire

Edward R. Hayward, 19 years old, 7827 Colfax avenue, a member of the Civilian Conservation corps, was commended yesterday by Robert Fechner, CCC director, for "courageous and meritorious conduct." On Oct. 19 Hayward carried a flaming can of liquid cement from a warehouse in the CCC camp near La Grange, averting a possibly serious fire.

DIZZY FROM TOO MUCH TROMBONE! JUDGE HELPS HIM

Joseph Lear, whose trombone blares out the blue notes in the orchestra of Herr Louie and the Weasel at the Old Heidelberg inn, 14 West Randolph street, related a blue story to Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday.

Lear recently sued his wife, Lydia, 4501 Malden avenue, for divorce, charging cruelty. She filed a cross bill for separate maintenance on similar grounds. Lear, through his attorney, Irving Roth, agreed to pay $130 a month temporary allmony. Yesterday he asked a reduction.

"I had played my trombone all the night previous to making the agreement," Lear said. "I must have been dizzy."

Hank Miller, the "Her Louie" of the combination, testified that Lear was being paid only $70 a week at the time, and is nowing getting only $63 a week. Mrs. Lear's attorney, Norman Becker, protested against any reduction. Judge Desort compromised by cutting the payments to $110 a month.

DAD . . . bring him down today, Saturday. . Turn him loose in the stores till noon then to us for a great three decker and a grand piece of choklut fudge cake and a schooner of milk . . . fit for the King.

ARMY MEN OPEN DRIVE ON NAZIS; DEFY CENSORSHIP

New Magazine Ridicules Aids of Hitler.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—A small magazine circulated through Berlin like wildfire today. Its fate will reveal how far Germany has returned toward normal.

It is a periodical called We, Front Volunteers, and today's issue warned Germans that they must "show civilian courage" and avoid "a position of cowardly obedience."

Its importance is derived from the fact that it is edited by men close to the reichswehr [regular army] ministry, which refused to permit Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, to censor the publication. Observers see it as adding more fuel to the smoldering resentment in the reichswehr and other groups of Germany against the minor leaders of the Nazi régime.

Lampoons Nazi Leaders.

Today's issue of this new publication mercilessly lampoons these minor leaders who, it says, overestimate their own importance and exploit their power over citizens who are "cowardly." It protests against abuses and against speeches "full of bilge which are thrust down the throats of people who listen patiently out of a misconstrued spirit of discipline."

The magazine ridicules Goebbels' campaign to stir the people continuously with tag days of all descriptions, from Mother's day to apple day. It also ridicules the Nazi district leader of Oberlahn who ordered party functionaries to see that all households eat only stew on the monthly winter relief Sundays.

"We expect the hausfrau will stand at attention at the door with the lid removed from the cooking vessel for the functionary to put his nose into it," the publication says.

Await Action By Censor.

The magazine found a tremendous echo among the population. If the censorship authorities fail to punish the contributors and editors, it is assumed that the authorities feel strong enough to cope with criticisms of obviously weak spots by men whose position in the reichswehr and whose genuine loyalty to Hitler prove they are criticising only for constructive purposes.

Punishment of the editors and authors would indicate that there is truth in the constantly recurring rumors of serious friction between the reichswehr and Schutz Staeffel [black shirted Hitler guards], who now occupy the strong position held by the Storm Troop chiefs before the blood purge of June 30.

Dr. Johannes Leisegang, professor of philosophy at Jena university, and holder of the Lessing prize for 1929, today was sentenced to six months in prison at Weimar for slandering Chancellor Hitler. Dr. Leisegang, who is one of the oldest members of the Steel Helmet war veterans' organization, was charged with saying on the day of President Paul von Hindenburg's funeral, at which Hitler spoke:

"It is degrading that a noncom should deliver the funeral speech for a field marshal. Hitler ought to stop talking. He is only making an election speech."

Crowd Denounces Nazi Rule.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ZURICH, Switzerland, Nov. 30.—Striking evidence of Germany's growing dissatisfaction with the government of Chancellor Hitler, and of Nazi counter terrorism, was given a few days ago at the Busch circus in Berlin, where the house was crowded for a boxing match. This information was received here today.

As the lights were lowered, some one shouted: "Down with starvation government!" The cry was taken up all over the house.

The lights were flashed on and a dead silence followed. Attendants sent for secret police. Meanwhile an effort was made to go on with the show.

As soon as the lights were lowered again, the cry was repeated from all parts of the house. Upon the arrival of the police, the lights were turned on and every one was searched. More than 300 persons were taken to jail, many on the testimony of neighbors who said they had heard them shout.

French Aviatrix Killed in Crash; Held Altitude Mark

VERSAILLES, France, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Mlle. Helen Boucher, 26, who held one women's airplane altitude record and claimed the women's speed record, was killed today in a crash during a test flight at Guyancourt air field. On Aug. 8 Mlle. Boucher flew her plane at 278 miles an hour, about 27 miles an hour faster than the previous international women's record held by Mrs. Amy Hainlip of the United States. In 1932 Mlle. Boucher set a second category altitude record of 19,356 feet.

FINED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING.

Frank Larosa, 59 years old, 935 North Hamlin avenue, whose automobile last week struck and injured Patrick McGuilar, 52 years old, 2110 Osgood street, at Laramie and Grand avenues, was fined $25 for reckless driving by Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the Safety court yesterday.

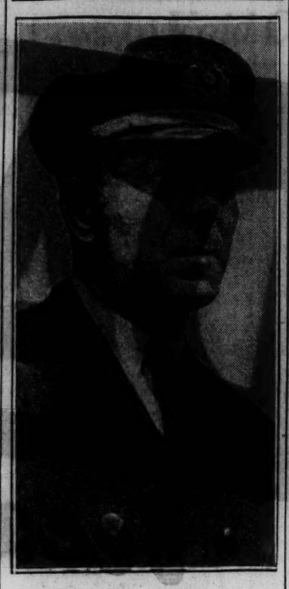
PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Sluggish bowels cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanishes and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets will help save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and relief from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take one or two Olive Tablets at bedtime. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c, and 60c. All druggists.

SLAIN ON SHIP



FREDERICK ROBERTS.

Claudia and Lillian Roberts of the Englewood Arms hotel, 824 West 63d street, yesterday were notified of the death of their brother, Frederick Roberts, first officer on the American Steamship exchange. Roberts, who lived in Minonk, was shot and killed by Chief Engineer M. J. Demott while the ship was in port at Messina, Italy. The shooting climaxed a dispute on board the ship. Roberts' body will be returned to Chicago.

BERLIN AND PARIS O. K. SAAR MINE TRANSFER SCHEME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Nov. 30.—An agreement between French and German experts on modalities of the transfer of the coal mines in the rich Saar basin and on the question of price was reached here today. The agreement followed a month's hearing on the subject before a special committee of three appointed by the council of the league of nations and presided over by Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy.

The accord will allow the committee of three, which consists of Baron Aloisi, Ambassador Cantilo of Argentina, and Ambassador Lobez of Spain, to submit is report and recommendations to the league council, which has been convened in special session at Geneva Dec. 5.

Baron Aloisi's committee was convened here early in November to work out a plan for holding the Saar plebiscite on Jan. 13. At the plebiscite residents of the Saar will decide whether that mining district, which was given to France for 15 years of exploitation under the Versailles peace treaty as compensation for mines wrecked by German soldiers in northern France, shall remain under the present administration of the league, shall be turned over to France, or returned to Germany.

It was the committee's problem to submit a plan which could be made to fit any of the three possible results of the voting.

BOLIVIAN TROOPS ARE DRIVEN BACK BY PARAGUAYANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 30.—The deciding blow in the three years of warfare in the Gran Chaco between Bolivia and Paraguay is expected to be struck at any moment.

Taking advantage of the turbulent political situation in Bolivia following the sudden overthrow of President Daniel Salamanca, Gen. José Estigarribia, Paraguayan commander in chief, today smashed ahead in two sectors.

The Paraguayan army on the Pilcomayo river, which recently captured Fort Ballivian, Bolivia's key stronghold in that sector, pushed northward along the river. The Paraguayans' objective is Fort Dorbigny, another link in Bolivia's chain of defenses. The fall of this fort would imperil Villa Montes, Bolivia's army base 60 miles to the north.

A second Paraguayan column was advancing toward Cururenda, which is located northeast of Dorbigny.

Military observers here believe the deciding battle of the war would be fought wherever the Bolivian army decided to make its final stand.

Col. Hugh Scott Is Feted on Hines Hospital Anniversary

Col. Hugh Scott was guest of honor at a card party and dance last night in the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital in celebration of the seventh anniversary of his appointment as managing director of the institution. More than 2,000 persons attended. Col. Scott attributed much of the credit for the hospital's growth to the cooperation of his staf. Under his management the hospital has grown from an $8,000,000 building containing 865 beds into a $15,000,000 structure with a capacity of 1,750 patients.

NEW PRESIDENT PROMISES TO AID MEXICAN WORKER

Gen. Cardenas Takes Office as 60,000 Watch.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Gen. Lazaro Cardenas, 39 year old veteran of fifteen years' fighting in the field, today was given the task of carrying forward the development of the Mexican revolution.

Cardenas, one of the youngest men ever to become constitutional president of the republic took the oath of office at high noon while 60,000 persons, jamming the national stadium to overflowing, looked on.

In his inaugural address the new president—Mexico's nineteenth in nearly twenty-four years—said his administration would create new opportunities for workers through the exploitation of the nation's resources, and that it would seek also to end social inequalities.

Will Aid Indians.

"There are entire regions," he said, "where people live away from all civilization and in ignorance and absolute poverty. One of the greatest preoccupations of my government will be to aid these people and especially the Indian population."

For the benefit of workers he promised increased state intervention in the country's economy, including improvement in the agricultural system to increase production and reorganization of industry and the means of distribution.

He promised that the tarif policy would be "rationalized" for the purpose of stimulating both exports and imports. Discussing international relations, Cardenas said Mexico would continue the policy of "cordiality and good understanding." He added that the nation was desirous of being understood as a "young nation which is seeking to wipe out the last traces of the régime of exploitation and is fixing the bases of a more just and more humane sociology."

Succeeds Rodriquez.

The new executive, swept into power in the overwhelming victory of the national revolutionary [government] party at the last elections, succeeds Abelardo Rodriguez. He will take over active duties as president at one minute after midnight.

A dark business suit was Cardenas' choice for the inaugural ceremony, in line with the party's emphasis on simplicity. The special ambassadors of 20 nations here for the ceremony consequently appeared in morning coats and silk hats instead of the customary more gaudy garb. Ambassador Josephus Daniels represented the United States.

Peru's Army Quells Revolt; Rebels Driven Into the Hills

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 30.—The Peruvian government today announced it had liquidated the nation's first revolutionary outbreak since President Benavides assumed power on April 30, 1933. After stamping out a plot in Lima Sunday, government forces recaptured in successives skirmishes the hill town of Huancayo, La Mejorada junction, and Huancavelica. The remaining rebels have been driven into the hills. Army planes are in pursuit.

DICTATORSHIP IN SPAIN IS VISIONED; AID SEES EX-KING

Royalist Slips Into Rome Secretly.

EX-KING ALFONSO.

ROME, Nov. 30.—(AP)—A secret conference between former King Alfonso of Spain and his erstwhile minister of interior had served today to raise to fever pitch Italians' discussion of the possibility of dictatorship in Spain.

Antonio Goicoechea, minister of interior under the monarchist premier, Antonio Maura, slipped into Rome from Barcelona by airplane Monday.

After conferring with Alfonso at Villa Ruffo here he returned as secretly as he had come.

Fascists Back Dictatorship.

Italy's Fascists, many of whom have expressed the feeling that dictatorship in Spain is the only way to avert complete chaos, and the four groups of Spaniards here—the exiled monarchists, the leftist intellectuals, the Spanish clerics, and the diplomats—assigned considerable importance to Goicoochea's visit.

It was recalled in diplomatic circles here that Goicochea was one Spanish deputy always fervently loyal to the monarchy, and it was considered probable he made the flying trip to get Alfonso's approval for out-and-out restoration of the monarchist party.

What would be the former ruler's reaction to this proposal, it made, was not known.

Alfonso Eyes Situation.

It has been hinted Alfonso is keeping interested eyes on the political situation in Spain. He has said, however, he does not consider the time ripe for any personal political gesture or declaration.

His intimate retainers also maintain more than casual interest in the Madrid government. The name most frequently mentioned in monarchical circles in connection with possible dictatorship is that of José Maria Gil Robles, young Catholic leader.

The efforts of José Primo de Rivera, son of the late dictator under Alfonso, to spread Fascism in Spain are hailed by monarchist circles.

RUSSIA RAISES WORKERS' PAY AS FOOD PRICES RISE

MOSCOW, Nov. 30.—(AP)—A blanket 10 per cent increase in wages throughout the Soviet Union to compensate for increased living costs for workers was announced today by V. M. Molotov, president of the people's commissars.

The increase in food costs will be in effect Jan. 1 with the elimination of bread cards whereby workers are supplied with bread at prices under the open market rate.

President Molotov's announcement hailed the abolition of the double prices for bread and grain as the "greatest forward step made under the second five year plan," and said it would greatly strengthen the ruble.

The new prices for bread will vary. They were announced as lowest in central Asia and highest in Siberia.

The price of black bread, which is the standard ration, is now 27 kopecs [nominally 13½ cents] a pound if purchased on a worker's card. After the cards are done away with Jan. 1, it will be 45 kopecs [nominally 22½ cents] a pound.

U. S. AGENTS TOO QUICK ON TRIGGER, LAWYERS CHARGE

Oppose 'Informal Killing' of Public Enemies.

Members of the Illinois Bar association, meeting yesterday at the Palmer house, condemned the practice of shooting down public enemies instead of arresting them.

Attorney Guy McGaughey, chairman of the section on criminal law, held the killing of such men as John Dillinger, Pretty Boy Floyd, and Baby Face Nelson a dangerous practice "except in extreme cases."

"A police officer should seek the ends of justice rather than the end of a criminal," he said. "It is better to convict such men as Dillinger, Floyd, and Nelson than it is to kill them. It has a more corrective effect on the criminal element."

Oppose Shoot to Kill Policy.

Attorney William Scott Stewart, who has defended a number of notorious criminals, expressed disapproval of the shoot to kill policy, charged that the government is usurping the powers of local police, and criticized Attorney General Homer Cummings as "meddling with affairs outside his province."

Among the clients defended by Attorney Stewart were Roger Touhy and three other members of the Touhy gang, who are serving ninety-nine years in prison for the kidnaping of John Factor; Dr. Amante Rongetti, tried on numerous occasions on charges of abortion, and Carl Wanderer, hanged for shooting his wife and "a ragged stranger" in a fake holdup.

"Time for Revulsion."

"There seems to be an epidemic of this sort of thing," Attorney Stewart said in his talk. "The public is being regaled every few days with pictures on the front page of the newspapers of criminals who have been shot down by the federal agents.

"It is all very fine, this crying that 'they always get their man,' but there is another side to that sort of thing and its about time the revulsion set in."

Meeting again last night, the board of governors unanimously approved the draft of a bill providing for publication by the state of statute books and appointment by the governor of an official compilator to serve a six year term.

The board also heard and approved the report of Gen. John V. Clinnin, chosen last August as chairman of the American citizenship section.

Proposal that the citizenship section be divided into six sub-committees to contact courts, schools, colleges, labor and industrial groups, civic and patriotic clubs and all leading societies and organizations to further the work under way, also was approved.

Approval of sub-committee divisions in the association's section on Criminal Law and Enforcement also was given by the board of governors.

Women on County Board Balk Plan to Void Clark's Pay Slash

Attending their last meeting as members of the county board, Miss Amelia Sears, Mrs. Grace Fleming, and Mrs. Marie Plumb went into action yesterday afternoon. They blocked an effort to exempt John S. Clark, former alderman, who on Monday will take office as county assessor, from the 15 per cent salary cut given other county officials. Such an exemption, they charged, would have canceled part of their economy program.

The indignation of the three women, dubbed "Clara, Lu, and Em" by eleven men commissioners on the board, was aroused when Commissioner Maurice Kavanagh made a motion to fix the annual pay check of Clark at $14,999, only $1 less than the $15,000 statutory maximum.

Committee Fixes Salaries.

The board, sitting as the finance committee in the morning, had voted to exercise its right to determine the salaries which should be paid during the next four years to the new board, the new members of the tax board of appeals, and the new assessor, all elected on Nov. 6. The commissioners agreed that in fixing these salaries they should be guided by the motives of economy which led to salary cuts during the last four years.

In the committee meeting they decided that the incoming commissioners each should receive $6,500 a year in 1935 and 1936, with an increase to the normal salary of $7,500 for 1937 and 1938. The two appeals board members were each alloted $9,000 a year for 1935 and 1936, with an increase of $1,000 each for 1937 and 1938. The assessor's annual salary was fixed at $13,000 for 1935 and 1936, and at $14,500 for the last two years of his term.

Here the Trouble Starts.

Salaries for the incoming commissioners and for the appeals board members were passed at the afternoon meeting of the board without a dissenting voice. Then Commissioner Kavanagh dropped his little bombshell.

"It's a travesty, just one dollar less than the maximum," sputtered Miss Sears.

"An outrage, a discrimination against the rest of the office holders who are getting the cut," interjected Mrs. Fleming.

"I think we should rescind all the salary cuts if we give Mr. Clark a special dispensation," called Mrs. Plumb.

"I have the deepest friendship for Mr. Clark," resumed Mrs. Fleming, jumping to her feet, "but I can't vote for this. Maurice [turning to Kavanagh], why do you make this motion now after letting us fix this cut in the committee meeting?"

Mr. Kavanagh "Was Asked."

"I was asked to make that motion," replied Commissioner Kavanagh with dignity and some defiance.

Commissioner George Miller stilled the clamor by proposing a new motion which would allow the board to vote on the recommendation for Clark's salary cuts as made in committee. His motion was accepted and Deputy County Controler Michael J. O'Connor read the roll call.

The committee's recommendation of the reductions was approved by a vote of 11 to 4. Commissioner Kavanagh voted in favor of the salary cuts for Clark and fled before he could be questioned concerning the motion he had been "requested to make."

The four commissioners who voted against the reductions were Dan Ryan, Frank J. Kasper, Homer Byrd, and Miss Mary McEnerney.

Although the incoming board is spoken of as a "new" one, it will include several of the present members. These are Kavanagh, Ryan, Miss McEnerney, Miller, John E. Traeger, Peter M. Kelly, and William Busse.

CRUSADERS BEGIN DRIVE TO CLARIFY NATIONAL ISSUES

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Expansion of a public enlightenment program by the Crusaders was announced yesterday by Fred G. Clark of Mentor, O., commander in chief of the organization.

In the battle against national prohibition the Crusaders formed a militant instrumentality in the campaign which led to repeal of the 18th amendment. Now the organization has turned to the service of clarifying national issues with the aim of preserving American democratic institutions and of obtaining, through constructive methods, peace and prosperity for all.

National headquarters are to be at 332 South Michigan avenue. A revised board of trustees, which will aid in directing the increased activities, includes among others the following:

Seymour Wheeler, Ralph A. Bard, E. L. Ryerson Jr., and R. Douglas Stuart of Chicago; James F. Bell, Minneapolis; L. W. Harris, San Francisco; Walter C. Cole, Detroit; J. Goodwin Hall, Fort Worth, Tex.; Enos Curtin and William D. Carr of New York, and Mr. Clark.

LAKE CO. JUDGE UPHOLDS ALFORD IN VOTE CONTEST

Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady, a Republican, yesterday ordered, at Waukegan, that the Lake county canvassing board issue a certificate of election as county clerk to Russ Alford, Democratic nominee in the election of Nov. 6. The decision reverses the finding of the board that Lew A. Hendee, incumbent Republican, was elected.

Hendee, who was a members of the canvassing board, with Justices of the Peace Henry Wallenwein and Michael J. Haney, also Republicans, as his associates, announced an appeal. Judge Dady granted him twenty days in which to post an appeal bond and sixty days in which to file a bill of exceptions.

Judge Dady declared that the vote had not been properly abstracted in two precincts, and that if it had been made properly by the board Alford would have been declared elected by 147 votes instead of defeated by exactly the same margin.

Unofficial returns had shown Alford victor by 190 votes. In the two precincts Hendee's gain during the official count was 337. The decision of Judge Dady takes away 294 votes, net, from the incumbent and gives them to Hendee.

COURT RESERVES MARY PICKFORD CASE DECISION

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson reserved decision today on the motion by Arthur F. Driscoll, attorney for Mary Pickford, the actress, for an order prohibiting Edward Hemmer from presenting evidence containing allegedly scandalous matter to the court in support of his suit for $250,000 "for services rendered Miss Pickford as her manager and adviser from 1913 to 1920."

Mr. Driscoll said that Mr. Hemmer had failed in his latest amended bill of complaint to give sufficient particulars to enable the defense to prepare to meet the issues in court.

Mr. Hemmer, who was present in court today, charges a breach of contract and his bill, amended on the order of the court, was presented to Judge Patterson.

The latest bill, which is largely repetitious, sets forth that his management and handling of Miss Pickford from her introduction to the late David Belasco in 1913 to her affiliation with the National Pictures corporation in 1918, had raised her earnings from less than $150 a week to over a million dollars a year.

MISS PICKFORD IN CHICAGO.

Mary Pickford arrived in Chicago from New York City last evening and went to the Blackstone hotel. She informed newspaper men that she was stopping only for the night and that today she would leave on the Chief, over the Santa Fe, for Pickfair in Beverly Hills, Cal. "I'm going home," said she. "I have nothing to say about Mr. Fairbanks or divorce."

ARREST CAPTAIN AND ENGINEER OF MORRO CASTLE

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—In the first criminal action growing out of the burning of the Ward liner Morro Castle the government caused today the arrest of William F. Warms, acting captain, and Eben Starr Abbott, chief engineer.

The two officers were accused of "misconduct, negligence, and inattention to duty," resulting in loss of life, a crime punishable by a maximum jail sentence of ten years and a fine of $10,000.

They were placed under arrest by a deputy United States marshal, who found them on the fourth floor of the federal building pacing the corridor outside the room where a grand jury was investigating the disaster.

IMPROVED PASSENGER SERVICE.

With this issue of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the familiar "Speed Up Railroad Passenger Service" plank in our Platform for Chicago will disappear from the masthead, principally because it appears to have accomplished its purpose. Since its initial appearance we have had the pleasure of announcing improved service to every point of the compass. Better still, we are informed that there will be some further radical changes during the winter, and particularly in the early spring, as new type trains embodying several modern ideas come into service. Continuation of this exhortation might carry with it the implication of a nagging attitude.

In the meantime, we might suggest to the public that in future before deciding to employ some other means of transport they consult the latest railway timetable. It might reasonably carry some more convenient service than the familiar "six-thirty" or "nine-ten." At the same time, we wish to remind the railways that we reserve the right to continue criticism if such may be necessary in the public interest, or, on the other hand, to acknowledge outstanding improvements as they may appear. Mr. Eastman coined the phrase "What the railways need is a rejuvenation." We feel that in passenger service at least the railways are abandoning the static condition that was the basis for that remark.

SPEAKING OF SHOWS.

There are, for the purposes of this editorial, two kinds of people in Chicago. There are those who regard a stock show as something not to be missed and those who don't give a hoot.

Among those who don't give a hoot are many who have never attended an International. It is to them that this editorial is addressed. They don't know what they are missing and should be told. It is not a civic duty to attend the stock show, but it is a privilege, and to most men, women, and children an experience which is not forgotten. The show is as instructive as were the motor company exhibits at the World's Fair. It is as fascinating as a zoo to any one interested in animals. The prize animals themselves are as beautiful as a Greek frieze. This sounds like an exaggeration, but it happens to be the literal truth.

The show will serve as a tonic to any one who has come to think that the country is on the skids because of what the politicians are doing to it. Look at the breeders and stockmen who have brought their animals to Chicago for the show and have your faith in the future of your country renewed. These men are honest, shrewd, and competent. Nobody is going to treat them like kulaks and get away with it. Nobody is going to succeed in impoverishing a nation which breeds such men.

COUNTRYSIDE TAVERNS.

People learn to take a sherif or any other law enforcer more for what he does three months after his election than for what he says three months before, but they should be always willing to give him his due if what he does is what he says he will.

Sherif Elect John Toman says his eye will be on the country taverns and that he hopes to have the coöperation of the proprietors of the better ones in holding down the conduct of the other kind. He says that he is particularly opposed to the use of young girls as so-called hostesses to help customers with their drinking. That is a stand for public decency.

An alert sherif can keep the countryside from developing social nuisances, resorts of ill reputation, and places from which disorders and crimes flow. The country regions have been opened up for the use of the disorderly by modern transportation, and in many cases, unless the sherif's office draws the line, scandal results.

THE CHICKEN CROSSES THE STREET.

The new system of lights on Michigan avenue appears to be successful in getting the automobile down the street, but remains a problem for pedestrians trying to cross it at certain points where there is no straightaway intersecting traffic. At these points, as the pedestrian knows, he takes half the street in one jump and waits for another light to get him the rest of the way across. In winter conditions the passage will be a disagreeable one, if not dangerous. The conflict of interests is hard of solution, for what is a benefit to the movement of cars is a disadvantage to the person on foot.

It would seem to be unfortunate to give up what is a good system for so many motorists because it is unsuited for a much smaller number of pedestrians. It might be possible at the crossings in question to build an overhead ramp for pedestrian use. It is known that people do not like to go up or down to avoid obstacles. They don't like stairs and will avoid them wherever they can. A well graded ramp is not so much opposed by the instinct against breaking the walk with a climb up or down, and it might be possible to give the pedestrians a crossover from which they would not shy and which would not be undecorative.

Some day the city may build itself double-decked streets or elevated sidewalks, but for the present purpose in this particular problem it might not be impractical to provide enough elevated crossings to remove the only objection to the improvement in trafic which has been made in Michigan avenue.

LORD ASHLEY GETS A DIVORCE.

Macaulay says of William Mountford that of all the actors on the English stage during the time of William and Mary he was the most graceful, having every physical qualification for his calling, "a noble figure, a handsome face, a melodious voice. It was not easy to say whether he succeeded better in heroic or in ludicrous parts. He was allowed to be both the best Alexander and the best Sir Courtly Nice that ever trod the boards."

His fate was linked with the fame of Anne Bracegirdle, the most fascinating actress of the time. "She seems to have been a cold, vain, and interested coquette, who perfectly understood how much the influence of her charms was increased by the fame of a severity which cost her nothing, and who could venture to flirt with a succession of admirers, in the just confidence that no flame which she might kindle in them would thaw her own ice."

Among these admirers was a Capt. Hill, in whose profligacy a young nobleman, Lord Mohun, was associated. Hill thought that the actor Mountford was the obstacle in his way and he and Mohun in their cups concluded that the course to pursue was to stab the villain to the heart. Their first exploit was to lie in wait with some soldiers, in Drury lane, for the lady. They seized her, but at her screams the neighborhood arose and rescued her.

The two profligates then, swearing vengeance, went to the street in which Mountford had his dwelling, to lie in wait for the actor, and, in spite of all that could be done by the watch to dissuade them and of messengers to warn Mountford, they encountered him and Hill ran him through the body and fled. The grand jury of Middlesex found a bill of murder against them both and, although Hill escaped, Mohun was taken. His mother, at the feet of William, pleaded for him, but the king was just and cold. "I shall leave it to the law."

Mohun was a peer. Parliament was sitting and he had what proved to be the advantage of coming for trial before the whole body of the peerage. In spite of the evidence, the peers by a vote of 69 to 14 acquitted the noble lord. As one nobleman stated the case, "After all, the fellow is but a player, and players are rogues."

A packed courtroom in Sir Boyd Merriman's court, Wednesday in London, was disappointed because the proceedings in the hearing of Lord Ashley's petition for a divorce from his wife, the former Sylvia Hawkes, lasted only ten minutes, whereupon a decree nisi was granted. The co-respondent named in the case needs no introduction to a world audience. He was Douglas Fairbanks, of whom it once could be said that of all the actors of the American screen he was easily the most graceful, having every physical qualification for his calling, a noble figure, a handsome face, a melodious voice.

The change in modes and values may be worth a note. Certainly no one would remark of Mr Fairbanks that, after all, the fellow was but a player. To be such a player as he has been has meant fame eclipsing that of the apparently debased nobility, and wealth, distinction, and entrée to many a noble drawing room. The lord, who seems to have proved that he lost the affections of his wife, must go to the divorce court, whereas Mohun could resort, for nothing more than a friend's sake, to the sword and get his acquittance from his peers.

In "Scaramouche," it will be recalled, the men actors of the vagabond players were required to stand aside in the shadows and accept the situation in which the gay young noblemen paid court to the ladies of the troupe. All that has been changed.

Editorial of the Day

EASY MONEY.

[Rock Island Argus.]

While it is good news that work on the nine foot channel project will mean the employment by the United States engineers of approximately 4,000 people during the winter months, and that the employment of 200 more men at the Rock Island arsenal plant is assured by the release of $300,000 of public works money, Rock Island people cannot view with equanimity the threatened possibility of the permanent removal of the army engineers from Rock Island. The principal units of the Rock Island district office of the engineers are to be housed in the clock tower building of the arsenal plant beginning about Dec. 10.

We can understand the desire of Maj. Wheeler and his associates to have the engineers' staf housed under one roof, but we cannot concede that such removal should be otherwise than temporary. The Rock Island Chamber of Commerce, in addition to other civic bodies, supported by Congressman Chester Thompson, is at work on a project involving the construction by the federal government on the river front on land between 17th and 20th streets, owned by the city, of a building designed to be the permanent home of the army engineers of the Rock Island district. The engineers have maintained district headquarters here for more than sixty years. They have long been identified with this community, a relation that should not be severed under any circumstances.

Rock Island is certainly entitled to a new and ample federal building for the use of the engineers. Other communities have obtained, apparently without difficulty, grants of funds for federal buildings. Davenport has a new postoffice building and Moline is about to begin work on a similar structure. Rock Island is abundantly justified in seeking an appropriation for a federal building, in view of the need to provide housing for the army engineers. The city would donate the land, thus relieving the federal government of that expense. Congressman Thompson is pledged to make every effort within his power to secure a federal appropriation upon his return to Washington.

Cities which have far less reason for applying for new postoffices and federal structures have had their applications favorably acted upon. The argument for an army engineers' building to be erected here at government expense is very strong. Our civic associations, and our people as a whole, should give their hearty support to the federal building project and should not rest until their efforts are crowned with success.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE ENGLISH were hysterical over the wedding of Prince George and Marina. There are three things over which the English get hysterical: a horse race, a cricket game, and a royal wedding. And they run quite a high temperature when arguing about the superiority of their dogs. But on the battlefield they will stand absolutely indifferent under a storm of shot and shell. And if they are called on to express an opinion regarding their relentless foemen about all they will say is: "Silly blighters! They should jolly well stop their nonsense and go home." Yes, say what you will, the English are hard to understand.

BUT, ANYHOW, in all the columns and columns in the newspapers anent the wedding it was nice to read after the descriptions of the gowns and jewels of the gorgeous guests, the bridal party, and royal relatives that the bridegroom is the fourth son of King George. For a while I thought they weren't going to mention him at all.

I READ EVERYTHING about the wedding and I can't find out whether the bridegroom was actually present in the abbey during the ceremony or not. I think he was, but I'm not sure. It may have been that, just at the place where it was necessary, the archbishop called up the bridegroom and asked him the momentous question whether he took Marina to be his wife to love, cherish, and protect, etc., etc., and the prince said, "Oh, quite," or "Rawther," or "Right you are, old beeswax," and the thing was done.

THE PAINTER.

Look! the rose shades of the dawn,
Green of grass just rained upon,
Blue of water, brown of hills,
Yellow of shy daffodils,
Gray of fog—each color is
In that pencil point of his.

Wait! his magic is not done.
Warmth is in this rising sun.
Breathe the smell of this washed grass—
How it yields to feet that pass!
Watch these breakers swell and strain,
Splitting into foam again.
On these hills the young winds race,
Free and frisky, into space.
Gayly, in their garden-beds,
These bright blossoms arch their heads.
Cool, these dripping fingers press
Gently with the fog's caress.

Ah, what tools did he reach for?
Words—words—nothing more.

FERRY ADAMS.

THE NEWS FROM WASHINGTON says that the President "is expected to ask from 8 to 10 billion from the next congress without suggesting additional taxes." But won't asking for 8 or 10 billion be a sort of polite hint in itself?

TWO HITCH-HIKERS who thumbed a ride with a soft hearted and much softer headed motorist out west made him take off his duds and then beat him up and pitched him down the mountain, where he happened to land safely in a snow bank and was finally rescued. And after throwing the man from the car the thumb wrigglers stole the car, the man's clothes, his suitcase, two suits of clothes, a pair of pale pink pajamas, and his toothbrush. Tut, tut! Some day these hitch-hikers are are going to go too far.

AND A CIRCULAR LETTER from a steamship company informs me that if I hurry I can engage a suite on B deck for an around the world cruise for only eight thousand dollars. Three rousing cheers! If there are people who can pay eight thousand dollars for a suite on B deck for an around the world cruise then the depression is over at last.

OUT IN THE DESERT STRETCHES between the Rockies and California there are grim signs along the road here and there reading: "Forty-five Miles to Next Radiator Water" or "Fifty Miles to Next Drinking Water." Nothing, only how it would brighten up the scenery if the highway commissioners would only put up signs like that on our roads, both in city and country. And what a help it would be. "Five Blocks to Next Cocktail"; "Two Miles and Three-quarters to Next Beer Joint"; One Mile and a Half to Next Hot Dog Stand"; "Five Miles to Next Hootch Joint." Goodness! how we would step on the gas when such cheerful slogans as those met our eager eyes!

BRUMAL.

There's gayety in sleigh bells,
There's peace in drifted snow
That shrouds the flowers of summer
That spring shall teach to blow.
Death spreads not his dour cover
As fits the hopeless dead,
For winter only soothes to sleep
The seed within its bed.
The spark that life enkindles
Yet lives beneath the snow,
But joy shall know the rising
Of that lies hid below.
The white year of the winter
Shall sparkle with delight
And merry voices ring across
The beauty of its night.
On hill a crown of glory,
In vale a pallet white,
Encompassing with beauty
The glorious winter night.

SECOND DAY AFTER THANKSGIVING! I hate the second day after Thanksgiving. That means that for dinner I'll get Emincé of Turkey with Sauce Mornay. But it doesn't fool me a bit—turkey hash, that's what it is—and I'd rather have a couple of hot dogs with mustard on rye.

NO MAN CAN HARNESS TIME.

ATTEMPTS have been made for centuries to find some means of postponing old age. Ponce de Leon searched for the fountain of youth, and the alchemists sought not only for the magic formula that would lead to the compounding of gold, but one that would supply also the elixir of life.

At birth there is stored within the infant's body those vital forces that, barring accidents, will measure reasonably closely the length of life. We say that such and such a person has an excellent constitution. We mean that there is a history of longevity in the family and that the individual is able to withstand the onslaughts of ordinary diseases.

We must not look upon old age as a disease. It is just as natural as is growth and the development of full maturity. Nevertheless, humans beings shun the obvious fact that some day they will become old and that death of the body is a necessary fulfilment of the laws of life. To the young the old appear as another race, to be pitied, perhaps, but still a group with which they have little or nothing to do. Only when middle age is reached and the individual begins to form a personal philosophy of life are more than fleeting thoughts given to the possibility that there will come a period of older if not old age.

As the body matures certain changes occur. The pulse rate of 120 at birth falls to 70, and in the later years to 60. As age advances there is usually a slowly progressive increase in the blood pressure and the rate of rise may continue until very old age, when a drop occurs. Dullness of hearing usually begins about the sixty-fifth year and the memory becomes impaired. Mental reactions may show perceptible change even before this age. Beyond the threescore period the brain actually becomes smaller, more lime is deposited in the bones, the ligaments stiffen and harden, muscles atrophy, and the skin becomes more dry and less elastic. Lymphatic tissue all over the body is decreased in amount, while bronchial secretions are increased. The heart and all the glandular structures show signs of atrophy. There is an actual lessening of height due to bowing of the shoulders.

Premature old age must be fought with all the powers of medical science. Toxins from any source circulating in the blood may advance the decay of body functions a decade or more. Degenerative processes must be arrested through the elimination of infections of all sorts, and the time to accomplish this is promptly upon the appearance and recognition of symptoms.

Much can be done in postponing old age breaks, mental as well as physical, by careful attention to body hygiene. Middle age must not attempt to vie with youth. It is not an exhibition of fussiness or cantankerousness to give attention to a balanced ration. Exercise is of the greatest importance, and walking in the open air is for most persons the ideal type. Water drinking must not be carried to excess, particularly after the age of 60, as all water taken into the body must pass through the heart and be excreted by lungs, skin, and kidneys. The weight of the body must be watched—ten pounds of unnecessary weight means that the heart is doing extra work and that the muscles and bones are carrying an added load.

Emotional control must be preserved through mental activity of some sort. There are too many breaks following retirement from active business life. Hobbies are temperament, disposition, and even life savers.

Life's crowning achievement is the ability to grow old gracefully, to exhibit greater qualities of unselfishness, and to go down the western slope of life beloved by all. When the portrait of old age symbolizes greed, crabbiness, and fault finding every one shudders at the picture. The happiness that can be added to the world is incalculable if older persons will endeavor to avoid self-pity. We are all willing to become like "The Old Gentleman of the Black Stock" of Thomas Nelson Page.

CLOSELY RELATED.

Miss L. B. writes:

1. Is there any connection between hives and asthma?
2. Is hives always caused by diet?
3. Is it possible that a cat on couches and chairs could cause hives?

REPLY.

1. Yes. They are closely related and may come from the same cause.
2. No.
3. Yes. Some individuals are susceptible to fur protein such as cat or dog fur or horse hair.

YELLOW TEETH.

J. H. H. writes: What is the cause of yellow teeth?

REPLY.

As a person grows older the teeth have a tendency to discolor, much like old ivory. Various types of food and tobacco are factors.

SIGHING.

A Reader writes: I often get shortness of breath. By that I mean I can't breathe naturally, but have to take a deep breath, something like a sigh, in order to feel comfortable.

REPLY.

The symptom you describe probably has little significance. A lot of people are sighing these days. On the other hand, the symptom may have some relation to systemic disease involving the heart, kidneys or other organs. If the condition continues you should have a careful physical examination.

EARACHE.

Mrs. M. B. writes: For the last 25 years I have been bothered every winter with earache. It gathers, runs, and gets well in a few weeks. However, last winter it took a longer time to heal, and now for the past four months it has been bothering me.

REPLY.

"Running ear" is a condition that should not be neglected. You may harbor a chronic mastoid infection. Your hearing is in danger and serious results occasionally occur because the infection is inclined to spread to adjacent structures. For example, large blood channels and the coverings of the brain are not far away. A skilled ear specialist should be sought.

FIRE DEPARTMENT EXAMINATION.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—[Friend of the People.]—Almost two years ago I filed application for employment with the city fire department and as yet there has been no eligible list posted. At the time of the stockyards fire it was stated that the department was 10 per cent undermanned. If this is true why has the list not been posted, and when will it be posted? G. B.

The results of the last examination held for fireman [fire department] have not yet been posted. The last eligible list for this position posted, however, is still in force.

With reference to the filling of vacancies I wish to call your attention to a provision of the appropriation bill, which provides that "In case of any vacancy in any position herein appropriated for, the head of the department in which such vacancy occurs shall not be required to fill such position if in his judgment and discretion there is no necessity therefor."

JAMES S. OSBORNE,
Secretary, Civil Service Commission.

JUDGMENT NOTE.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. How long does a judgment stand good in a [2] foreclosure sale? I had a deficiency decree of $600 and the party I foreclosed on remained in the property and paid rent for ten months, amounting to $250. 3. Can I collect the rest of my deficiency decree? 4. How many years does a judgment stand good? Is there any difference in what kind of a court judgment you have? B. A. B.

1. The limitation period for suit on the note is ten years from the maturity date. It is not clear whether this is the question that you intend to ask.
2. We do not understand what the foreclosure sale has to do with the note.
3. Yes, if you can find sufficient assets or income.
4. For twenty years, but at the end of seven years new proceedings would be necessary in order to preserve your lien or place you in a position to enforce the judgment.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LICENSE NECESSARY.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Being unable to obtain permanent employment and having a good knowledge of accounting, I was advised to contact small bookkeeping jobs and print cards reading: "Bookkeeping service for firms not employing bookkeeper; books kept on part time basis." I was made to understand that in Illinois a public accountant's license is necessary. I am a married man 48 years old and do not have a high school education, so can't apply for P. A. license. I do not sign any of the statements I prepare for my clients; all I do is write up the books and prepare in pencil monthly financial statements. I do not represent myself as an auditor, so will appreciate your advice whether I am legally permitted to pursue such bookkeeping work. R. C. W.

In our opinion you would need the license in order to do this work.

LEGALITY OF MARRIAGE.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is the marriage of a 19 year old couple legal if the young man gave his age as 21 when obtaining the license, because he was not accompanied by one of his parents? 2. After what length of time is the marriage no longer subject to annulment? M. J.

1. In our opinion the marriage is valid, although the man is subject to prosecution for giving a false answer. It might, however, be possible to find a judge who would enter an annulment decree if all of the parties so desire.
2. In our opinion it is not technically subject to annulment now. We cannot advise further without knowing the facts on which your question arises.

THE BONUS COMPROMISE.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—The national administration has apparently become greatly perturbed over the growing sentiment in congress in favor of the immediate cash payment of the so-called soldiers' bonus. Senator Harrison [Dem., Miss.], chairman of the senate finance committee, after a recent conference with President Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga., has now made known a proposal to stop the full bonus rush. The proposal is to pay the bonus only to the needy, thereby cutting the relief rolls by something approaching the amount paid to these veterans.

The American Legion at the 16th national convention in Miami, Fla., last October adopted by a roll call vote of 987 to 183 immediate payment of the adjusted compensation certificates in cash. It therefore does not appear likely that the American Legion is going to accept the compromise offered by the administration. Since the government is spending large sums of money for the purpose of hastening recovery, the immediate payment of this so-called bonus would provide relief for those who are in dire need and distress and would increase the purchasing power of millions throughout the nation.

After all, it is not a bonus but an acknowledged debt of the government which should now be paid, with cancelation of interest accrued, to all our world war veterans without exception.

WILLIAM J. FLEMING.

THE FUTURE OF THE LAKE FRONT.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Mr. Dresser, the associate director of the Federal Housing administration in the Chicago area, has frankly admitted that the proposed cheap housing project on the near south side would wreck any and all hopes that the property owners along the lake may have had for that region. He conceded that the federally subsidized cheap tenements with their pauper tenants would eventually reach the lake and drive out the present owners who have paid a lion's share of the millions that have been spent in furthering the Chicago plan.

"Some one must suffer," said Mr. Dresser to a delegation from Oakland. By "some one" he meant all the self-respecting and self-sustaining residents of Oakland and Hyde Park. He meant us who have mortgaged our homes in order to pay our share of the thirty-five millions that were levied in special assessments to make the lake shore what it is. And now Mr. Dresser calmly tells us to make way for the government favored paupers. We are the sacrificial lambs [or rather goats] on the altar of the Roosevelt-Ickes-Dresser & Co. philanthropic scheme to turn the Chicago lake front into federally subsidized slums. J. L. DOYLE.

YES.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Our street signs should be large, clean, and readable, especially at night. Will you kindly use the influence of your newspaper in this direction? Many thanks. H. M. ELLIS.

THE SECOND CENTURY.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—The celebration of Chicago's first centennial is over. On to the next century of progress.

Among the most needed improvements are the completion of the final links in the lake front development by the erection of the outer drive bridge and the twin bridges at Randolph street and Roosevelt road. Then there is the extension of Congress street to the west side with the proper landscaping of the proposed site for Chicago's future civic center, the widening and doubledecking of Market street to meet the Congress street extension at the river, and a new mart and café drive on the north bank of the river.

There is a great lack of open public squares within the congested areas of Chicago. The provision for a number of these carefully tended open parks or squares in certain sections near the heart of the city would also enhance its attractiveness. One of these squares might be formed on the block bounded by Clark, Dearborn, and Illinois streets, and Austin avenue, the former site of the county jail and courthouse, and designated as Hamilton square. The renaming of Clark street, north to Diversey, to Broadway would also seem in keeping with the further advance of our city.

The beginning of a speedy and efficient subway system should also be in evidence within the next few years. It is true that our elevated service is better than that of other cities, but Chicago nevertheless needs a subway for regular and frequent express trafic to and from the north side and other parts of the city not covered by the elevated system. R. W. DANON.

LEGION PARK.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Perhaps the Legion does not know about this, or maybe it doesn't care. Along the banks of the north shore channel lies a stretch of wooded land one-half mile long, from Bryn Mawr to Peterson avenue, which was obtained from the sanitary district by the River park commissioners. It was named Legion park, and the Legion dedicated it with pomp and what seemed appreciation on July 4, 1930, and then forgot all about it.

This stretch of natural woodland, one of the few within the limits of Chicago, has afforded many students a first hand study of bird life—some 45 species. The wild flowers and plants have been the joy of many mothers and their children. Pupils and their teachers shared the outdoor study, and now the big park system has given orders to manicure the hand of nature. Fifty-three trees are marked by that ugly bruise for the ax man. More than that, many have already fallen—elms, oaks, maples, lindens, thorn apples, etc. Saplings are run down by the heavy trucks which dump ashes, tin cans, condemned paving, and rubbish to make level the rolling naturalness of the woodland. The bird life will go and the wild flowers, too. Many have protested without avail. Does the Legion know or doesn't it care?

Georgian Scene Is Given Perfect Recording Here

Swinnerton Pens Splendid Critical Work.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Georgian Scene," by Frank Swinnerton. [Farrar & Rinehart.]
"Author Hunting," by Grant Richards. [Coward-McCann.]

NOW and again—but rarely—there is a book which so exactly fulfills its purpose that it seems exactly what the doctor ordered. Such a book is Frank Swinnerton's "The Georgian Scene." From almost every point of view, it seems to me, it is satisfying.

First of all there has never been before this any panoramic picture of English literature since the great Victorians. There have been hundreds—perhaps thousands—of books about individuals of the period [D. H. Lawrence alone has inspired shelves worth]. There have been books about literary movements. There have been books about the various influences exerted on literature by the war, psychoanalysis, etc., and by the work of individual writers.

But there has never been any comprehensive picture of the contemporary period which is, by the very fact of its contemporaneousness, more interesting to most readers than any other period in English literature. Mr. Swinnerton has been close enough to the writing and the publishing of books during the entire period [he is fifty years old] to know not only what has been done but most of the people who have done it, and he is a critic with that rare combination of critical standards, utter honesty and human kindliness.

"The Georgian Scene" is, besides a panorama, a critical examination of the books of the period and a human evaluation of their authors. And in that function, too, it seems to me, Mr. Swinnerton has done exactly what many of us had hoped some one would one day do. He has written critically for those in the know and those out of it at the same time. His criticisms, although so simple that any one who had never heard of the author or the work he is discussing can understand them, are full of such acumen and such genuine intelligence that those who have read the books he mentions will find in his pages stimulation. For those who haven't there is, as well, information. The way he combines an almost primerlike statement and a deep critical surgery is remarkable.

The same thing is true of his brief biographical interpretations of the men and women whom he has chosen as the leading protagonists of their period [and in that choice he is conventionally right]. To the person who knows nothing of Bernard Shaw, or H. G. Wells, or James Joyce, or Aldous Huxley, or Edgar Wallace, or any of the varied literary prize packages of the era, Mr. Swinnerton tells just enough to make the man comprehensible as the author.

To the person who has read every line of their autobiographies and their published letters, Frank Swinnerton epitomizes brilliantly and with rare fidelity the facts as they are known. He never throws them out of perspective to make a point which he wishes to make, as many of the so-called modern biographers have been known to do. He can—and does—find fact to illustrate his point, for he feels that a man's life and his work are not to be divorced. Since Mr. Swinnerton has known a great many of the men and women whose work he discusses and a few of them intimately, he can illumine facts by observation.

Critically and biographically, it seems to me, "The Georgian Scene" is what all of us have wanted for some time to have in existence. It might possibly have been done, with as much meticulous skill as Mr. Swinnerton has done it, by others. But I doubt if any one else could have done it with the humor which overlays the book. And that is another of its charms. It is written so delightfully that any one can have pleasure in reading it . . . and that makes the book very "seductive," as Gertrude Stein labeled the Democrats in that famous letter we printed a couple of weeks ago that she wrote to Bernard Fay.

Any book of critical estimates is bound to arouse dissension from those who do not agree with its author about individual writers. Mr. Swinnerton's evaluations will not please every one, and that, again, is a point in the favor of "The Georgian Scene," for in it he states unequivocally his personal likes and dislikes, his critical standards, his reasons for and against, admits that his findings are prejudiced, cleverly tells enough of the findings of others to make it impossible to dismiss him as bigoted and, just as cleverly, not enough to make the book anything but his own. The first chapter, on Henry James, is, to my mind, as keen and as intriguing an exposition of the interrelationship between what a writer is and what he writes as I have read. Others may turn red and green and purple with fury, envy, or passion over each of the chapters, but, after all, isn't that what a critical book is for . . . to incite as well as excite us?

Meanwhile "The Georgian Scene" remains a reference book we can't do without, as well as a volume of entertainment we shouldn't. The same players who make their dramatic entrances and exits in Mr. Swinnerton's "Georgian Scene" go through their parts winning applause or appreciative laughs in Grant Richards' "Author Hunting." Mr. Richards has been a publisher in London since the first day of the year 1897, when as a boy of 26 he set up shop in Covent Garden. He has known all of the literarily great of the Georgian scene. He has been in that most intimate of relations—that which a good publisher has with his authors—with many of them. With Bernard Shaw, for instance, whose plays he published when nobody else could see them, and from whom he received, and publishes here, amusing letters on all sorts of subjects. [Which reminds us of Mr. Swinnerton's amusing paragraph about Shaw which says "Shaw has given his life to the English, wooing them with all the blandishments of insult. . . . Shaw's wooing of Britannia was successful years ago, but he was too modest to believe it. While Britannia waited with reserved amorousness for his embrance, Shaw, like John Tanner, kept on talking. He is still talking. He has never known when to kiss."]

Mr. Richards' memoirs are pleasant, illuminating, intriguing to those who like books and want to like—or dislike—their authors. They are not, it seems to me, more than that.

Write Satires on Authors and Their Publicity

Two English Poets Attack Literary Racket.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.] — Amid the novels and biographies which are filling the last weeks of the London publishing season with their importance it might be easy to miss several productions which are highly illustrative of our literary discontents. We had a few years ago Roy Campbell's "The Georgian," which some found a riming impertinence; more recently Horace Horsnell has used an old manner to tell the story of a literary man's life in the last twenty-five years, and now two more poets have lampooned the literary racket in England.

The poets are Gerald Bullett and Robert Nichols. Both laugh with scorn at a writer [he is not the same writer in both poems], who owes his success to the publicity agent or the wire puller. In Mr. Bullett's case riming couplets are used to amuse us with the tale of a man who attained fame on account of a book which was never written; in Mr. Nichols' case riming couplets are used to destroy a poet who was no poet, but a spiteful cad with a craze for self-advertisment.

Mr. Bullett's is the more kindly and nonsensical picture; Mr. Nichols' the more savage and the more eloquent. The two satiric poems are called, respectively, "The Bubble" [Dent] and "Fisbo" [Heinemann]. The latter is published in an edition limited to one thousand copies.

Mr. Bullett is known as a novelist and journalist. His Wellsian tale of Egg Pandervil, published some years ago by Heinemann, showed that he had a gift for the portrayal of ordinary human beings in a mood of tender archness which made them lovable, and this book, with its sequel, "Nicky, Son of Egg," probably is his best known work. But his range is much wider than a reader of "Egg" would imagine. He has written much for "The Times Literary Supplement," has been a publisher, and is the editor of a notable anthology of lyrics called "The English Galaxy" [Dent].

And now, in this pointed [but very good humored] satiric poem "The Bubble," he has combined wit with an exposure of methods by which the public is led to applaud humbug, and he has done well. "The Bubble" is enjoyable and has quality.

As for Mr. Nichols, those who think of him as being one of our most eloquent romantic poets will find plenty of eloquence in "Fisbo." They may find some bewilderments as well. The poem is a long one, and in spite of every ingenuity "Fisbo" comes at times within range of monotony. But it is doughty work, for Mr. Nichols is never asleep when he has pen in hand, and he shows throughout a lively and vigorous mind.

As for his versification, this, while it sometimes makes one groan, is much more often brilliant in its boldness and skill. The defect of "Fisbo" as satire is that it has more sense than wit. Its strength lies in its range and sanity.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK

A more straightforward, well reasoned detective story would be hard to discover than "Mr. Pinkerton Finds a Body" [Farrar & Rinehart], by David Frome. Within the precincts of Oxford university, Inspector Bull of Scotland Yard reveals a mystery with so many possible solutions that the correct one is lost in a fog. There are an equal number of reasons why the series of murders might take place and, as is hinted at the end, only an Englishman would inevitably put his finger on the right one and understand it. That funny little Mr. Pinkerton messes around putting his foot in it. In this case he is actually arrested for the first of the crimes, but his friend from the Yard turns up to save him and to twist his somewhat maundering observations into valuable clews.

If you like well written, practical stories of crime and detection this one will exactly suit you. Inspector Humphrey Bull is hard working and intelligent with an uncanny eye for essential clews. If you don't know him take this opportunity to get acquainted. Mr. Pinkerton I do not find so convincing, but his author loves him.

The scene, circumstances, and details are interesting, too, and, incidentally, a young Rhodes scholar plays an important part and he talks real and undistorted American. This in itself would prove Mr. Frome a British writer of keen discrimination. Even his American is almost up to date.

Meetings and Lectures

On Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock Vera Brittain, author of "Testament of Youth," will lecture at the Woman's club and University guild of Evanston. The subject of her lecture will be "Should Autobiographies Be Forbidden?"

At 6:45 p. m. on Tuesday at Fullerton hall, Art institute, Algernon Coleman will discuss "Art for Art's Sake: Flaubert."

Under the auspices of Pen and Hammer Michael Gold will lecture on Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the Medical and Dental Arts building. The subject of his lecture will be "The Crisis in Modern Literature."

'Winter Diversions of Gardener' Five Essays on Flowers

"The Winter Diversions of a Gardener," by Richardson Wright [Lippincott] concern ideas about flowers and their homesteads more than the actual blooms and roots. In the past of gardens and gardening Mr. Wright found the material for these five delightful essays.

The one on "Flower-Painting Ladies" grew out of an accidental visit to a London bookshop when he had "really started out for a pub."

The chapter on "Summer Homes" was evolved, Mr. Wright says, "as a by-product from getting up to my neck one winter in medieval and oriental literature. . . . The papers on the Huguenots and on plant transportation are all that remain of an ambition. Among the books I realize now I shall never write is that Gargantuan history of plant exploring. . . . To save myself the bother of writing it I have been content to set down these few notes. There is nothing practical in these pages. . . . These papers have been written for my own amusement," and, one must add, ours.

It is a source of up-to-date information on every subject in the whole range of human knowledge. A priceless gift! What greater thrill than to receive for Christmas the great new Merriam-Webster!

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY
Second Edition

The stupendous task of making a NEW Merriam-Webster has been completed. A new book has been created that is greater even than its famous predecessors. Standards of comparison prove inadequate in describing the new Merriam-Webster, for it sets new standards of completeness and authority. Back of it are one hundred years of experience in making the famous Merriam-Webster series of dictionaries, which, generation after generation, have grown greater and more useful.

600,000 Entries—The Greatest Amount of Information Ever Put into One Volume

Contains the largest number of entries ever included in any dictionary, in any language. Every subject in the whole range of man's knowledge comes within its scope. Modern science and culture in all their branches are made accessible to the general reader. It covers a larger number of subjects than has ever before been contained in any single volume. It is the key to every science, every art, every profession, every interest of intelligent men and women.

Most Authoritative Staff of Editors ever organized was created to make the new Merriam-Webster and to maintain the Merriam-Webster reputation for supreme authority. Leaders in every field of activity were selected to prepare material, the accuracy and authority of which would be unassailable. Practically without exception the front rank men were eager to contribute. 207 of the world's leading experts formed the staff of Special Editors. Every one of 600,000 entries prepared and approved by an Editor eminently qualified to guarantee its correctness.

At Last—All About

HEALTH
How to Preserve and Improve It

ILLNESS
How to Recognize and Treat It

IN ONE ENCYCLOPEDIC VOLUME

A real encyclopedia of medical knowledge for the home—complete, authoritative, up-to-date—that tells in simple language everything you need to know to protect health and to care for sickness. The most reliable source of medical information ever offered for home and family use—all in one handy volume, arranged for quick reference. Easy-to-understand explanations of all common diseases—how to avoid them, how to recognize them, how to treat them. 2,000 helpful articles all in one alphabetical order for easy finding. It is not claimed that this great book will enable you to dispense entirely with medical advice. But it will tell you what to do in an emergency—when you should summon the Doctor at once—when you can yourself meet the situation with simple treatment.

This Book May Save Your Life!
Or the Life of Someone Dear to You!

—by telling you what to do when illness or accident strikes suddenly, while waiting for the Doctor.
—by enabling you to understand his instructions and follow them out.
—by teaching you to recognize serious symptoms and sending you to the Doctor before it is too late for him to help you.
—by explaining every part of your body, its needs, its capabilities, its care.
—by showing you how to improve your resistance to disease through reasonable exercise, adequate rest, proper diet.

Many instances can be given in which "The Modern Home Physician" is a means of saving life. It tells you WHAT TO DO and HOW TO DO IT. It helps you decide WHEN YOU NEED A DOCTOR and when you DON'T. It explains what can be done for the sufferer until the Doctor comes. Many lives are lost through not knowing these simple facts. One quick reference to this book gives you the sure knowledge to do swiftly, confidently, the easy thing that may save a life!

Critic Praises Innovation of Ballet Night

Four Works Presented at Opera House.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

For the first time since Chicago has had an opera company a full program was devoted last night to the cause of the ballet. It was a highly commendable experiment which one hopes will be repeated soon. For one thing, it shows that those in charge of the company are willing to test new attractions that will bring opera seasons down to date. For another, it was highly interesting in itself.

Ruth Page is the ballet director of the Chicago opera this year, and she and Nicholas Remisoff would seem to be responsible for a great part of the program. She was the author of the scenario of two of the four numbers and co-author with him of the other two. She was the principal dancer in three, and he prepared the scenery, costumes, and lighting for all four.

The bill was exhilarating and at times highly amusing. The first number was William Grant Still's "La Guiablesse," which Miss Page presented at the Auditorium in the summer of 1933 with a cast of Negro assistants. This time the principal part was danced by Katherine Dunham. It was an astonishing performance, both last year and last night. The ease and grace that this Negro group put into their evolutions, the eloquence of their swaying bronze bodies, made a perfect performance of this tale of the Martinique siren, or Lorelei, or what you will.

Next came two world premières, both comedies. "Hear Ye! Hear Ye!" by Aaron Copland, tells the story of a shooting done in a night club as related in a criminal court. It is a matter of everything from tables to office buildings being away off angle, of jury, judge, and spectators all in masks, of three witnesses being sworn and three different accounts of the shooting being acted on the stage, everything being about three-quarters insane. At the end the jury finds every one guilty. Miss Page, Bentley Stone, Mark Turbyfill, and Paul du Pont were the principal actors.

"Gold Standard," by Jacques Ibert, is a farce of two young lovers, an elderly suitor, a forthwith marriage with parson, ring, what not, summoned out of the bushes in a park. It was mid-Victorian in setting, uncommonly gay, and perhaps even more amusing than its predecessor. The same cast had charge of the proceedings.

At the end Miss Page, Blake Scott, and a group of girls revived Ravel's Bolero, now known as "Iberian Monotone." Leo Kopp conducted the first and last items of the bill, and Rudolph Ganz the two novelties. It was a first rate performance throughout, principals, lesser dancers, and orchestra.

SOCIETY PRESENT

The size and brilliance of the audience indicate that Chicago is dance-conscious. It was a gala occasion and society turned out en massé for it. Many of the boxes and almost every seat on the main floor were occupied and the appearance of the great theater rivaled the picture it makes on popular opera nights.

After the performance about 125 of the audience went upstairs to the Electric club—a more divine place for an after the opera supper party couldn't be imagined—to a party that Harold F. McCormick, honorary chairman of the board of directors of the Chicago company, was giving for Paul D. Cravath, chairman of the board of the Metropolitan Opera company.

It was one of the distingué parties of the winter, with a champagne and lobster supper served from buffet tables, an orchestra, and everything else that could add to the success of such an affair. It was an unusual party in that only men were in the receiving line, Mr. McCormick, Mr. Cravath, George Rossetter, and George Woodruff, president of the board and chairman of the executive committee of the Chicago Opera company, and Thomas Hart Fisher, husband of Ruth Page, director of the ballet and premiere danseuse of the company.

Miss Page arrived at the supper party a bit late, tired but happy, and looking as distinctive as usual in a gold gown made from an Indian sari. She had not been able to attend the dinner, of course, that her husband gave at the Casino for Mr. Cravath and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Francis Gibbs, and Mrs. Bradley Delehanty, who accompanied him from New York, for a dancer, like a singer, eats a light supper hours before she appears on the stage.

A few of those at the supper party were Mrs. Lafayette Page of Indianapolis, Ruth Page's mother, the Cyrus Hall McCormicks and their son and his wife, the Cyrus McCormicks, who are here from their home in New Mexico for a brief visit, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eckstein, the Clark Lawrences, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock, Mr. and Mrs. George I. Haight, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Mrs. Francis Johnson, Frank McNair, the Kellogg Fairbanks, the Ernest Grahams, and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis.

Others were the Walter S. Brewsters, the John Donald Blacks, the Arthur Meekers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, the John Alden Carpenters, the Hubert Burnhams, and Seymour Blair.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker are entertaining at luncheon today at the Attic club for Mr. Cravath before the opera matinée and Monday night the Fishers will give a dinner for him at the Racquet club preceding the performance of "Salomé." Mr. Cravath is staying over especially to see Nicholas Remisoff's new settings for that opera, as well as Jeritza's interpretation of the part.

Two Debutantes Make Bows at Dance Parties

The debutantes and their beaux spent a gay afternoon and evening yesterday attending a tea-dance and a dinner-dance. Col. and Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze were host and hostess from 4 until 7 o'clock at the Woman's Athletic club at a tea at which they presented their daughter, Miss Medora Pelouze, and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Macdonald were host and hostess at the dinner-dance which they gave for their daughter, Miss Mary Macdonald, at the Indian Hill club.

The ballroom at the Woman's Athletic club was gay with dancing couples and filled with ferns and yellow flowers. Pernet roses were the chic decoration at the tables where the debutante's friends poured tea and coffee.

Mrs. Pelouze and her daughter received at the entrance to the room before a screen of ferns and roses. The debutante wore a stunning gown of silver lamé, trimmed with a green tie about the neck, and green orchids. Her mother wore October blue beaded lace and purple orchids.

Assisting Miss Pelouze were the Misses Ethel Johnston, Barbara Fortune, Barbara Lawrence, Eleanor McKenna, Nancy Parks of Denver, Leslie Wilson, Rozanne Patton, Barbara Shaffer, Dorthy Wegg, Carolyn Crosset, Mildred Starck, Margery Garvey, Betty McKay, and Charlotte Hubbart.

After the last guests had departed Col. and Mrs. Pelouze took their daughter, her assistants, and their escorts to the Palmer house to dine and dance.

Many of the debutantes rushed home from the Pelouze tea to change and dash out to Winnetka to the Macdonald dinner-dance. Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald, the debutante and her brothers, Robert and Angus, all received.

Miss Macdonald never looked prettier than she did in a simple white gown, trimmed with silver cloth, and lovely orchids. Her mother wore black velvet and orchids. The party was a gay one.

Several of Robert Macdonald and his fiancée, Miss Patsy Keith's, friends were invited to the dance as well as a few of Mr. and Mrs. Macdonalds', including Miss Keith's parents, the Stanley Keiths, and Mrs. Robert Stuart, the debutante's grandmother.

Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald moved to Winnetka from Peterborough, Ont., last spring, and Mrs. Stuart gave a tea for her granddaughter a week ago yesterday to present her to all of Mrs. Stuart's friends. Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart, an aunt and uncle of the debutante, will give a tea-dance for her at the Casino the afternoon of Dec. 22 to which the Princeton Triangle members, playing in town that evening, will be invited.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

THERE are on the shelves of the library of Dr. Loyal Davis of the staf of Passavant hospital, in his apartment at 219 Lake Shore drive, an unusual collection of books. Unusual, not because they are rare, or first editions, or finely bound, but because they are the favorite books of his favorite friends, with a flyleaf note explaining why the book is a favorite. Two distinguished medico friends, when asked their favorite books, replied that it was the New Testament, and one of them wrote on the flyleaf of the book now on Dr. Davis' shelf:

Flyleaf notes—Recital—Universal—

"I am told that I received a great many gifts during the early years of my life. I have forgotten them all save one, a book which I received on my seventh birthday. This is a modernized version of the book. When I read it, as I do from time to time, I am thrilled by the idealism, the dignity and the quiet courage of Jesus, although I do not profess a belief in his divinity.

"To my mind the New Testament is the greatest biography, while at the same time it contains drama and tragedy, poetry and prose, the most marvelous speeches, rules of etiquet and, of course, a guide to conduct."

RUTH STEIN (no relation to Gertrude as far as I know) bulletins that a Northwestern university student, in making up the back page of a recent issue of the Daily Northwestern, gave prominence to a course of medical lectures dealing with various internal disorders. He listed the various ailments to be discussed. In close juxtaposition appeared a smaller item that read:

"W. Wray Finnemore will present an organ recital in Thorne hall tomorrow night at 6:30."

WHILE the newspapers are filled with tales of legendary pomp and ceremony it might be a good time to repeat, by way of offering contrast, the story that Richard Washburn Child told at Thorne hall the other evening when he lectured under the auspices of Northwestern university.

He said that once, when he was ambassador to Rome, Albert, late king of the Belgians, and Queen Elizabeth "proposed themselves" for dinner. The day on which they were expected was a busy one in the Child ménage, as might be expected, but as the hour set for their arrival approached all was in readiness. Eight o'clock came, but no king and queen. Eight-thirty and still no sign of their royal highnesses. A certain nervousness began to pervade the establishment. Then, at quarter to nine, the sound of a motor was heard on the drive, and Mr. Child hurried downstairs to receive his royal guests. The king offered an apologetic hand.

"My dear fellow," he said as he hurried in, "I am so sorry. It is always the woman's fault."

Yuletide Fete for Hospital Has Early Start

Merry - Go - Round Offers Happy Rides.

BY JUDITH CASS.

INDICATIVE of the smart, advance tempo that the Christmas Merry-Go-Round is going to set the next eight days at the Hotel Sherman, the tinkling red and gold merry-go-round itself started to spin about six hours ahead of time yesterday in the Sherman lobby.

Planned as a prelude to the mammoth toy and gift bazaar that officially opens at 11 o'clock this morning for the benefit of the Chicago Lying-In hospital and the Mothers' Aid, the merry-go-round was to start at 6 o'clock last evening. Shortly after noon, however, Mrs. Charles King Corsant, co-chairman of the bazaar, became so excited about the plaything that she ordered it turned on [to the delight of all the boys and girls present] and manned the ticket window herself.

One of the largest and most pretentious benefits of the winter season, the bazaar on its opening today promises success for the dozens of society women who have given unstintingly of their time and effort for its organization ever since early summer. In the many booths that have been erected on the mezzanine floor under the artistic supervision of Mrs. Walter Paepcke, there's an answer for every holiday gift problem while the side shows and the afternoon and evening entertainments will provide the carnival spirit supreme.

Gay Decorations on All Booths.

The long alley down the mezzanine floor might be the Souks in Tunis or a stretch of the Montmartre in Paris, for the 50 booths, decorated with Christmas trees and silver tissue, offer everything from nicknacks to haberdashery, streamlined toy trains to modernized bird cages. The afternoon programs are planned for children, while the evening entertainments each night will bring out large and gay society crowds.

With many stars of the stage and the night clubs coming for tonight's party, in response to the invitations of Mrs. Frank Bering and Mrs. Ernest Byfield, it has been styled "theatrical night." Gov. Horner has promised to drop in and so has Mayor Kelly.

The Merry-Go-Round will not be open tomorrow, but it will resume activity again on Monday and continue day and evening through next Saturday. Mrs. William B. Hale and Mrs. Morris Leidy Johnston are co-chairmen with Mrs. Corsant.

Barbara Graf Bride Tonight.

Many dinners on the north and south sides of Chicago will be concluded hastily this evening so the diners may hurry to the Fortnightly club where Miss Barbara Graf, daughter of the Robert J. Grafs, and Charles Stickney Connell, son of Dr. and Mrs. F. Gregory Connell of Oshkosh, Wis., will repeat their wedding vows at 8 o'clock. No one wants to miss seeing the bride, who is certain to be one of the most attractive of the season, and her five pretty attendants on their way to the improvised altar, before the stage in the ballroom where the Rev. Edward S. White of the Church of the Redeemer will read the ceremony. A reception will follow.

Miss Jane Connell, the bridegroom's sister, will be the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids include Mrs. Joseph E. Nolan [Jane Fortune], Miss Janet Ayer, Miss Eleanor McNally and Miss Isabel Gordon. Edmond Sullivan will serve Mr. Connell as best man, and ushering will be John E. Baker Jr., Robert J. Graf Jr., and Rufus Schreiber, and Daniel Harmon of Oshkosh.

Mr. Connell and his bride will be at home after Christmas in the Marshall Field Garden apartments where a number of Chicago's fashionable

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Here's a Santa Claus who disdains Dunder Und Blitzen. He arrives astride a huge cake of luscious soap, scented in June geranium.

Here you have one of the gayest gifts of them all, a most unorthodox Santa Claus. Only his steed is unorthodox, really; he has the traditional downy white whiskers, the twinkling blue eyes and an almost scandalously red nose. But his reindeer is a giant—and that's literal—cake of soap.

It is an incomparable soap, the kind that billows in lather, and the fragrance is the stuff of which feminine dreams are made. It's June geranium and if you know any scent lovelier we'd like to know what it is. To our way of thinking it is charmingly feminine, but not too sweet, and with a distinctly aristocratic flavor.

This soap behind a Santa Claus is an ideal gift. Every list has the name of at least one of those difficult women who "have everything." They've grand ideas and the wherewithal with which to carry them out. And what can you do with a few dollars when Christmas roll around?

The magnum of June geranium soap is one of the best answers to your problems. It's a product that has both quality and prestige—and this manner of Yuletide presentation makes it doubly attractive.

All teen agers will adore it, too. You can bet that they've always yerned for a soap like this but thought it was a bit too grownup for them. They'll be floored at finding soap and Santa in an attractive box under the tree.

The pink bar is so large it lasts for weeks and weeks on end. Christmas will be long past when that bar breathes its last fragrant prayer, but the donor will have been remembered.

Good Morning!

"O, Limehouse Kid—O! O! O! Limehouse Kid
Going the way that the rest of them did
Poor broken blossom and nobody's child
Haunting and taunting, you're just kind of wild
O, Limehouse blues! I've the real Limehouse blues
Learned from the chinkies—
Those sad China blues.
Rings on your fingers and tears for your crown
That is the story of old Chinatown."

This is the day we do our slumming. We're going down into the London Limehouse district, where Harry Young, half yellow and half white, owns a waterfront café and dance hall and heads what I inferred to be a narcotic smuggling business.

We are going to meet Tu Tuan, the rapier slim Chinese girl who lives in his luxurious quarters over the café and dances and sings for his customers. And make the acquaintance of Toni, the white girl whom Harry saves from the police and a cruel stepfather and comes to madly love. The stepfather, Pug Talbot, will come into our lives for a brief, unsavory period, as will various other unpleasant characters—all of them just one jump ahead of the police. [Reminiscent of "Broken Blossoms?" Cheaply—yes.]

For relief, however, we shall come across Eric Benton, an upright, broad-minded and farseeing young man, who conducts a pet shop in Piccadilly and whose devotion to the pushed about Toni brings about a melodramatic, compensatory finale.

As the sordid events unreel against a sordid background we shall realize that the picture, as a whole, is about as enjoyable as the dark brown taste and the cold, gray dawn of a morning after. And that there is little to commend "Limehouse Blues" save satisfactory acting.

See you tomorrow!

Barbara Poole Is Bride of J. M. Washburn

Gowned in the ivory satin dress that her mother wore for her marriage a quarter of a century back, Miss Barbara Poole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Poole, became the bride yesterday afternoon of James Murray Washburn Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. James M. Washburn of Lake Lure, N. C., formerly of Chicago. Dr. Herbert W. Prince read the service at 4:30 o'clock in the chapel of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest, and then the wedding guests, who included only the immediate families and a few intimate friends, went on to the Poole home in Lake Forest for a reception.

The bridal gown, elaborately trimmed with heirloom lace, was fashioned with short sleeves, a high neck, and a short train. Over this fell a filmy veil of tulle. The bridal bouquet was of bouvardia. As maid of honor for her sister, Miss Nancy Poole, home from Sarah Lawrence college for the wedding, wore a dress of blue lame with a wine colored hat, gloves, and slippers. Herman Wilms served Mr. Washburn as best man.

The Forgotten Honeymoon

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Rhoda Cornboise's engagement to Maj. Ralph Stornack is arranged by her ambitious mother. Rhoda is in love with Colin Brierley, who is serving sentence unjustly for the murder of a Canadian solicitor in a London night club. Chief witness against Colin was Maj. Stornack, who was the solicitor's host. Rhoda met Stornack when he called to express his regret for the testimony he had to give at her lover's trial. Jack Caermaen, an old pal of Colin's, is his warder. Caermaen takes Colin's place as prisoner, allowing Colin to use his week's vacation. Rhoda elopes with Colin on the eve of her marriage to Stornack. They spend a brief honeymoon. Then Colin returns to prison. Rhoda returns home and feigns a lapse of memory. Her mother besieges her to marry Stornack, who is still willing. He and his confederates know she has inherited the fortune of a Canadian relative. The solicitor had come to London to tell her of it. Stornack calls on Caermaen and they quarrel. Jack suspects Stornack of the crime for which Colin was convicted. Rhoda, who is expecting a baby, leaves home and stays with friends of Caermaen, the Rawlings, in London. Her mother follows with a court order, placing Rhoda under her charge. Caermaen has his solicitor, Jarroman, start a private investigation. Mrs. Cornboise takes Rhoda to France, where her son is born. The baby is left there when they return to London. Caermaen arranges to get Colin out of prison again for a few days. Rhoda flies with Colin to see their son. Her mother is at the aerodrome when they return to London and sees Colin. Her fear of scandal keeps her from turning him over to the police. Colin goes back to prison. Mrs. Cornboise arranges a visit to the prison to see Colin. There she meets Caermaen and penetrates the mystery of Colin's excursions from jail. If Rhoda doesn't marry Stornack within six weeks she threatens to expose Caermaen. Rhoda meets Caermaen in London. He insists that if at the end of a month Colin's innocence isn't established he will confess. Rhoda learns from Jarroman of her inheritance, but that he has found no evidence to help clear Colin.

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

THE PROBLEM OF HER FUTURE.

In the small hours of the next morning Caermaen shot a letter from Jarroman through the aperture. But he did not have private speech again with Colin until three days later when his spell had worked round to the daylight hours and he was in charge of labor.

It was the best time for their fragmentary conversations. Anything said in the cell had to be whispered. Moreover, it was difficult and dangerous to invent new pretexts for opening the cell door. During labor it was easy to give Colin a task apart from the others and then stroll up as if to bully him.

The work this morning was on the vegetable garden and Colin had drifted to the end of a long row.

"Now, then, Eighty-seven, I told you a spade and a half depth. Call that a spade and a half?"

"I don't know what to say to you, Jack," said Colin in a quick undertone. "You oughtn't to do it."

"There's nothing else to be done. And you needn't worry."

"I'm not sure Stornack couldn't look after her better than I can."

"Huh! If you really think that, I'll tell you something you don't know.

"I don't know what to say to you, Jack," said Colin.

Stornack killed Simpson. We didn't want you to know before in case it upset you."

"Did he!" said Colin quickly. "My God, that makes it simpler."

It was not safe to go on talking. Caermaen passed along the line wondering why Colin seemed to think that it "made it simpler."

Because of the impossibility of holding a prolonged conversation he wrote down all that they had discovered about Stornack and passed it to Colin.

For the next two days it seemed that Colin himself deliberately avoided any chance of conversation. But on the third day he gave their agreed signal that he would like to speak.

Caermaen soon made an opportunity for him to do so.

"Jack—if you're really going to do this thing, will you be hanged for a sheep instead of a lamb?"

"I'd thought of that. You'd like to see Rhoda once again. Then, of course, there won't be a chance afterwards until Jarroman has done his bit. All right. I've still got four days' leave. I'll put in my application today."

It was natural, of course, that Colin should want to take his last chance of seeing his wife—so natural that Jack looked for no other reason.

Jarroman told Rhoda when she went to see him the following week that soon she would have no further need to worry about money.

"Of course I'm very pleased about the money. It will make everything easier afterwards——"

"Before we go any further," he interrupted her, "may I ask whether you see anything of Maj. Stornack nowadays?"

She looked at him wonderingly. Jack Caermaen, evidently, had not told him that her mother was still trying to marry her to Stornack.

"Yes—he is in town and often comes to see me. But——"

"Just allow me to say this—I would drop him if I were you. Even if your people like him. I've stirred up a bit of dust lately and I happen to have found out that he is—well—a rather undesirable character."

Rhoda let it pass—could hardly attend to him.

"Don't let's talk about Maj. Stornack," she pleaded. "What about Colin? In Paris you seemed to think that if you could find out about Uncle Peter everything would come right."

His face prepared her for the disappointment even before he spoke.

"I was wrong," he said bluntly. "In fact, I'm afraid I have got to be cruel to be kind. In some ways I have been fortunate—I have found out much more quickly than I expected—everything that can be found out. And the sum total of it is much too little to amount to evidence. In fact, in the strict legal sense of the word, there is no evidence at all—and no means of obtaining any evidence now."

It was as if some one had struck her and stunned her faculties. She could hear, but could hardly take in the rest of what he was saying.

"There is all the difference in the world between being morally sure of a thing and being able to prove it in court. There was doubt in the minds of the authorities as to Colin's guilt. That is why they commuted the sentence. Otherwise they would have hanged him. But they can't move beyond that doubt. We have collected a lot of facts that point to the strong probability of—of another man having committed this crime. But we cannot possibly prove that he did it."

"Then—there is no hope?" Her voice was little above a whisper.

"None that I can see," said Jarroman. She was a brave girl and it was better that she should know the truth. With this kind it was better to speak out instead of wrapping it up in platitudes and vague assurances.

"Does Colin know?"

"Yes. I thought it better to write and tell him."

Rhoda stood up. She was not crying. But the solicitor himself came perilously near to breaking down when she gave him her hand.

"Thank you! I know you've done everything possible for—for Colin and me. I know you're terribly upset—that it's all come to nothing."

There were three weeks left of the six weeks in which much might happen. And she knew now that nothing was going to happen at all. Jack Caermaen would be ruined—and she and Colin would be separated for a lifetime.

Stornack called for her after lunch and asked her to go with him in his car for a drive up the Thames valley.

Until he stood before her she had not thought of Jarroman's warning. She thought of his words now. What could that possibly matter? She accepted the invitation.

They had tea at a riverside hotel. It was incredible, she thought, but none the less true, that she found a certain restfulness in this man's presence. He could hold her attention, make her interested in the pleasant trifles of life.

And Jarroman had said that he was a bad character. So, she supposed, was she herself. She was a liar and a cheat and a swindler. Worse than that, she was a coward. She was going to stand by and let Jack Caermaen sacrifice himself.

While he was driving back to London, Stornack was compelled to keep his attention on the traffic-laden streets and she was left to her own thoughts. There was no hope of Colin's release. And, after Jack Caermaen had ruined himself, Colin would serve out his sentence of twenty years. His personality would be crushed—his identity lost—he might not even survive it physically if his mind could bear the strain.

And there was Colin Jack. She was still trying to face the problem of her future when they arrived at the hotel.

Stornack lingered—then came up with her to their private sitting room.

"Thanks, awfully, Ralph! I've enjoyed it. I'm afraid I've been frightfully dull, but you never seem to mind."

BUT COME ON, NOW- HERE- GET YOUR COAT ON- WE HAVEN'T ANY TIME TO LOSE-
WHY, "DADDY"- WHAT ON EARTH? WHERE ARE WE GOING?
YOU SHOULDN'T ASK QUESTIONS- I'M NOT TAKING YOU TO A SHOW- WE CAN'T AFFORD IT- BUT I AM TAKING YOU TO THE MOVIES- UNLESS YOU'D RATHER STAY AT HOME-brides and bridegrooms have started housekeeping.
OH, "DADDY"!

Dr. Christoph Keller of the Trinity Episcopal church in Highland Park will read the service at 4 o'clock this afternoon that will unite in marriage Miss Olga Beneke and Jansen Wendell Taylor of Chicago and Wilmington, Del. Only candles will light the drawing room of the Henry Benekes' home, Laurel at the lake, in Highland Park, where the ceremony is to be held with a reception following.

Miss Claire Beneke will attened her sister as maid of honor and Miss Lois Brigham, Mrs. John Giles of La Grange, and Miss Dorothy Dahlberg will be the bridesmaids. Reeves Taylor is here from Wilmington to serve his brother as best man and ushering will be Edward and Henry Beneke, brothers of the bride, and Dr. William Looby.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Taylor have come from Wilmington for the wedding of their son, and most of the Milwaukee relatives of the Beneke family will be in Highland Park for the afternoon.

After their wedding trip the couple will make their home in the spacious apartment above the garage on the Benekes' Highland Park property.

Marion McKinley to Be Bride Today.

At a very much smaller wedding this afternoon Miss Marion McKinley, daughter of Mrs. Anthony McKinley and Judge Michael L. McKinley, will become the bride of William J. Sennott Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Sennott of Evanston. The Rev. Patrick J. Hayes will read the ceremony at 4:30 o'clock in the rectory of Holy Name cathedral in the presence of the immediate families, and a small reception will follow at the Drake hotel.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. Sennott and his bride will be at home at 543 Aldine avenue. Miss Marjorie Hunter of Rockford, Ill., and John Harmon Sennott, a brother of the bridegroom, will be the only attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Crossett will entertain tonight at a dinner-dance in their Lake Shore drive apartment for their debutante daughter, Miss Carolyn Crossett, who is at home from Bennington college for the Thanksgiving holiday. About 50 young people have been invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams and Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins are giving a buffet supper tomorrow night at the Casino for Miss Martha Borland, the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland. Only debutantes and their beaux have been invited. Mr. Borland, Mr. Adams, and Mrs. Hutchins are cousins.

While the debutantes are at the Casino, members of the post-debutante crowd and several young married people will eat a buffet supper with Mr. and Mrs. John Oliver. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver are entertaining for Miss Winifred Wheeler and Henry L. McIntyre, who will be married on Dec. 21.

Hunt Ball Tonight at Dunham Woods.

There will be a Christmas feeling at the Hunt ball the Dunham Woods Riding club is to have this evening, for the coach house is to be transformed with pine trees dusted in white paint. Cellophane, also in silver, will be the only other material used in decoration.

More than 125 are expected for the buffet supper at 8. About 2 o'clock tomorrow morning the 11 piece orchestra will cease long enough for a scrambled egg and sausage breakfast. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Thorne are to have one of the largest parties, with 14 guests.

Society's polo fans will be at the 124th Field Artillery armory this evening for the opening games of the annual tournament of the Metropolitan Indoor Polo league. The Lincolnshire Country club team is to play the Cardinals and the North Shore Polo club team is to ride against the 124th Field Artillery.

Col. and Mrs. Charles C. Haffner Jr. will have one of the largest box parties.

Mrs. John Storrs will speak at noon today in the library of the Alliance Française.

Mrs. Herbert Hugh Riddle, recently elected president of the Children's Scholarship league, will entertain at tea at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for the members of the board of the league and their friends. At 6 o'clock Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, a board member, will speak briefly of the league's work.

Gertrude Stein will lecture before the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago at 8:30 tomorrow evening at Ida Noyes hall on the university campus, in a talk entitled, "Pictures and What They Mean to Me." Many of the lecturegoers will come early for a supper at Ida Noyes. The lecture is given through the Rue Carpenter Arts club memorial fund established to provide lectures on contemporary arts.

Scots Will Celebrate 98th Anniversary of St. Andrew Society

More than 1,200 Scots will celebrate the feast of St. Andrew tonight at the 89th anniversary assembly banquet of the Illinois St. Andrew society in the Palmer house. Speeches, songs, and dancing will comprise the program, the proceeds of which will be diverted to the Scottish Old People's home in Riverside.

The high point of the evening will be the traditional ceremonial surrounding the entrance of the haggis, a favored Scotch dish. Kilted and bonneted and wearing their clan badges, highlanders will escort the steaming haggis to the banquet table as bugles and bagpipes blare their welcome at the revival of the ancient custom. The baggis is a rich pudding boiled in a sheep's stomach.

Among the speakers will be Bishop George Craig Stewart, whose subject will be, "Scotland, the Land We Left," and Floyd E. Thompson, former chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court, who will speak on "America, the Land We Live In."

The Illinois St. Andrew society is one of the oldest charitable organizations in the state. Robert Black is chairman of the anniversary committee.

Exquisite in Metal Fabric

2566

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Now that metal fabrics have become so popular, you'll like this model of shimmering, sapphire blue, pebbly crêpe with gold fleckings in its weave. It is softly girdled with gold lamé. Black velvet, with the bodice of the dress of silver lamé, is another suggestion.

The pattern, No. 2566, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

Engaged

[J. D. Toloff Photo.]

Miss Rosalie Veronica Budinger, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Budinger of Wilmette, today are announcing her engagement to F. Preston Forbes of Washington, D. C., son of Frank Forbes of Evanston. Miss Budinger is a graduate of Marywood academy and of the National College of Education. Mr. Forbes was graduated from Harvard in 1929 and is now associated with the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce at Washington. Until moving east he made his home with his sister, Mrs. George S. Smith, 2519 Orrington avenue, Evanston. The wedding will take place this winter.

Three Hundred Clubs Make Reservations for Housing Forum

More than 300 women's clubs of the Chicago area have made reservations for the all-day Federal Housing forum at the Hotel Sherman on Monday, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Mabel Shirk, formerly civil service commissioner in Illinois, who is chairman of the luncheon session. The gathering will be called to order at 10:30 o'clock.

Miss Amelia Sears, head of the women's division of the Better Housing program, which is sponsoring the forum under the national housing act, received word yesterday that Miss Martha Holmes of Washington, D. C., would be present. Miss Holmes, who has been traveling in many states, conducting radio interviews from the homes of families who have modernized their dwellings, will tell of her experiences in that field.

BY MARY MEADE.

"What made my cake turn brown after baking? I used 1¼ teaspoons of baking soda in place of the baking powder. Could that have done it? The cake had a bland taste."

This kitchen trouble comes from Miss M. H., and I'm afraid she will have to go back to baking powder for cakes unless she can dig up some sour milk. For, when heated, baking soda [sodium bicarbonate to the chemist] unless at the same time combined with some acid substance, gives off its levening gas, but leaves behind it a residue which quickly turns the batter yellow or brown and gives a disagreeably soapy or bitter taste. In the old days this difficulty was taken care of by the use of sour milk to act with the soda. This combination has no unhappy effect on the flavor or color of the cake. In recent years we have adopted baking powders to take care of the rising. These are composed of three things: baking soda to give off the levening gas, an acid powder to react with the soda when heat and moisture reach them, and a starch to keep the soda and acid salt dry and calm until they are needed to do their little levening stunt.

And here's a new one on me! Mrs. J. A. E. writes to ask: "Is there any way of preserving cream by boiling it with sugar, turning it into a sort of sweetened condensed milk?" All I can say is—try it with a little, if you wish—but I doubt whether you will find it practical. Condensed milk is not sterilized, but is preserved and made safe by the addition of 40 per cent sugar. A considerable proportion of the water is also taken from the milk in the commercial product. A similar addition of sugar might adequately preserve your cream, but I would suggest that you test the business out thoroughly with small amounts before you go into any ambitious putting up. It is possible that a chemical food laboratory could make tests for you. I would suggest, instead, if you have an abundance of cream, that you convert it into butter rather than into a sugar-cream mixture.

Fried vs. broiled meats next come up for attention. Miss L. E. has been reading articles and she writes to ask whether it is really true that "meats fried in grease are not only hard to digest but that the most ncurishing part of the meat is 'fried' out, whereas broiled meats are superior. Our only answer can be, Miss E., that absolutely no experimental work has been done which have proved the points you mention. In fact, there is less and less credence given to the idea that fat—if taken in moderate amounts—is hard to digest. If meats are improperly fried in fat which has become so hot it has begun to decompose, the fat which stays on the meat will not be especially digestible. There has been no work done which has proved that the food value of fried meat is either more or less valuable than that of broiled meat.

Don't Force Your Child to Be Too 'Normal'

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

The average child? There is no such thing. We have come to stop talking about him because we know he doesn't exist.

What we have substituted for him, in common parlance, is the "normal child." Parents, eager to have their children normal and well adjusted, discover that they should work for certain ends—and I'm not talking now about the physical ideal with its mistaken devotion to age, height, and weight charts.

Conscientious parents, by observation of life, by study, or both, often set up various standards of what is normal and are then anxious to see their own child measure up to them. If he does not, they become anxious and even try to force the issue.

We must always bear in mind that these normal standards are not absolute. There is quite a wide range of conformity.

Be careful about trying to make your child conform absolutely to your ideal of what a normal child should be. He must be adjusted to life of course—and he must be "live." But he must also be allowed to be himself. After all, how colorless life would be if we all conformed to set standards.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Washington will be deserted by society tomorrow, for everybody who can possibly obtain a ticket for the Army-Navy football game will go to Philadelphia.

The secretary of war and Mrs. Dern will head the Army side and the secretary of the navy and Mrs. Swanson will head the Navy side.

Secretary and Mrs. Dern will have with them their daughters, Mrs. Harry Baxter and Miss Betsy Dern; their son, James Dern; their house guest, Miss Denise du Pont, daughter of Alfred I. du Pont, and Miss Jean Grimes, daughter of Oliver Grimes.

Secretary and Mrs. Swanson will have with them the assistant secretary of the navy and Mrs. Henry L. Roosevelt and their daughter, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, and a party of her friends, including Miss Nancy Leiter and her cousin, Miss Audrey Campbell, and Mrs. Joseph Leiter.

WEDDING

At 4 o'clock this afternoon in the church of St. Mary of the Lake Miss Margaret Roche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Roche of Irving Park boulevard, will become the bride of Richard Vincent McNellis Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard V. McNellis of 3240 Lake Shore drive. A small reception will follow at the Belden Stratford hotel.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

A MAGNIFICENTLY PLAYED HAND.

In several past articles I have mentioned that certain rather bold bids would appear to me justified "if one were playing with a first class card player"; at other times I have stressed the importance of a suit of five or more cards in helping out a difficult contract which is not a laydown in top cards. In fact, you have seen that I favor bold slam bidding—and even more so bold bidding for no trump games—where you have a long suit to work with. The following hand illustrates my reasons for these remarks. E. Melvin Goddard of Asbury Park, played the South hand; you will see why I am willing to bid hands boldly when Ed is my partner:

South dealt and bid a club. He might well have bid a no trump. I would then have forced in spades and we would have located the aces and got to the same final bid. As it was, the bidding proceeded:

North—One spade—the one-over-one.

South—Two no trumps. A force to game.

North—Four no trumps. A very urgent slam try.

South—Six no trumps. This implies a fit in the spade suit and a great high card strength in all suits.

North—Seven no trumps—confident by reason of his three and a half primary tricks, the fine five card suit to work with, and the two aces.

Would You Say That it Depended on Winning Two Finesses?

Ed Goddard determined not to subject the hand to the strain of winning two finesses if he could use his long suit to squeeze. West led the 8 of spades, a fine lead which told nothing positive to help declarer. The latter, knowing West to be a fine player who uses contract leads against contract bids, felt that this lead showed a fear of making any other lead. West probably had some face cards or cards to protect. Nevertheless, the heart finesse had to be taken, and my partner took it through West, playing first the ace and then the jack, which West covered to protect his fourth heart. Now the rest of the spades were played out, leaving West with these cards:

Sp.— Di.—K x

Ht.—9 8 Cl.—x x

South had discarded a small club and the jack of diamonds. Next, three rounds of clubs were played and West was squeezed. He had to unguard either the heart or the king of diamonds. Declarer had a small heart left in his hand, dummy having 10 x; he also had the ace, queen of diamonds. West could do nothing to defeat the contract. Many players in the South position would have taken and lost the diamond finesse, remarking, "What awful bad luck to lose that finesse with all those points depending on it." Others might blame their partner—or less probably themselves—for overbidding into a gambling contract with the odds against them. Ed Goddard realized that one finesse had to be taken; he took it and won it. He then determined to postpone the other until he could read the opponents' hands to the point of deciding whether a squeeze could take the place of the diamond finesse. He found that it could.

New Umbrellas Are Finds for Shopper Today

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Finds for the Saturday Shopper! Umbrellas for your own private collection or for the lucky few on your Christmas list. This time we're more than excited about the brightly gold and silver splashed varieties. You've had blouses, hats, scarfs, and entire dresses of silk spattered with small metallic designs. Now some enterprising umbrella designer is using the glitters for a rainy day and the results are knockout.

Then there are some small prints used for coverings that look like the first printed silk frock you always buy right after Christmas, small neat designs usually in two color contrasts that are especially effective for these very different new models.

Trick collapsible umbrellas have broken out with eye blinding plaids in some of the brightest colors you ever hoped to carry over your head. Besides being very small, unusually compact and easy to tuck in small spaces, they do work smoothly and quickly when you need them. You can also find plaids in the rigid, short 20 inch umbrellas with all sorts of clever handles.

Among the best of the finds are the umbrellas with a hollow handle to hold your rubbers. You roll the rubbers tightly and tuck them in the handle, which is fitted with a flap that snaps.

A flock of new sweaters have been unpacked and they will make any sweater collector green with envy. Soft, woolly beige numbers have tangerine colored suede straps at the neckline and waistline; stone gray models have kelly green and scarlet suede straps; and a short sleeved red affair has a neckline laced with navy blue yarn ending in a long pair of yarn tassels at the right side.

This red sweater is knitted with the new vertical rib formation. The same model can be had in other bright colors.

Take a look at the lether gift ideas if you want a thrill. Some of the best looking lamps with the base of lether come in red, green, brown, and white. The shades are of parchment and the brown lether base has a parchment shade covered with thin wood veneer.

Lether covered book ends, lether covered boxes and humidors are mighty good finds for the males on your list. The dark blue and maroon shades are perfect colors for the most fastidious he-man.

Miss Phyllis Wanzer Becomes Bride of Richard H. Carr

Phyllis Kathryn Wanzer, 31 years old, daughter of the late W. B. Wanzer, head of the Sidney Wanzer & Sons Dairy company, 130 West Garfield boulevard, was married in Waukegan to Richard H. Carr of Chicago, it was leaned yesterday. It was not known where the couple plan to reside. Miss Wanzer, who formerly lived at 364 Normal Parkway, was engaged in 1929 to Ray F. Wagenhorst of Chicago, but the marriage was never performed.

Unusual Cosmetic Aids Lend Glamor to Evening Hours

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Keeping up with the cosmetic manufacturers is wearing the tips off our shoes. If you're not up on your toes every minute they slip something over on you. Green powder nearly got by us for not keeping the eyes more closely peeled. And topaz nail polish. For evening, these, naturally. Gracious, what color sirens haunt the gay night spots—what with nail polishes, powder tints, and eye shadows, opalescent and otherwise.

But about this green face powder and your evening face! It's a delicate green, of course, recommended for toning down that pink flush that spreads the face after a dance in a heated room. Some like the green powder straight. Some simply dust it over their regular evening shade. Anyway, its object is to recover the cool, fresh tone of skin.

Topaz nail polish, opalescent too, is said to make the nail tips glow with a subdued light. It's not recommended especially for any particular color of frock, but it should be considered as a complementary shade to the frock. There's a new brown shade for nails, a maroon brown. But, generally speaking, the nails keep on running to the bright shades, with here and there a lovely subdued coral tint with which any gown may be worn.

The latest thing in lipstick coloring is to match it to your nail polish. Manufacturers are fixing it, too, so that you don't have to go round with samples of one in search of its mate. Your lip and nail coloring are already perfectly matched by them, in their respective containers.

I just can't keep up with perfumes at all. Every day something with great allure is presented for trial. But it is offered the way one can get grand scents in containers of miniature size and within the depression purse. One doesn't have to take inferior brands.

Key to Family Quarrel Found in Handwriting

Mother Is Advised to Give Daughter Her Way.

[Copyright: 1934: By Muriel Stafford.]

"We instinctively defend ourselves against seeing ourselves too clearly," said Christopher Morley in a recent talk in Chicago. "To see things with new eyes is often helpful."

Next to ourselves, those whom we love most dearly are the hardest to know. Today's specimen of writing is from a troubled mother who cannot understand what is the matter. She and her daughter simply can't get along. She wants to know why this is so and what she can do about it. She sent me a specimen of the daughter's handwriting as well as her own so that I could compare them. This is the mother's handwriting. I shall not use her real name.

I am enclosing of her handwriting can help me. I

My dear Mrs. Jones:

Yes, I shall be perfectly frank with you as you ask me to be. Your problem is an important one, and I think that when you comprehend the reasons in back of it much can be done.

To begin with, you and your daughter are alike in many ways. You both write a small, angular hand with force and heavy pressure. You have keen, quick minds—and quick tempers as well. It is obvious from the pressure and vigor in both handwritings that much diplomacy must be used if you two persons are to live together in complete harmony.

You both want your own way. You each find that you can dominate others very easily and you wonder why the family doesn't allow itself to be dominated. Well, the answer is just that you are a fine match for each other and the final outcome is bound to be a draw. You'll have to agree to a compromise in which you each do exactly and precisely as you want to do.

This is a perfectly safe thing to do in your case. Your daughter's writing shows that she is a highly intelligent person, well able to take care of herself. Not only that, but she is conscientious and self-possessed. A person with all these qualities deserves the right to any individualism she may claim. She'll never take advantage of it.

I'll admit this will be hard for you because you are a natural born leader and organizer and you've had much experience. You have found from your experience that your mind is accurate and shrewd in its deductions. When you say a thing is so, it is so! Unfortunately, you cannot help your daughter with your wisdom, for she, too, has a good mentality and your independence. There will be trouble until you give her complete freedom of thought, word, and action.

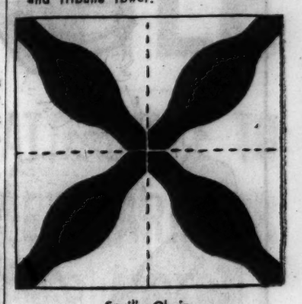
"Snail's Chain" Quilt Block Is Lovely, Simple

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.



Snail's Chain.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Any one partial to quilts of an all-over design would do well to make this block. There is none more attractive nor more simple to make than this old, old pattern. The original "Snail's Chain" was made of white, and blue and white figured print material. It is an English pattern brought to this country many years after the landing of the Pilgrims. In the year 1790 it was first introduced in Boston.

It's ready — Nancy Cabot's new booklet, presenting 96 illustrations of favorite quilt designs, together with one pattern of a popular quilt, "The Framed Rose." Price, 5 cents by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices.

AID FOR PARENTS

One of the hardest questions a parent can be called upon to answer is this: "Along what lines should my children be educated?" If you are not sure of a choice of studies and a school, consult the announcements which appear in the Educational Directory in the Chicago Tribune. For many years this directory has been helping parents choose the right schools for their children. Regardless of the age of the children or the courses they require, a careful reading of the Educational Directory will help you in reaching a satisfactory decision. $11

"Back-to-front" is the slogan of this smart crepe tunic frock that looks like a two-piece. There's a bow at the back of the neck and a high cowl neck in front. Note the new yoke top with gathered fullness below. 12 to 18.

The same style looks like an entirely different frock when it goes in for color contrast in the yoke. The pleats in the skirt, like the bow at the neck, are in back. Of crepe in black or brown with fisherman red; black with white or green; gold with brown; two shades of blue. 12 to 18.

Moderate Price Frocks, Fourth Floor.

A three-way collar of fox on this diagonal wool coat, lamb's wool interlined. Black or brown, with a dyed blue fox collar. 12 to 20. These coats are two of a group with varying fur trimmings—Jap mink, Persian lamb, and kit fox.

A big Peter Pan collar and ascot tie of fur give a youthful high neckline to this coat of matelasse woolen. Brown with blue-fox-dyed squirrel; blue or green with natural gray. 12 to 20. Complete with a squirrel-trimmed muff at $47. Women's regular and half sizes also in the group.

Moderate Price Coats, Fourth Floor.

$15

Suede-cloth crepe fashions this two-piece frock for Teenya—which makes effective use of the color contrast theme. The distribution of the dark and light tones makes it look like a jumper frock. Rose and wineberry, two shades of gray, two greens. 11 to 17.

Shoe Sale

Step on it! Today is the last day of Carson's $4.95 shoe sale. Hundreds of pairs of shoes from our higher priced groups reduced. Why reduced? Only because their popularity has made their size range incomplete.

You'll know at a glance that these shoes are usually much higher priced. Many have the new higher cut. The new details and trimmings such as hand-turned soles, perforations, patent leather accents, pipings, stitchings, and light underlays.

Pumps, straps, and ties in tailored or dress styles. In this group, black suede, brown suede, black kid, brown kid, blue kid, and evening shoes.

Seldom does such an opportunity come to get that extra pair of shoes with such decided savings. Now is the time to get ready for the Christmas festivities ahead.

Every size in the group, but not every size in every style.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The thirty-fifth edition of the most brilliant spectacle football provides will be staged on Franklin field tomorrow with 79,000 fans looking on as Army plays Navy.

Tonight, on the eve of the meeting between the service rivals, Philadelphia is seemingly in a state of siege. Jammed hotels, crowded restaurants, shop windows and buildings decorated with the colors and pictures of the teams, and the arrival of the vanguard of high ranking officers, cabinet members, and congressmen who will be in attendance tomorrow, bore evidence as to the thoroughness with which Army and Navy have occupied the town.

Enthusiasm Survives Rain.

The secretary of war, George H. Dern, Postmaster General James A. Farley, Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, army chief of staf; Henry L. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, and Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, are among those who have reservations.

Even the fact that it has been raining throughout the day has failed to dampen interest in the game, though it has softened the defiance of ticket scalpers. Whereas a few days ago they were getting as high as $75 a pair for choice seats, the weather has led them to scale down prices. Licensed agencies that have any accommodations left are asking $15 a pair for reservation behind the goal posts and $25 a pair for side line seats.

The game is scheduled to start at 1:30, eastern standard time. The regiment of 2,000 midshipmen and 1,200 cadets will march into the stadium at 12:15, with the West Point contingent leading the procession.

Navy Given Even Chance.

Army-Navy games are invariably sell-outs, but the interest this year appears to have surpassed anything since they played a 21 to 21 tie in Chicago in 1926. The explanation lies, in part, in the fact that for the first time since 1926 the midshipmen are given an even chance of winning.

It has been 13 years since Navy beat Army, and Navy men have a lot of confidence in the ability of young Lieut. Tom Hamilton's squad to end the famine. The fact that the Middies defeated Notre Dame, to which Army lost, is one of their strongest arguments, though Army backers can find comfort in the comparative statistics of the two games.

Notre Dame gained far more ground against the Middies than it did against Army's strong line, and it is the power and charge in that line that the cadets are counting on to turn back the Navy. Army will have the advantage in weight, averaging 187 to 179 for Navy, in whose line there is only one man weighing over 180 and whose center trio averages 172 pounds.

Both Have Good Ends.

Both teams are strong at the ends, Navy with Dornin and Mandelkorn, who appears to have gone ahead of Bull and Mini at right end since the Pittsburgh game, and Army with Shuler and Edwards.

Navy's tackles, the powerful Slade Cutter and Lambert, have a worthy pair of rivals in Beall and Milles, while Army's guards, Stillman and Brearly are rated above the 170 pound Capt. Burns and the 175 pound Zabriski. Robertshaw, the middies' 170 pound center, must stand off the 190 pound Clifford and his 191 pound alternate, Vincent.

Each eleven has an outstanding back, who rates among the best in this section, if not in the country. Jack Buckler of Army and Fred Borries of Navy are two of the most dangerous triple threats to take part in this service classic in many a day, and they are the men respective teams must stop, both along the ground and through the air. Borries' exhibition against a Pitt team that carried far too much power for Navy was warning enough to the cadets that they are facing the most dangerous back they have met all season.

Joe Stancook was rated the most valuable man on the Army team a year ago, and this season his blocking and defensive work in backing up the line have been of the same high order. Full Back Bill Clark, one of the best kickers in the east, is Navy's other back field ace.

King and Pratt are the Middies' other chief operatives in the back field, while Grove and King round out the Army quartet.

BEARS CONFIDENT OF WINNING LAST GAME OF SEASON

Victory Over Lions Will Make Perfect Record.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 30.—By their 19 to 16 victory over the Lions yesterday the Chicago Bears have inflicted a third crushing blow to Detroit's sports' ambitions in less than a year. Two of these conquests have gone to Chicago teams, the Blackhawks of hocky fame and the Bears. The other, of course, involved the seven game fight between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Tigers for baseball honors and concluded with a record breaking humiliation in Navin field.

As in the baseball series, the second guessers were running at large today giving the Lions the benefit of nothing as the Detroit eleven gathered its shattered forces for the invasion of Wrigley field Sunday and the final game of the regular season, which now is an anti-climax as far as titular ambitions are concerned.

Fail to Protect Advantage.

Local opinion concedes that the Lions, when leading 16 to 7 at the end of the half, should have protected that advantage, particularly in the fourth quarter when the advantage had dwindled to 16 to 13. Certainly, so the wiseacres say, Detroit [and this means Dutch Clark, the quarter back] should not have risked using dangerous passes Joe Zeller's interception and 55 yard run to Detroit's 4 yard line gave the Bears their scoring opportunity which brought victory.

Detroit's record football crowd of 26,000 agreed, however, that the game was one of the most spectacular ever played. The only comparison in professional circles is the championship game last fall when the Bears defeated the New York Giants, 23 to 21, and perhaps the recent 10 to 9 triumph of the Bears over the same team in New York.

There were many thrills which didn't get into the routine account of events. One of these in the third period, when Detroit led 10 to 10, involved a Bears' forward pass from Detroit's 34 yard line toward Hewitt who was racing toward the goal line. Father Lumpkin barely reached the ball and batted it with one hand. The ball dropped behind Lumpkin and Hewitt, spinning around, almost caught it before it reached the ground. A tying touchdown with the practical certainty of the winning point by Jack Manders was the fulcrum by which the crowd was lifted to heights of enthusiasm.

Manders Made 42 Yard Kick.

Manders followed this incomplete pass with his second field goal of the game. Manders kicked from the Detroit 42 yard line, duplicating Glenn Presnell's placement of the first half.

The Bears' two touchdowns were perfect scoring plays. On the first, in the opening period, Gene Ronzani crossed through the Detroit defense to the end zone to catch Molesworth's pass from the Lions' 13 yard line. The second and winning touchdown saw Bill Hewitt slip into the end zone to step under Nagurski's lob after the big full back had completely deceived the defense into guarding for a third consecutive line smash.

No greater thrill occurred than Detroit's brilliant drive in the final six minutes, during which they made five first downs in twelve plays, but then surrendered on the Bears' 14 yards line after a march of 66 yards. Only once until the final succession of four plays had the Bears even threatened to stop the assault. Then Ted Rosequist broke through to throw Presnell. On second down a pass was incomplete in the corner of the end zone, and Presnell was held to four yards on a sweeping run at the Bears' right end.

Tried for Winning Pass.

Here, to many, it seemed that Presnell should have place kicked for a tying score. But Clark elected to try a pass in hope of victory. The pass failed.

It remains to be seen whether Detroit can recover morale for Sunday's battle. While the game will not affect the standings, the Bears last night were emphatic in their determination to complete their campaign without defeat.

BATTLE FOR CHARITY TODAY AT SOLDIERS' FIELD

Frank Carideo Quits as Coach at Missouri

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Frank Carideo, Notre Dame's quarter back of 1929 and 1930 and last of the Rockne field generals, resigned today from the University of Missouri—one of the first major victims of the open season on unfortunate football coaches.

The resignation of the young head coach, now in his mid twenties, came close after Missouri's 20 to 0 defeat by an old rival, Kansas, and at the climax of the most disastrous season in Missouri football history. After tying Colorado, the Tigers lost their last eight games.

In Carideo's three years as head coach, Missouri lost 22 games, won two, and tied two.

Sleight May Be Out.

With him probably will go another young former star, Elmer N. [Red] Sleight, Purdue, '29, who served as Carideo's line coach.

"I have not made any definite plans for next year," Carideo said. "I have several propositions to consider, including other coaching offers, but I want more time to think the whole situation over. I will remain here and carry on my duties until the close of the school year."

The resignation, if accepted by the athletic committee and the board of curators, takes effect next September.

Presentation of the anticipated resignation to the committee on intercollegiate athletics silenced for the present, at least, reports that a "new deal" was in order for the entire athletic department, but it increased speculation on Carideo's possible successor.

Many Mentioned for Job.

Among those most frequently mentioned for the post were:

Don Faurot and Emmet [Abe] Stuber, products of the brighter football days at Missouri, now rival coaches of teachers' colleges in the Missouri intercollegiate conference; James Pixlee, Missouri, '13, athletic director of George Washington university; Navy Bill Ingram, who recently quit at California to go in business, although his contract had a year to run; Lynn O. Waldorf, former Syracuse tackle, who drove Kansas State to victory over Nebraska and to the Big Six championship his first year up from Oklahoma A. and M., and Lowel [Red] Dawson, Minnesota back field coach.

Some alumni factions favored employment of both Faurot and Stuber, whose teams met recently with the result that Faurot's Kirksville Teachers won their 26th consecutive victory of a three year campaign, and Stuber's Cape Girardeau Teachers had their winning streak stopped at eight straight.

Anton Juska, Lindblom full back, who clears the way for Joe Dubsky in many of the latter's scoring sprints. In addition to being an effective blocker, Juska is a thoroughly capable ball carrier. The Leo line and back field will be called upon for great defensive work this afternoon, if the Dubsky-Juska combination is to be stopped.

CHARLES DEVENS, NEW YORK YANK PITCHER, WEDS

Boston, Mass., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Miss Edith Prescott Wolcott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Huntington Wolcott of Milton, today became the bride of Charles Devens, former Harvard athlete and New York Yankees' pitcher, at Emmanuel church.

Three clergymen officiated—the Rev. Endicott Peabody, headmaster at Groton school where Devens prepared for college; the Rev. Dr. Samuel S. Drury, headmaster of St. Paul's school, and the Rev. Phillips Endecott Osgood, rector of Emmanuel church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, had as her only attendant her sister-in-law, Mrs. Samuel Huntington Wolcott Jr. Arthur Lythgoe Devens Jr., was his brother's best man.

The bride is a graduate of Ethel Walker school and a member of the Vincent club and the Junior League. The bridegroom was a member of the Harvard class of 1932.

CAMPOLO TO BOX CARNERATONIGHT AT BUENOS AIRES

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Primo Carnera and Victorio Campolo, two of the biggest men in boxing, today were reported in fit condition for their twelve round bout tomorrow night in Independiente football stadium.

Carnera, former world heavyweight champion, is expected to weigh in around 260 pounds and Campolo, just as tall but not as broad, at 222.

Alabama Will Play Stanford in Rose Bowl

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Nov. 30.—Not that the information will startle real football enthusiasts, nor cause them to scratch their heads, but Alabama will be the other team in the annual Rose Bowl game here on New Year's day. This fact, which had been suspected for several weeks, became official news today when it was announced that the Crimson Tide had been chosen to meet Leland Stanford, previously selected as the strongest eleven on the Pacific coast, in the big intersectional game.

Gophers Not Invited.

Al Masters, graduate manager of Stanford, upon which the task of choosing an opponent rested, arrived here today and stated he had conferred with Alabama officials last night. He extended an invitation which was promptly accepted. Masters said other sections of the country boasting strong teams had made overtures, but all were rejected in favor of the southerners. Stanford made no effort to extend a bid to Minnesota, generally regarded as the country's No. 1 team, because of the Big Ten rule which precludes post-season games for its members.

Alabama will come west with the best Rose Bowl record of any team in the country, having been undefeated in three prior appearances here. In 1927 the southerners were held to a tie by Stanford, but came back to whip Washington and Washington State in two other games. Stanford's record in Rose Bowl play is not as impressive, for aside from the 1927 deadlock with Alabama, the Indians lost, 27 to 10, to Notre Dame and its Four Horsemen in 1925, and nosed out Pittsburgh in 1928 by a point after touchdown.

Alabama Piles Up Points.

The Alabama eleven will come to the coast with an offensive record which overshadows that of its opponent, which in turn holds a defensive edge. The Indians won nine games and were held to a tie by Santa Clara. In this stretch they allowed only two touchdowns to be scored against them, whereas the Tide had five registered against it. On the other hand, Alabama, undefeated and untied in nine games, scored 287 points against Stanford's 211 in ten games.

Bourgault Is Recalled by Montreal Canadiens

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Leo Bourgault, defense man, has been recalled by the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hocky league from Quebec of the Canadian-American circuit. Bourgault, who had been out on loan to Quebec, will play for Canadiens against Boston here tomorrow night.

LOUIS KNOCKS OUT MASSARE IN THIRD ROUND

4,000 See Ex-Golden Glove Champ Triumph.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Joe Louis, Negro lad from Detroit, went rolling along toward the top flight of the world's heavyweight ranks at the Coliseum last night.

He measured Charley Massare, of Pittsburgh, with two crashing right crosses to the jaw in the third round. The first put a glassy stare in Massare's eyes and started the blood streaming from his mouth.

The second knocked Massare half way out of the ring. Face down, the Pittsburgher hung like a sack of wheat over the middle rope while Referee Tommy Gilmore counted him out.

Massare still was dazed and half unconscious when his seconds lifted him off the rope and carried him out of the ring.

No. 11 for Louis.

Thus sensational Louis, a graduate of THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves who left the amateur ranks last July, scored his 11th straight victory as a professional. Nine of these triumphs came as a result of knockouts, most of them as spectacular and thrilling as the one which put the experienced Massare to sleep.

The famous old Coliseum, where presidents have been made and where many of the great affairs of America were staged amid much splendor up until a decade ago, was the gathering place for a crowd of 4,000 who came to see what Louis would do. The price of seats scaled down from $3, yet the gate totalled $6,000.

Few boxing regulars in Chicago were absent. Maxie Baer, the world's champion, created a stir when he made his entrance soon after the show opened. Matchmakers and their scouts from all parts of the country were in attendance to watch Louis.

Louis weighed 195½ and Massare 181. There was little action in the first round. Massare tried to get in close for body blows, but Louis kept him off with a straight left and connected with one good punch, a right to the mouth, late in the round.

It looked bad for Louis when Massare got in some solid punches at long range in the second round, but the Negro came back and hurt the easterner with a series of left hooks, mixed up with an occasional right cross. Louis later in the round brought his attack down to the mid-section and hurt Massare with short jolting punches.

Bang! And It's Over.

Louis began boring in early in the third round and midway in the round he caught Massare with a right cross to the jaw. This staggered Charley and Louis rushed in, throwing both hands to the face. Massare began to bleed. Suddenly Joe shot over a terrific left hook to the jaw. It was evident the end was not far away. Louis followed this punch with a smashing right to the jaw and Massare fell half way out of the ring. The fight was over.

Immediately after the fight Louis signed a contract with Promoter Joe Foley for a fight tentatively scheduled for the Stadium on Dec. 14. Foley said he would try to get Johnny Risko, King Levinsky, or Al Ettore of Philadelphia, who beat Massare at the Stadium last week, as Louis' opponent.

Billy Miller, Milwaukee, welterweight, after getting off to a bad start, stopped Laddie Tonelli of Marseilles, Ill., in the fourth round of a scheduled eight round semi-final.

A six round bout brought together two former Golden Gloves champions, Bill Treest of Batavia and Johnny Long of Hammond. They weighed in at 170 pounds and staged a slugging match from start to finish. Treest got the decision.

Rudy Sterbenz of Peoria, Ill., 195, beat Dan La Marre of Chicago, 192½, in four rounds. Freddie Caserio, former Golden Glove champion, added another victory to his professional record by defeating Ernie Evans, Milwaukee, Wis., 169½, in five rounds. Freddie, weighing 163, used a left jab to good advantage throughout.

Eddie Stiegal of Chicago, 149½, beat Puggy Weinert, 150¾, in five rounds.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A crowd of more than 70,000, the largest ever to see a high school football game in this country, is expected to witness the interleague charity battle between Lindblom, champion of the Chicago Public High School league, and Leo, Catholic league titleholder, this afternoon at Soldiers' field. The kickoff will take place at 1:30 p. m.

Officials of Chicago's Own Christmas benefit, the agency under which Mayor Kelly, who fathered the game, is sponsoring it, announced yesterday that more than 65,000 seats already have been sold, and with the weather man decently withholding any threats of rain or snow, it is likely that the throng at the lake front stadium may even reach 75,000.

Colorful Ceremonies Planned.

Not only will this crowd establish a record for attendance at prep games, but it also will constitute the largest gathering of the year for the central states within the regular season. Only the Bears-All Star game conducted by THE TRIBUNE at Soldiers' field on Aug. 31, when 80,000 were on hand, will exceed it. Largest crowd of the scheduled collegiate program was the 80,000 who saw Notre Dame beat Army at New York recently.

The game today will be more than a football fight between the strongest representatives of the respective leagues. It will be a colorful spectacle, in the making of which officials have spared no pains, for a ceremony lasting a half hour before Mayer Kelly will throw out the ball from his box on the west side of the stadium, will precede the kickoff.

More than 1,000 bandsmen will begin parading over the stadium turf at 1 p. m. Heading this party will be the Police post band of the American Legion, a drill unit from the same post, and an R. O. T. C. group from local high schools. Following them will be the school bands of Lindblom, Leo, Tilden, De La Salle, Harrison, Mount Carmel, Senn, St. Philip, Lane, Fenwick, and St. Rita. The R. O. T. C. unit will conduct a flag raising ceremony in the course of the parade.

Proceeds to Go to Charity.

Proceeds of the game, combined with those from the Night of Stars show to be held at the Chicago Stadium on Dec. 19, will go toward providing shoes and warm clothing for thousands of the city's underprivileged children.

All this marching, horn tooting, and drum banging will set the stage for what is expected, on the basis of the two teams' records, to be the best of the interleague series. Today's battle will be the rubber game, as the following record of the series between the two leagues shows:

1927—Mount Carmel, 6; Schurz, 0.
1928—Tilden, 12; De Paul, 0.
1931—Harrison, 44; Mount Carmel, 6.
1933—Mount Carmel, 7; Harrison, 0.

Both Teams Heavy.

Lindblom and Leo are the heaviest teams in their respective leagues, but do not rely on poundage alone to win ball games, for each has a pair of scoring ball carriers who rate as the best in their leagues. With Lindblom it's a case of Joe Dubsky, a left half who can do anything in the book, and Tony Juska, a great blocking full back. For Leo, the scoring job rests with its half backs, Bill Hinckley and Harold Bowen, and they have more than filled the bill for the Fighting Irish. Each team also has a leader for whom the degree of captain is more than a title. Tom Byrne, a fine end, heads Coach Whitey Cronin's team, while Lindblom's head man is Harry Bird, a guard of all around ability.

That crowd of 70,000 and more will not lack for celebrities in its midst, either. Gov. Horner is expected to be a guest of Mayor Kelly, while George Cardinal Mundelein, as head of the Catholic schools, and James McCahey, president of the board of education, will face each other from opposite sides of the field.

Winner to Get Kelly Trophy.

The winning team will receive the Mayor Kelly trophy, a handsome job consisting of a silver football with the silver figure of a football player atop it. The loser will be presented with a plaque indicating the title in its own league and its participation in the charity game. All of the players will receive a gold watch charm football from the mayor.

PAUL WILL MEET RIGHTMIRE IN MIDWAY WINDUP

Mike Gibbons and Son to Put On Exhibition.

The boxing show booked at Midway arena Monday was completed yesterday by Promoter Johnny Coulon. Tommy Paul, Buffalo, N. Y., featherweight, and Everett [Young] Rightmire, Sioux City, Ia., will meet in the 10 round main event. Mike Gibbons, who with Billy Papke and the late Eddie McGoorty claimed the middleweight championship in 1911, and his 20 year old son, Jack Gibbons, will box a four round exhibition in the semifinal. Other matches:

Lee Shepard vs. Harry Booker [6], 135.
George Van Der Hayden vs. Tod Kelly [5], 132.
Al Pahl vs. Le Roy [Sailor] Born [5], 137.

Paul expects to work out with Harry Dublinsky this afternoon. He went three rounds against Sailor Born yesterday.

Bob Mullins, Vincennes, Ind., lightweight, expects to appear in a preliminary on the Johnny Phagan-Jack Charvez card at Marigold Gardens Monday . . . . Billy Celebron, Rockford welterweight, has been forced out for two weeks because of an injury to his hand. . . . Bob La Monte and Patrick Henry, rival Chicago 147 pounders, have been signed to box at Rockford Dec. 13 under the promotion of Joe Mandell, elder brother of Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion. . . . Frank Sagilio, Cicero junior welterweight, worked out yesterday for the first time since his defeat by Davey Day at the Stadium several weeks ago.

Joe Lewis is to take two days' layoff and then go back into training for a 10 round bout with Hans Birkie, New York heavyweight, at Detroit Dec. 14. . . . Joe Foley has turned down an offer from the Hollywood, Fla., Junior Chamber of Commerce to hold the proposed Barney Ross-Tony Canzoneri lightweight title contest there instead of in Chicago next month. . . . Chick Rice informed the Illinois boxing commission yesterday that he has no interest in Duke Barry's welterweight protege, Jack Elverrillo, contrary to the statement made by Barry Monday. . . . Primo Carnera is scheduled to fight Victorio Campolo tonight at Buenos Aires after a week's postponement. . . . Dave Jackson, former California lightweight, is promoting shows at Santa Fe, N. M.

Champion Max Baer and his brother, Buddy Baer, will work out today and tomorrow at C. Y. O. center for the benefit of movie newsreel camera men. . . . X-ray pictures have revealed that Karl Ogren, north side middleweight, suffered a rib fracture in his losing scrap with Frank Battaglia Tuesday. . . . .The injury has delayed until Monday his departure for a rest at Hot Springs, Ark.

Barney Ross will entrain Wednesday night for Cleveland, O., where he boxes Bobby Pacho of Los Angeles Dec. 10 in a 12 round 140 pound title bout. . . . He will be accompanied by his co-managers, Sam Pian and Art Winch, and Trainer Izzy Kline. . . . Mrs. Maurice Rivkin, wife of the Chicago promoter, has given birth to a 7 pound 14 ounce boy at Edgewater hospital. F. M.

ARMORY, RIDING CLUB HOLD POLO GAMES TONIGHT

Play in both the junior and senior divisions of the Metropolitan Indoor Polo league will start tonight at the 124th Field Artillery arena, Cottage Grove avenue and 52d street.

The high goal battle will pit the North Shore Polo and Hunt club, led by Herb Lorber, against Capt. Bill Everett's 124th Field Artillery trio. This game will be preceded by the Linconshire Polo club-124th Field Artillery Cardinals duel, which is set to get under way at 8:30 o'clock.

Two games are also scheduled for this evening at the Chicago Riding club, 333 East Erie street. The Chicago Black Horse troop will meet the 122d Field Artillery and the Riding Club Centaurs will encounter the 106th Cavalry.

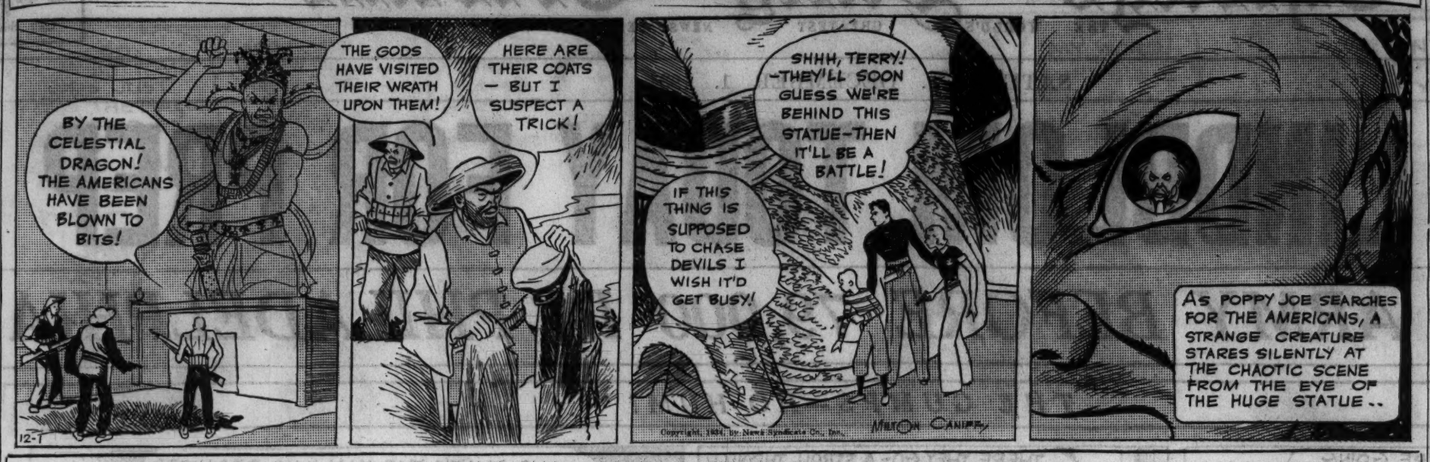
TERRY AND THE PIRATES—EYE OF THE MONSTER



DICK TRACY—The Broken Beam

Minnesota Is First in Sale of Duck Stamps

BY BOB BECKER.

First reports on the sale of the migratory waterfowl hunting stamps issued by the department of agriculture in Washington reveal that only 182,407 of the one dollar stamps had been sold up to Oct. 25. This seemingly is a very small sale inasmuch as an income of at least $500,000 a year was predicted from the tax. The season has closed in several states, but it still is open in many and down south it has quite a while to run.

However, if sales do nothing else, they will give duck experts an idea of the relative number of hunters in the different states, which will make them worth while. One of the interesting comparisons in the statistics to date reveals that Minnesota bought about 2½ times as many stamps as Illinois, yet Illinois is supposed to be one of the greatest duck hunting states in the valley.

Up to Oct. 25, 32,433 migratory bird stamps were sold in Minnesota and only 13,827 in Illinois. The comparison recalls some figures on duck kills of a few years ago. At that time statistics showed that Minnesota had taken more than 2,000,000 ducks during one season. Yet if one is to believe all the talk one might think that Illinois contains the leading group of duck hunters with a top score in birds bagged.

Minnesota leads all states in stamp sales with Wisconsin, where 29,446 stamps have been sold, second. Wyoming was ahead of Illinois, buying more than 16,000 stamps. Illinois is fourth with a purchase of 13,827.

Michigan bought 11,000 stamps. Of course total sales will go up within the next few months, when the southern states are heard from. But it doesn't appear as if the revenue from the sales will be near the amount hoped for.

CARDINALS LEAVE TODAY ON TOUR TO WEST COAST

First Game Tomorrow at Kansas City.

The Chicago Cardinals will leave today on a tour which will carry them to the Pacific coast. The first stop will be at Kansas City, where the National leaguers will meet the American Professional league team tomorrow afternoon. A game will be played at Tulsa Wednesday night.

The first game on the coast is scheduled for Los Angeles on Dec. 9, where a Pacific Coast league team will be met. Another contest is scheduled for Los Angeles on Dec. 16 and then the team will work north, playing in San Francisco on Dec. 23. Games have been tentatively arranged for Portland and Seattle.

The Cardinals leave Chicago satisfied with their season in the National league. Made up almost entirely of men playing their first season in professional football, the team gradually reached a state of potency which gave promise of greater success in the championship fight next fall.

Team Built on New Material.

Built around men who were new to the professional game and strangers to each other when the season started, the eleven was asked to play the best teams in the National league. Eleven games were scheduled. Eight of these were on the road. The Cardinals won five of the games and lost six, four of the defeats coming at the hands of Detroit and the Bears, the two greatest teams in football. Three of the victories were over Brooklyn and Green Bay, long runs with kicks by Homer Griffith enabling the league freshmen to whip the Packers twice.

Considering the circumstances, the Cardinals enjoyed a good season. Seven games on the coast will give them more experience and with several replacements, which are expected to be recruited from college stars, the team should show a distinct improvement next year.

Cards Need Passer.

The principal replacements needed, are a good passer, a big center, at least one end, one guard and a tackle. The team now has two good centers in the veteran McNally and Hughes, but a pivot man with more heft would be a valuable addition. McNally and Hughes are not as big as the general run of National league centers.

It might be possible to get along without all these line replacements if a good passer could be found. Griffith, Russell, Greene, and Sarboe have been doing the passing this year, but of the four none except Sarboe has demonstrated any efficiency.

Coach Paul Schissler expects to sign several of the needed replacements during the western tour.

Open Up Game to Save Gate, Kerr Advises

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Warning that college football faces a loss of fan patronage unless the rules committee makes it a wide open game was voiced today by Andy Kerr, Colgate's coach, at a meeting of coaches here for the Army-Navy game tomorrow.

A number of coaches backed up Kerr's statement.

"The colleges are having a tough time competing for patronage with the professional teams," Kerr said. "The pros have a wide open game, and we should have one or we're going to lose favor with the spectators who like plenty of thrills."

Bierman Speaks.

Bernie Bierman, coach of the undefeated Minnesota combination, also spoke, confining his address to offensives of football teams.

"To my mind," he said, "a running attack is the foundation of any offensive system. Blocking is what I lay more stress on than anything else. For if a man can block, tackling will come to him easily enough."

Urges New Lateral Rule.

Kerr and others of the players were of the opinion that the lateral pass rules should be altered. Kerr said that if a lateral pass, after a completed forward, is detected by the referee as moving forward, the ball should be downed at the point where the forward pass was completed, not, as now, where the play began.

Among the other speakers were Fritz Crisler, Princeton; Glenn [Pop] Warner, Temple; Lou Little, Columbia; Harry Stuhldreher, Villanova; William Cowell, New Hampshire, and Walter Okeson, head of the rules-making body.

Manders Takes National League Scoring Lead

Jack Manders, Bear full back and goal kicking star of the National league, went into the league scoring lead Thursday as a result of his two field goals and point after touchdown against Detroit.

Manders now has 73 points, just one more than Dutch Clark of the Lions. Clark, who previously led the league, scored only one point Thursday.

Their records for league games follow:

	Td.	Pts.	F.G.	Tl.
Manders	3	29	6	74
Clark	3	15	4	73

Manders remains supreme for the second season in kicking points after touchdowns. As far as can be ascertained he has established a world record in this department of play.

Dating back to his entry into professional football last year, and including nonleague games, Manders has kicked 85 points out of 86 attempts. His one miss came in the Cincinnati game, Oct. 21, at Wrigley field, when the ball struck the upright. In almost every instance Carl Brumbaugh has held the ball for him.

Badgers Run Over Franklin Five, 34 to 11

Madison, Wis., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The University of Wisconsin basketball team opened its season with a 34 to 11 victory over Franklin College of Indiana tonight. The game was the first under Coach Bud Foster, and the first time in 15 years that Dr. Walter E. Meanwell has not been in charge.

Rolf Poser, star guard, topped the Badger attack with five goals and a free throw. Gilly McDonald and Ray Hamman, guards; and Dick Demark, forward, were the only other Wisconsin players to collect two baskets.

Coach Foster used 17 players, sending in a full third team a few minutes before the finish.

Badgers Start Early.

Wisconsin piled up eight points before Ferrell, substitute forward, scored for Franklin on a tip-in shot. Poison followed with another basket for Franklin, the last for the losers during the first half.

The Badgers held a 16 to 7 advantage at the end of the half and made it 25 to 7 before Franklin scored again. A long basket by Ferrell from the left side of the court was the only field goal of the second half for Franklin and its third of the game.

Chandler Scouts Games.

Among the spectators was Coach Bill Chandler of the Marquette basketball team, who was scouting for the Hilltoppers' home and home series with Wisconsin.

Wisconsin's next game next Friday night is with Carleton college, coached by Marsh Diebold, another protégé of Dr. Meanwell, Wisconsin athletic director and former coach. Lineup:

MICHIGAN OPENS SEASON.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Some suggestion as to whether relief may be expected from the ailment with which some Michigan teams have been suffering for nearly a year now will be provided tomorrow night when the basketball team meets Calvin college at Grand Rapids.

Dick Joslin, John Jablonski, John Gee, Capt. Al Plummer, and Dick Evans will make up the starting team. Others who will make the trip are John Powell, George Ford, Chelso, Tamagno, George Rudness, Jack Tietelbaum, Bob Hill, John Rieck, and Earl Meyers.

IOWA MEETS HAMLINE.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa basketball team will open its 19 game schedule here tomorrow night against Hamline college of St. Paul, Minn. Five veterans will compose the starting lineup.

Coach Rollie Williams expects to start three major letter men and a pair of experienced juniors who won minor awards last year. John Grim, guard; Ivan Blackmer, center; and John Barko, forward, are major letter men expected to carry the team.

Williams probably will use most of his reserves, since most of his squad is made up of sophomores in need of experience. Players making their first intercollegiate start include Matt Walsh, Council Bluffs, Ia., a 6 foot 6 inch center; Al Buss, Keokuk, Ia., guard; Glen Tangeman, Sioux City, Ia., forward, and Dick Moran, Rock Island, Ill., forward.

Hamline will have three veterans in its lineup, headed by Wally Zimmerman, 6 foot 3 inch forward. Probable lineups:

DETROIT ELEVEN TO ENCOUNTER HUSKIES TODAY

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Outweighed at least eighteen pounds to the man, the University of Detroit football team will be the underdog here tomorrow in its intersectional football game with Washington State college.

The Cougars arrived here today with a record of two defeats in competition outside of the Pacific coast conference.

The Detroit eleven is closing a season that includes three defeats and one tie, but it has played its best football in its last two games with Michigan State and Marquette.

The Titans will depend largely on the running and passing of Douglas Nott, with Al Boglarsky and Dick Lutz on the receiving ends of the tosses.

Washington State, with a heavier and more powerful team, will depend for its attack upon Ed Goddard and Ted Christofferson in the back field and Theodoratos in the line. Unless it rains by game time the field will be fairly dry and fast.

SYRACUSE TEAM REQUESTS BAN ON HOCKY REFEREE

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 30.—(AP)—John C. Johnson, president of the Syracuse Stars in the International hocky league, today filed with the league president, Charles King, formal request that Referee Moose Jamieson of Cleveland, be prohibited from officiating in future games in which the Stars participate.

The step came as an aftermath to what spectators described as "close to a riot" climaxing last night's game won by the Buffalo Bisons, 2 to 1.

Jamieson has refereed three of the season's four games here. With a tie and one minute to go, someone rang a bell. The Stars stopped playing, taking it as the final gong, but Roth, Buffalo's center, skated on and scored. Young Stein, Syracuse goalie, made no effort to stop it. Stein then picked up the puck disinterestedly and tossed it over to the referee who skated over to the official scorer to certify the goal.

As this intention became apparent, there was a roar of disapproval from the fans and a rush of the Stars in protest. The goal was counted, nevertheless. It was then that the fans rushed the referee. State police formed a protective cordon around him, brandishing clubs.

OLYMPICS TEAM TO CLOSE SERIES WITH CANADIANS

The Olympics and Western university hocky clubs will play the final game of their series at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow afternoon. It will be the first matinée amateur hocky game of the season.

The University club after its defeat by the Olympic Thursday night wired to London for reënforcements. It is expected that Alex McInnes, Bud Steadman, and Dave Mills, second string forward line, will be in Chicago tonight to strengthen the Canadian club. Tomorrow's game will be the last that the Olympics will play at the Stadium until Dec. 9.

Lloyd Burdick Becomes Head Track Coach at Knox

Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Lloyd Burdick, football coach at Knox this year, has been appointed head track coach it was announced today. He will also have charge of the freshman basketball team. Burdick was a member of the University of Illinois track team for three years.

Scalping of Free Tickets Stirs Capital

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—A swiftly growing practice among some congressional secretaries to "scalp" annual Army-Navy football tickets, of which the Naval academy gives two each to congress members who ask for them, has reached such an extent that it is becoming "obnoxious and disgraceful," one congress member declared today after being forced to pay an exorbitant price for two tickets that had been presented to one of his colleagues.

Published reports from Philadelphia that professional "scalpers" were asking upward of $75 a pair for tickets to the service game there tomorrow sent the price up on Capitol hill this afternoon.

Calls Practice Disgraceful.

"It is a disgrace, and it is also illegal, and the practice should be stopped before it becomes a scandal," the house sergeant at arms, Kenneth Romney, said after he sent capitol police about the building to warn known "speculators" among the secretaries and clerks that they were risking embarrassment not only to themselves but to their employers.

A reporter telephoned to a southern representative to ask if he could obtain two tickets. Congress members frequently present tickets to constituents and personal friends, but no member in recent years has been known to sell complimentary tickets himself.

"The congressman has disposed of his allotment," said the secretary, "but I know where you can purchase four tickets for $40."

Disposes of Tickets.

The person who had the tickets for sale is employed in the house postoffice and had disposed of the four when the newspaper man arrived.

"I will try to get you some more later in the day," the clerk said.

A secretary for another house member bought two tickets for $5 each from another secretary, who obtained them from another representative under a plea that "the boss" needed them.

BLOOM TO INVESTIGATE.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Representative Sol Bloom intends to find out just why speculators are getting $50 to $75 for seats at the Army-Navy football game tomorrow.

The New York Democrat was mad clean through when he announced today that he would demand a congressional investigation of the whole business of distributing tickets, intimating a few generals and admirals might have to answer some questions.

Bloom had more than one constituent looking to him to get seats for the big game at Philadelphia. More than a month ago, Bloom said today, he applied for tickets, and after waiting for weeks he was told, "Sorry, but they are all gone."

"Sure they are gone," he repeated. "But the speculators have them and all they want is $50 to $75. Where did they get them? That's what I'm going to find out. Somebody is getting some money. I don't know who, but I'll find out."

Members of congress receive two free tickets, upon which they must pay a tax. In addition, Bloom said, they were permitted to apply for a number of others, paying the regular $4.40 price.

"I can't even go myself," he complained. "I had to give my tickets away. You don't suppose I could go and then have some constituent point me out and say, 'No seats, eh? Well, he got there himself all right.'"

Silver Football.

Dear Wake: From various comments concerning THE TRIBUNE Silver Football, I gather the impression that the chosen individuals of our "one man teams" are very lucky indeed. While Pug Lund, outstanding man on the strongest eleven in the country, helped immeasurably to give his team national honors, it begins to look as if the old propaganda is going to work, namely, "Our hero should get the trophy because the team looks so lousy when he's out. Wisconsin '26.

Ed Whalen of Northwestern may or may not get many votes for the Silver Football, but Purple players know his value during that period in the middle of the season when morale was at such low ebb it did not look as if one conference game would be bagged.

Whalen never quit, either on or off the field. His fine spirit was in large part responsible for the rally which caused defeat of Wisconsin and Michigan and almost overturned Notre Dame. Whalen was more valuable to Northwestern than any outsider can know. Purple '32.

Floor Show Not So Good.

Harvey: Indiana's creditable and surprising victory over Purdue in the season's final, knocking the Boilermakers from a place on the title pedestal, reminds me of a remark made at the Chicago-Indiana game which the Maroons won, 21-0. Indiana's band had given a splendid performance on the field between halves. The man in front of us turned around and remarked, "Well, I like their band, but I think their floor show is lousy." At the break of day he hiked away
Elsewhere to seek some knowledge.
He thumbed and thumbed, nearly succumbed,
But finally got to college.
He did his bit and never quit,
He's a "Baron" now, they say.
He can kick and pass before the mass
On any Saturday.

So let's conclude this interlude
To Lindberg, the Lockport boy.
If you haven't guessed, I will suggest—
He plays for Illinois.

LONDOS ARRIVES TODAY TO SLEEP IN A REAL BED

Jim Londos, heavyweight champion of the wrestling world, will arrive in Chicago this morning by airplane from Boston to meet Jack Smith in defense of his title at the Coliseum Monday night.

With a score of only three nights in a bed in the last month, Londos welcomed the suggestion by his manager, Ed White, that he hop to Chicago by plane immediately after his match in Boston last night. During the heavy schedule maintained by the champion on his eastern tour all but the three nights have been spent in trains and on airplanes and he has dropped nearly 20 pounds in weight as a result.

Upon arrival in Chicago today he will go to the Libertyville estate of Manager White and will do nothing but eat and sleep until time to go to the Coliseum Monday night. In this way he expects to build up his weight and recover much of the nervous energy he has lost during the strenuous campaign among the leading heavyweights of the country that sent him into more than forty matches in two months.

U. of Chicago Prep Basketball Meet to Open Dec. 26

The fifth of the series of annual Christmas week interscholastic basketball tournaments at the University of Chicago will be held Dec. 26 to Jan. 1, Nelson Norgren, Maroon basketball coach announced yesterday. There will be no games on Sunday, Dec. 30, but there will be semi-finals the afternoon and evening of Dec. 31, with the finals New Year's night.

Invitations have been sent to teams of Chicago and suburbs only. A total of 32 teams will be accepted.

In last year's meet, Lane defeated Parker, 25 to 16, in the final game, and Hyde Park's lightweights defeated Harrison, 33 to 24, for third place.

Blackhawks Return Home Still in Lead

Despite their unexpected defeat by the low scoring New York Americans Thursday, the champion Blackhawks returned to Chicago last night still leading the American division of the National hocky league.

Should Boston defeat the Canadiens, whom they are scheduled to meet tonight at Montreal, Chicago will battle the Americans tomorrow night at the Stadium tied for first place with the Bruins.

The Americans upset all hocky dope by winning their last game from their high scoring city rivals, the Rangers, and later beat the champion Blackhawks.

Toronto, running ahead of all other teams in the National hocky league with seven straight victories and no defeats, plays on the Maple Leafs' ice tonight with the trailing St. Louis Eagles. The result of the contest should keep the Leafs' string of victories unbroken.

Manager Clem Loughlin has ordered practice at the Stadium for 12 o'clock today.

Table Tennis Semi-Finals Are Scheduled for Today

The quarter-final and semi-final rounds of play for the men's championship in the sixth annual Chicago district table tennis tournament will be held today at the South Shore Table Tennis club, 2216 E. 71st street. The survivors include Max Rushakoff, Mort Ladin, Billy Condy, Herman Leavitt, Ed Dugan, Ed Lewis, Bob Radcliff, and Carleton Prouty.

DAY'S FOOTBALL GAMES ARE FEW, BUT IMPORTANT

Army-Navy, Tulane-L.S.U. Battles Stand Out.

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Aside from the spectacular Army-Navy football show, which dominates tomorrow's brief farewell to football in most sections of the country, chief interest centers in maneuvers calculated to help settle conference championships in the south and southwest.

It may be Navy's year to break through the stalwart Army line, with Buzz Borries primed to take the spotlight from West Point's versatile Jack Buckler. A muddy field may enhance Army's chances, while slowing down the nimble Borries, but Navy seems better equipped on offense and rates at least even on the defense.

Alabama Dominates South.

Alabama's mighty crimson tide, the only major team that can successfully dispute Minnesota's claim to all-conquering national honors, has captured the Rose Bowl nomination, but, like the Gophers, cannot claim undisputed sectional laurels unless something happens to the remaining contenders.

Illinois and Purdue were removed so that Minnesota could occupy the Big Ten heights all alone and Alabama's hopes of a clear cut hold on the Southeastern conference title now depend on what happens to Louisiana State and Tulane, who wage their annual battle tomorrow at Baton Rouge.

A Tie Would Be Perfect.

All three Dixie aggregations are undefeated in conference competition so far, Alabama showing seven straight victories, Tulane six, and L. S. U. four. The best Alabama can hope for is a tie between the Louisiana rivals, whereby both would be eliminated. They finished in a 7 to 7 deadlock last year, but each has different plans for tomorrow afternoon. L. S. U., which will be more interested in the performance of Abe Mickal in the back field than what Senator Huey P. Long does in the cheering section, has been installed a favorite, but it will be no great surprise if Monsimons leads Tulane to victory.

Even if Louisiana State wins it still will have another difficult barrier to negotiate before claiming a half-share of the conference championship. The Tigers meet Tennessee a week from tomorrow at Knoxville.

Rice Faces Baylor.

Rice institute, whose dash to the Southwest conference title was abruptly checked by Texas Christian last week, can clinch the title by defeating the Baylor Bears tomorrow, but this is far from the soft assignment it appeared a few weeks ago. Baylor defeated Southern Methodist last Saturday and again is in an ideal spot to shoot the works. Rice, with Bill Wallace leading his last charge of the season, should win, but will be under considerable pressure.

SUIT CHARGES HARDING ESTATE FORCED $133,000

Purchasers of Newspaper Allege Coercion.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—(AP)—A claim that they were coerced under threat of legal action into paying $133,000 to the estate of Warren G. Harding is contained in a suit filed with the board of tax appeals by Louis H. Brush and Roy D. Moore, purchasers of the former President's Ohio newspaper, the Marion Star.

The suit also disclosed that terms of the sale provided Harding was to be employed for $13,300 a year as associate editor to write editorials and syndicated articles. Presumably, this was to start when Harding left the White House.

The contract was dated June 18, 1923. Harding died Aug. 2, 1923.

Tell of Estate Payments.

Brush and Moore claimed they paid the estate $13,300 per year for ten years following his death. They charged the bureau of internal revenue erroneously assessed them a deficiency totaling $3,350 for 1930 and 1931.

The petition said Brush and Moore considered that no further liability rested upon them, since President Harding died before the formation of an employment contract.

"Suit Threatened," Say Publishers.

"This view was not accepted by Mrs. Harding, the President's brother and sister, Charles D. Chaffner, executor of Harding's estate, nor by Messrs. Hoke Donithen and Richard Crissinger, who were attorneys for the Harding family and estate.

"When the parties failed to agree on this matter the Hardings threatened suit against the Harding Publishing company to compel this payment of $13,300 per year and the guarantee therefor.

"To avoid the danger to its circulation and good will from this threatened suit, the Harding Publishing company, by its new owners, agreed to a settlement of the claim made by the Harding family and their representatives."

Brush and Moore contended the $26,600 paid the Harding estate in 1930 and 1931 was "necessary business expense" and was deducted in the tax return.

The bureau of internal revenue is attempting to collect a $3,350 deficiency tax on this amount.

JUSTICE DE YOUNG LEAVES WIDOW $55,000 ESTATE

The will of Frederic R. De Young, justice of the Illinois Supreme court, leaving an estate estimated at $55,000 to his widow, Mrs. Miriam Cornell De Young, 4808 Kimbark avenue, was admitted to probate yesterday by George B. Weiss, assistant to the probate judge. Justice De Young died Nov. 16. A son, Herbert C. De Young, is left all of the jurist's legal papers and books.

The following other wills were admitted to probate and filed with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin:

WILLIAM J. DUNNE, died Oct. 17. Estate $11,000, to aunt and executrix, Julia F. Ford.

HILTON C. HESS, died Nov. 21. Estate $8,000, to widow, son, and sister. Ethel C. Hess, widow, executrix.

2 MILLION LEFT WESLEYAN U. BY CHARLES MORSE

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Wesleyan university at Middletown, Conn., was named residuary beneficiary to receive $2,904,468 from the estate of Charles H. Morse, who died on March 3 last, leaving, according to a transfer tax appraisal filed today, a gross estate of $4,495,056 and a net of $4,237,567. Four other public bequests totaled $40,000. The bulk of the estate is in securities amounting to $4,404,192.

The residuary bequest to Wesleyan university is to establish the "Persis C. Thorndike fund" in memory of Mr. Morse's mother. An affidavit in the appraisal papers showed that the university returned $200,000 to the widow, Mrs. Amelia F. Morse, at her request, for distribution among relatives she felt had not been adequately remembered in the will.

F. W. PROUDFOOT, ATTORNEY IN CITY 40 YEARS, IS DEAD

Frederick W. Proudfoot, an attorney in Chicago for more than forty years, died of a heart attack at his home at 2120 Sedgwick street. Mr. Proudfoot was widely known for his legal practice with the Board of Trade during the '90s. Later he entered general practice.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Andrea Hofer Proudfoot, once prominent in kindergarten circles here; by four daughters, Mrs. G. K. Carus and Mrs. Edmund Giesbert of Chicago, Mrs. E. H. Ulbrich of McGregor, Ia., and Mrs. W. M. Dusek of Mission, Tex., and by two sons, Alexander W. of Chicago and Malcolm J., now with the Tennessee Valley authority in Tennessee. Two brothers and two sisters also survive.

ANNA KELLER, AN ACTRESS OF EARLY '80S, DIES

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Keller, who was the aunt of Blanche Yurka, actress, will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning in the chapel at 5130 West 25th street. Burial will be in the Bohemian National cemetery.

Mrs. Keller, who was 81 years old, died Thursday night in the home of a son at 5352 Union avenue. With her brother, Joseph Jurka, Mrs. Keller brought the first Bohemian plays to Chicago in the early '80s. She played the leading rôles in the plays which were given in the old Taylor street and De Koven street turner halls.

Mrs. Keller had lived in Chicago for sixty-eight years. She is survived by three sons, John, Nicholas, and Joseph.

Mrs. Runley lived in Shabbona for more than 30 years. She died after a lingering illness. She is survived by her husband, Martin; a daughter, Mrs. Anthony J. Steger, 2326 Lincoln Park West, four sisters, and two brothers.

NOVEMBER AUTO DEATHS GAIN 15 OVER LAST YEAR

Figures made public yesterday by Coroner Frank J. Walsh show 15 more automobile deaths in Cook county in November, 1934, than in the corresponding month a year ago. There were 120 automobile deaths this year as compared with 105 in November, 1933.

Total deaths of 1,148 in the county during the first eleven months of 1934 are greater by 130 than the number of fatalities for the first eleven months last year.

A recommendation that warning lights be placed on the concrete abutment supporting a railroad viaduct over Halsted street at 75th street was made yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Mrs. Anne Toomey, 24 years old, 350 West 45th street. Mrs. Toomey, wife of Policeman Dennis Toomey and the mother of three small children, died Thursday night in the Auburn Park hospital. She was fatally injured Tuesday when the automobile in which she was riding crashed into the abutment.

Victor R. Barger, 41 years old, 4445 North Paulina street, was arrested last night and held for the inquest into the death of Gottfried Burkhalster, 77 years old, 1524 Byron street, who was struck by an automobile near his home last Saturday and died Thursday. Barger admitted striking Burkhalster, but asserted his injuries at the time appeared trivial and that the injured man refused to be taken to a hospital.

Four deaths yesterday increased the toll for the year to 1,149. The victims:

Albert Thomas, 35 years old, colored, 1225 South Sangamon street. Died in the County hospital of injuries incurred Thursday when his car skidded and crashed into a street car in front of 3762 Indiana avenue.

Mrs. Margaret O'Brien, 61 years old, 1649 Vine street. Died in the county hospital of pneumonia contracted after she was treated for a fractured arm suffered when she was struck by an automobile at Western avenue and Addison street on Oct. 24.

Joseph Shellbrook, about 46 years old, address unknown. Died in the county hospital of injuries incurred Wednesday when he was struck by an automobile on 111th street near Sacramento avenue.

John Stanick, 43 years old, 2642 North Artesian avenue. Died in St. Elizabeth's hospital of injuries suffered last evening when he was struck in front of 2644 North Western avenue by an automobile, the driver of which fled after the accident.

Rites Today for J. F. Ahles, Rail Employe for 53 Years

Funeral services for Julius F. Ahles, general freight agent for the Erie railroad, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel at 200 East Erie street. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery. Mr. Ahles, who had worked for the Erie for 53 years, died Thursday night in his home at 4641 Malden street. He was 77 years old. He is survived by his widow, Emma; a son, Harry J. Ahles, and a daughter, Mrs. A. G. Milne.

SCENE OF GRANT VICTORY IN 1862 NATIONAL PARK

Battlefield on Road from Chicago to Florida.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dover, Tenn., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The Fort Donelson National park here marks with tablets and monuments the civil war battlefield where Union troops won their first big victory and their commander, a former resident of Galena, Ill., acquired the nickname, "Unconditional Surrender" Grant. Illinois and Indiana regiments played a prominent part in the engagement.

THE TRIBUNE roadster arrived here today on a tour of history hallowed grounds. It is en route to Florida, leading the parade of motor vacationists from the north on their annual invasion of southern resorts.

Most of these visitors keep to the main highways with the sole objective of reaching their destinations as quickly as possible. These reports of historical detours might serve as a guide to a more leisurely trip, or, for the stay at homes, as a magic carpet tour.

Rifle Pits Remain.

Rifle pits and gun placements are the only remnants of a strong confederate fortress on these hills of the Cumberland river's west bank.

The south depended upon it to block the enemy from penetrating the heart of Dixie over this waterway. The unincorporated community of Dover, population 400, reflects none of its former military importance.

Metal plaques, however, tell the story. Read on these old parapets, and it takes no great imagination to hear the thlunder of canon, the crack of muskets, the shouts of combat, the cries of wounded.

Within these earthworks were 21,000 confederates, including 2,600 who had retreated from Fort Henry on the Tennessee river twelve miles to the west. On Feb. 12, 1862, Grant surrounded these hills with 15,000 men and reconnoitered for two days awaiting reinforcements.

Escort of Gunboats.

On the 14th Lew Wallace arrived with a brigade that had been left at Fort Henry. From the north, up the river, came troop transports escorted by four ironclads and two wooden gunboats under Commodore Foote. Opposing forces were then about equal in numbers with the south in fortifications. On the 15th the flotilla was repulsed with heavy losses in an exchange of iron balls with land batteries. The commodore was wounded.

On the morning of the 16th, in a cold blizzard, while Grant was on Foote's flagship conferring with the injured naval officer, the confederates attacked in strength on the south in an attempt to break through the union line to escape to Nashville.

The union line, the right wing, was broken when Grant arrived on the scene. He ordered his left wing to attack. It was a success. The enemy's rifle pits were captured. The gap in the union line was closed. That night the southern generals, Floyd and Pillow, escaped with a thousand men on a steamer and Gen. Forrest and his confederate cavalary slipped out on a submerged road.

Armistice is Refused.

This left Gen. Buckner with 15,000 men in the garrison. On the morning of the 16th, he wrote to Grant proposing an armistice to negotiate terms of surrender. Grant replied: "No terms except an unconditional and immediate surrender can be accepted. I propose to move immediately upon your works."

The secessionists laid down their arms. The Cumberland waterway to the south was opened. The north, downhearted from a year of war without progress, was cheered. Alarm was spread through the south by this break in its string of fortresses. The Tennessee river avenue into Dixie had been opened on Feb. 7 when the secessionists abandoned Fort Henry as it was bombarded by Admiral Foote's gun boats while Grant was approaching on land. It was the first confederate fort to fall in the war. Immediately thereafter the confederates, threatened by this enemy advance to their rear, evacuated Bowling Green, Ky., and their stronghold on the Mississippi river at Columbus, Ky.

Close to Beaten Path.

This national park is not far from the beaten path of Chicagoland tourists en route to Florida. U. S. 41, a popular tourist route passes through Hopkinsville, Ky. South twenty-seven miles on U. S. 41 W. and thence west the same distance on Tenn. 76 leads over good roads to this battleground.

THE TRIBUNE roadster also visited the site of Fort Henry. It involved ten miles of difficult driving over a rutted and muddy trail that is not recommended for tourists.

David S. Stevenson Dies While Riding on Street Car

David S. Stevenson, 71 years old, 2634 Lakeview avenue, sales manager for the Air Conditioning corporation, 221 North La Salle street, died yesterday on a southbound Clark street car at Illinois street. News of the Radio Stations

The Dionne quintuplets will make their radio bow at 7:15 p. m., Dec. 20. The program will be broadcast over the full Columbia and Canadian radio commission networks. The famous babies will "perform" just before their evening meal when a microphone will be placed in front of them in the small hospital specially built for them on the Dionne farm in northern Ontario. Whether they will coo, cry, or gurgle for the radio audience—or do all three—is a matter of speculation.

Participating with the quintuplets in the novel broadcast will be Oliver Dionne, grandfather; a nurse, and Dr. Allen R. Dafoe, country physician, whose success in bringing the babies into the world and guiding them to improved health attracted wide attention in the medical world, as well as the commendation of thousands of laymen.

The broadcast will originate from the CBS outlet in Montreal.

Dorothy Page, titian haired and 24, will receive a silver loving cup in recognition of her selection as the most beautiful girl radio performer. The presentation will take place during her appearance on Jan Garber's Supper club program over WLS-NBC at 7 p. m., Monday. The Garber organization is aired nightly over W-G-N.

The First Nighter dramatic sketch on WMAQ-NBC celebrated its fourth anniversary on the air last night. A large studio audience, a cake, and telegrams from celebrities greeted the players. June Meredith has been the feminine star since the program's inception.

In the wake of England's royal wedding comes this: Alex McQueen, in his "Nothing but the Truth" series, is to "settle for all time" the question—"Is Mae West related to the prince of Wales?" The answer is to be given at 5:45 p. m. Monday over WBBM-CBS.

W. H. KENTNOR, WIDELY KNOWN IN ADVERTISING, DIES

Funeral services for William H. Kentnor, 77 years old, known in advertising circles throughout the country as a publishers' representative, who died Thursday in his home at 2216 Sherman avenue, Evanston, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Graceland cemetery chapel, Chicago.

Mr. Kentnor had been a resident of Chicago and Evanston for more than thirty years. Until his retirement several years ago he was a member of the Benjamin & Kentnor Co. He was born in St. Louis and entered the advertising business there, being associated at various times with the Post Dispatch, Globe Democrat, and Westliche Post.

Mr. Kentnor is survived by his widow, Mary Frances Kentnor, one son, William F. Kentnor of Winnetka, and one grandson, Clayton I. Kentnor of Cincinnati.

CAR LOADINGS DECLINE 23,212 IN LAST WEEK

Drop Seasonal; Total Falls to 561,313.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Freight trafic last week showed a seasonal decline of 23,212 cars from the preceding week with a total of 561,313 cars, it was announced yesterday by the Association of American Railroads. The total was 84,425 cars below the corresponding week of last year but 67,995 above 1932.

While the decline followed seasonal trends it was somewhat larger than had been expected. The preceding week's total of 584,524 cars was 18,183 below a year ago but 11,902 above two years ago.

For the year to date the amount of freight handled totals 28,193,515 cars, compared with 26,632,816 in the corresponding period of last year and 25,696,670 in 1932.

Miscellaneous Total Lower.

Miscellaneous freight loadings for the week ended Nov. 24, totaled 206,809 cars, a decrease of 12,381 from the preceding week, 751 below the corresponding week in 1933, but an increase of 40,483 cars over the corresponding week in 1932.

Loading of merchandise less than carlot freight totaled 159,635 cars, an increase of 2,54 over the preceding week, a decrease of 5,467 cars from the corresponding week in 1933, and an increase of 12,884 cars above the same week in 1932.

Coal loadings amounted to 119,165 cars, a reduction of 6,231 cars below the preceding week, and 9,902 cars from the corresponding week in 1933, but an increase of 4,118 in the same week in 1932.

Grain Loss Small.

Grain and grain products totaled 27,938 cars, a decrease of 96 cars from the preceding week, 4,202 cars below the corresponding week in 1932, and an increase of 1,275 cars above the same week in 1932. In the western districts alone loadings totaled 17,753 cars, a decrease of 3,758 below 1933.

Live stock loadings totaled 19,152 cars, a decrease of 4,101 from the preceding week, 1,545 above the same week last year, and 2,050 above 1932. In the western district loadings were 14,448 cars, an increase of 759 above last year.

Forest products totaled 20,108, down 1,503 from the preceding week, and 2,040 below 1933, but an increase of 5,351 over 1932. Ore totaled 3,650, a decrease of 402 from the preceding week, and 879 below 1933, but an increase of 1,923 over the corresponding week in 1932.

Two Districts Have Gains.

Coke loadings totaled 4,856 cars, a decrease of 652 from the preceding week, 1,729 below 1933, and 89 below 1932. The Pocohontas southern and northwestern districts reported increases during the week, but other districts reported decreases.

DOLLAR STEADY AGAINST FRANC; GAINS ON POUND

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The dollar was steady to slightly lower against foreign gold currencies, but was stronger against the British pound in trading here today. French francs were unchanged at 6.59¼ cents. The value of the dollar in terms of the old par of the franc was 59.43 cents, while calculated on the new par of the franc the dollar was worth $1.0063.

The pound sterling lost ⅝ cent to close at $4.98, while Canadian dollars held at $1.02½. The lire gained ½ point to 8.53 cents, the belga 1 point to 23.36 cents, the Swiss franc 3 points to 32.45 cents, and the guilder 1 point to 67.60 cents. German marks were unchanged at 40.19 cents.

Bullion brokers in London raised the price of gold 2½ pence to 139 shillings 8½ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.80 a fine ounce, based on the opening of sterling at $4.98⅛. Bars valued at $547,937 were purchased.

The New York Federal Reserve bank reported gold arrivals today as follows: From France, $8,427,000; India, $1,757,100; Canada, $1,676,800; England, $1,101,400.

MORROW FACTION ELECTS BOARD OF M'CLELLAN STORES

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—After a battle of proxies which lasted for more than twelve hours, the George K. Morrow-United Cigar Stores corporation interests today elected their full slate of nine directors for the McLellan Stores corporation. All of the Morrow-United candidates received 382,010 votes, while the opposition received 127,093 votes.

The new board is now composed of Mr. Morrow as chairman, R. W. Jameson of United Cigar, Wilbur L. Cummings, attorney; Randolph Catlin, president of the Gold Dust corporation; Thomas H. McInnerney, president of National Dairy Products, and S. A. Powdrell, William W. McLellan, and Aldo R. Balsan.

Gold Nations Face Crucial Test in Prices

BY HOWARD WOOD.

For weeks there has been little change in the value of either the British pound or the American dollar in foreign exchange transactions.

In the United States the Warren-Rogers scheme of trying to manipulate prices of commodities by debasing the dollar appears to have been abandoned, at least temporarily, and there have been persistent rumors that an attempt is being made to prevent further cheapening of the dollar and to maintain the present ratio between the dollar and the pound. The American ambassador to Great Britain recently spoke in favor of adhering to such a policy.

Lending substance to these rumors was the action of the President early this month in removing restrictions on the exportation of American capital. Observers immediately seized upon this move as an indication that further dollar debasement was not being contemplated, at least in the near future.

With the United States and Great Britain both keeping the exchange value of their currencies fairly steady after a long period of manipulation, the danger in the international money situation lies in those countries that are still on the gold standard.

Within these countries — France, Holland, Belgium, and Switzerland—there are powerful groups of producers, exporters, and tourist resort interests who would like to see their own curriences devalued because they believe such action would make it easier for people in foreign countries to buy the things they have to sell.

Also within these nations, because the process of deflation and dropping prices has continued longer than in countries that have debased their currencies, there has been the political and social unrest that invariably accompanies a protracted period of declining prices.

The Nov. 17 issue of the Statist, British journal of economics and finance, presents an interesting tabulation showing the trend of wholesale prices in leading nations.

The following excerpts from this tabulation show what has happened to the wholesale price index in six countries since 1931. The first three nations belong to the so-called "managed" currency group. Great Britain and Sweden abandoned the gold standard in September, 1931; the United States in April, 1933. The second three nations, France, Switzerland, and Holland, are still on the gold standard and have not debased their currencies since 1931:

These figures show that whereas wholesale price averages in Great Britain, the United States, and Sweden are now equal to or higher than prices in 1931, France has suffered a further deflation of 22 per cent in wholesale prices, Switzerland, 19 per cent, and Holland, 20 per cent.

Great Britain and Sweden have been trying to solve their depressions via the inflation route. The United States tried deflation for two years and then inflation. France, Holland, Belgium, and Switzerland have stayed with the deflation method all the way.

Either method is painful, but most people in the gold standard countries, France and Belgium particularly, still recall with dismay what happened after the war, when so many European nations tried to solve their troubles by inflation, and they remember distinctly what happened — after the first pleasant stages—when inflation got out of control.

It seems reasonable to expect, therefore, that despite special pleading from certain groups of producers, exporters, and resort owners, the remaining gold standard countries will continue to resist the inflationists within their borders if their price structures are not further undermined by additional currency debasement in Great Britain and the United States.

Belgium Pays Back Most of Recent Loans

Another 7 million dollars of the credit extended to Belgium by the federal reserve banks was repaid last week. The weekly reserve report issued last night showed that Belgium had whittled down her loan to approximately 3 million.

The loan on gold, an unusual practice for the reserve banks, was granted to help support Belgium currency in the international exchange market. Two weeks ago the credit amounted to more than 15 millions. So much publicity was given to the loan when it first appeared in the reserve statement that Belgium apparently is anxious to pay it off.

Stabilization Sought.

A good deal of significance has been attached to the reserve bank's action. This country, nominally a managed currency nation is giving aid to Belgium in her attempt to stay on the gold standard. It was taken as clear evidence that this country is now definitely working for stabilization in the international money market.

The United States is still attracting gold from foreign countries. The reserve report showed an additional 36 million of the metal was shipped to this country during the last week, bringing the total of the nation's monetary gold stock to more than 8 billion 100 million dollars. The holdings of gold certificates of the reserve banks increased only 32 millions, leaving 4 million of gold unaccounted for. This may represent gold acquired by the treasury through sale of dollars.

The most conspicuous change in the position of the reserve member banks in New York and Chicago last week was the further expansion in holdings of government securities.

Little Change in Credit.

Chicago banks added another 4 millions to their holdings in governments, but other types of credit here showed little change from the preceding week's figures.

In New York banks invested 36 million more in government bonds and an additional 26 millions in other securities. Commercial loans, the type the administration is exhorting bankers to expand, were up 6 millions in New York but declined 5 million here. Brokers' loans of the New York banks increased 4 million while other collateral loans climbed 9 millions.

The holdings of government bonds of the 12 reserve banks remain unchanged at 2 billion 430 million dollars, the same total that has been reported for several months. Last week at the meeting of the open market committee of the reserve system, administration officials were assured that the reserve banks would again buy government bonds if it became necessary to do so.

Holt Takes New Position in Royal Bank of Canada

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 30.—After 26 years in office Sir Herbert Holt has relinquished the presidency of the Royal Bank of Canada and now becomes chairman of the board and chairman of the executive committee. He is succeeded by Morris W. Wilson as president and managing director, and Sydney G. Dobson follows Mr. Wilson as general manager.

RFC GETS HELL GATE BRIDGE AS COLLATERAL ON NEW HAVEN LOAN

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The Hell Gate bridge, the longest steel railway span in the world, has been added to the Reconstruction Finance corporation's list of loan collateral, it was disclosed today. The bridge, opened in 1918, cost, with its approaches, about $28,000,000. It is 1,000 feet long.

The engineering monument figures in the government loan agency's books as a result of a loan of $6,000,000 obtained from the RFC recently by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. To furnish collateral for the loan, the New Haven pledged its one-half interest in the New York Connecting railroad, which controls the bridge and its connections with the Pennsylvania railroad's East river tunnels on one hand and with the junction with the New Haven in the Bronx on the other.

To insure that the New Haven's only direct rail connection with lines west and south through New York should not be lost in the event of a default in the loan, the agreement with the RFC provided that the New Haven should have the right, within 60 days after notice of the RFC's intention to convert or to sell the collateral, to redeem the stock at par or to substitute other collateral. The agreement provides also that if within the 60 day period the New Haven is unable to regain the collateral, the Pennsylvania shall have the right within an additional period of 30 days to redeem the collateral or to deposit collateral acceptable both to the RFC and the interstate commerce commission.

REPUBLIC STEEL HEAD'S SALARY $129,372 YEARLY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Salaries of principal officers of the Republic Steel corporation were shown by the corporation's registration statement with the Securities and Exchange commission today to have increased from $419,628 in 1933 to $469,717 in 1934. The corporation listed this information with the commission incident to the unification of Republic Steel with several large steel companies, requiring issuance of $67,877,836 in new securities.

T. M. Girdler, chairman and president of Republic, received $117,420 in 1933 and an estimated $129,372 in 1934. Salaries of other officers, giving 1933 first and the 1934 estimate, were as follows:

B. F. Fairless, vice president, $58,713, $64,692; R. J. Wysor, vice president, $58,713, $64,692; Myron A. Wick, vice president, $46,966, $51,744; N. J. Clarke, vice president, $39,142, $43,128; W. W. Hancock, secretary and treasurer, $14,526, $18,655; W. B. Collins, assistant secretary, $5,870, $6,956; C. M. White, assistant vice president, $31,312, $34,500; A. E. Walker, general manager of sales, $23,483, $25,872; J. M. Schlendorf, manager alloy steel sales, $23,483, $25,095.

OLD PARAMOUNT PUBLIX BOARD RESIGNS OFFICE

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Coincident with the adoption of a plan of reorganization which the Paramount-Publix corporation will present to the court on Monday, directors of the company have turned in their resignations to the board of the new company formed under the latest reorganization plan, it was indicated today.

The step was a necessary preliminary to the court procedure. The new board will file the plan with its recommendation that it be accepted.

Initial membership of the new board is Frank A. Vanderlip, Dr. Julius Klein, Percy H. Johnston, George W. Davison, Gerald Brooks, Maurice Newton, and Adolph Zukor. Messrs. Vanderlip and Dr. Klein represent the bondholders' protective committee on the new board.

Canada May Sell Frosted Wheat to U. S. for Feeding

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Negotiations looking toward the entry into this country of a large amount of wheat from Canada's vast surplus were under way here today, with John J. McFarland, chairman of the dominion's grain stabilization board, conferring with officials. There were reports that the immediate purpose of McFarland's visit here was to dispose of 15,000,000 bushels of frost damaged wheat to our government for use as feed in drought stricken states.

Gasoline Price War Flares Up on New Front

The gasoline war flared up on a different front yesterday with the announcement that the major companies will reduce the margin of profit allowed retail dealers effective today.

Under the plan the margin of profit is cut by ½ cent a gallon in districts where gasoline prices are considered normal. In areas such as Chicago, where prices are stated to be below normal, the dealers will be asked to take a cut of 1 cent a gallon.

The plan drafts dealers into the conflict that has existed between the major oil companies and the independents, with the dealers vitally concerned in any further price reduction that may be made. The purpose is to discourage underselling which the large refiners claim occurred.

Claim Disadvantage.

The service station operators who independently sell the brands of the major companies claim the major distributors have the advantage of buying in large quantities at a saving, while the small independents must pay more for their gasoline, but have fixed operating costs. They say it is economically impossible for them to operate under the plan of the majors.

Local independent service station operators are organized as the Chicago Service Station Operators' association, resellers of advertised brands.

It is reported that these operators will attempt to forestall the refiners with a direct appeal to Oil Administrator Harold Ickes under the plea that the plan is uneconomical, and, as such, would jeopardize the livelihood of the dealers and consequently of the community. If unsuccessful in this effort the next step will be on legal grounds, the independents say.

Code Meeting Dec. 5-7.

The independents will be represented at a meeting of the regional oil code committee Dec. 5, 6, and 7 and will present their side of the case at that time.

The large companies, such as Standard, Shell, Sinclair, Pure Oil, Continental, and Barnsdall, all plan to make the reduction in the dealer margin. This will curb, they say, the practice of giving secret rebates for large volume purchases, which they claim has been a common practice while the major companies were taking the brunt of price reductions.

The distributors of independent brands have not formulated any definite policy, L. M. Foster, president of the Chicago Individual Branded Petroleum association, stated yesterday. The policy of margin reduction will be discussed at the next meeting of the association on Dec. 6, he said.

DETROIT BANK BEGINS PAYOFF OF 84 MILLIONS

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The $84,000,000 First National Bank of Detroit 20 per cent pay off began today as about 25,000 checks were placed in the mails. The initial amount totaled nearly $20,000,000. Beginning Saturday 2,000 more checks will be mailed.

Among the first batch of checks were those of the 1,117 big depositors who have agreed to return 50 per cent of their payoff to trustees for the depositors' committee. These will get their 20 per cent in full. then turn half of it back to the $7,100,000 fund to be used to pay in full depositors who had $300 or less when the bank closed.

On the basis of the schedule adopted by Receiver B. C. Schram, the payoff will be completed on Dec. 20, and will necessitate the writing and mailing of nearly 700,000 checks. With this vast amount of money distributed throughout the city and state, a Christmas buying boom such as has not been enjoyed during the last five years is anticipated.

ALL NEW YORK BANKS TO LIMIT INTEREST RATE

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Any doubts which may have lingered as to the exemption of national banks from the recent ruling of the state banking board that all institutions under state charter must cut their interest rate on deposits to 2½ per cent maximum Jan. 1 were dispelled today when the federal reserve bank notified member banks here that they could not lawfully pay more than the rate fixed by the state banking board.

Contract rates now obtaining on specified deposits may be continued until expiration of the contract, but thereafter the board "will not object to a contract rate of interest not greater than 2½ per cent."

Wild Spending and Inflation Mean Crash, Dr. Palyi Warns

Nothing is more simple than to create a boom by reckless expenditure and investment, but the inevitable outcome must be a new and more severe crash or an immense inflation to maintain the boom, which would ultimately lead to a most serious outcome.

This is the view of Dr. Melchoir Palyi, German economist and guest professor at the University of Chicago, expressed last night in the second of his series of four lectures on current economic problems at the Art institute.

Efforts to compel bankers to ease restrictions on loans and investments by arguments involving what they consider unsound banking practices, were condemned by Dr. Palyi.

More Credit Not Needed.

"The nation's chief need is not more credit but a greater use of existing credit," he said. "This brings up the question whether we are able to push the circulation and its velocity by artificial means without wrecking the entire structure.

"Should banks maintain their liquid position, according to their own experience, to standards of sound protection to depositors, and in accordance with the credit demand of a business community? The experimenters want us to believe that liquidity is an antiquated bias of old fashioned bankers; that credit might be extended without danger to anybody who wants to produce, on any security and for any purpose.

Advice May Cause Collapse.

"They advise and try to compel the banks and investors to do the very thing which brought this country and the whole world in every boom to the verge of collapse."

The German economist said the United States has now arrived at the point where even those who believe in monetary experimentation and in similar methods would not like to go much further in devaluation or in the creation of budgetary deficits. They realize, he added, that we are very close to the frontier between managed currency and controled inflation.

BANK DEPOSITS MOUNT AFTER 3 YEAR DECLINE

Savings on June 30 3½% Above 1933.

Reversal of the three year down trend in savings deposits of the United States in the year ended June 30, 1934, was revealed yesterday by the American Bankers' association in its monthly magazine, Banking.

"Savings deposited in banks as of June 30, 1934, gained 3½ per cent over last year," said M. Espey Albig, deputy manager of the savings division. "The aggregate is an increase over last year of $742,132,000, the first increase since the year ended June 30, 1930."

Savings deposits June 30, 1930, reached their all time peak of $28,478,631,000. They slumped to $21,125,534,000 within the next three years, but by June 30, 1934, they had increased to $21,867,666,000. The increase over 1933 was $742,132,000, but the total amount was still $6,610,965,000, or 23.2 per cent, under the 1930 mark.

Number of Depositors Greater.

The savings deposit figure for the nation was back in the neighborhood of the amount recorded on June 30, 1924, when the total was $21,188,734,000.

"Depositors, too, have gained in number, going from 39,262,442 a year ago to 39,562,174 this year, a gain of 299,732," said Mr. Albig. "Four years ago there were 52,729,432 depositors, or one for each 2.3 persons in the country. Now there is one account for each 3.2 persons.

"Realization of a loss of more than thirteen million depositors in the face of a population increase over the four years of 3,650,000 indicates dramatically the price in fear, despair, poverty, wrecked ambitions, loss of creature comforts and cultural opportunities exacted by the demoralization in business and industry during the last five years."

Mr. Albig pointed out that the gain has not come from the increased flow of investment money or commercial funds into savings totals. "The banking act of 1933 is so stringent and has been so carefully observed on the part of both bankers and bank examiners," he said, "that the amount of commercial or investment money in the savings business can be regarded as negligible."

Comeback Rapid Here.

Analysis of the trend of savings deposits in Chicago banks indicates that the drop in deposits has been much more severe, but the comeback has been more rapid than that for the country at large.

Savings deposits June 30, 1934, stood at $357,475,000, up 23.4 per cent from deposits of $289,438,000 the year before, but still down 47.6 per cent from the $669,372,000 total on June 30, 1930.

By Sept. 29, 1934, however, savings deposits in Chicago banks had risen to $374,284,000, which was 29.3 per cent ahead of the amount reported on June 30, 1933, and only 44.1 per cent under peak savings of $669,372,000 as of June 30, 1930.

STOCK VOLUME IN NEW YORK IS BEST SINCE JULY

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Volume of trading on the New York Stock exchange in November was the largest for any month since last July. Sales totaled 20,868,401 shares, compared with 15,661,431 in October and 33,545,736 in November a year ago.

Stocks moved irregular upward during the months and prices toward the end of November also reached the best levels since last July. The gain in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S combined averages amounting to $5.63, the widest for any month since January. The combined averages for the year to date now shows a gain of 83 cents, compared with a loss of $4.80 at the end of October.

Transactions in bonds on the stock exchange in November amounted to $250,921,900, divided as follows: Corporation, $152,437,500; United States government, $56,268,400, and foreign, $42,216,000. This was a decrease of $26,754,600 from the previous month and a drop of $62,198,450 from November last year. The largest day's business was $46,045,800, on Nov. 1, and the smallest, $8,150,600, Nov. 5.

Sues to Prevent Company from Using Present Name

Suit asking an injuction to restrain the Chicago General Accessories company from using its present name or a similar one was filed in Circuit court yesterday by the Chicago Accessories Brokerage company. Similarity of names has caused the advertising and good will of the Chicago Accessories Brokerage company to redound to the benefit of the Chicago General Accessories company, the bill states.

Several More Companies Lift Dividend Rates

Several more companies declared extra or increased dividends yesterday.

The General American Transportation company increased the annual rate on its capital stock from $1 a share to $1.75 a share with the declaration of a semi-annual dividend of 87½ cents a share, payable Jan. 1 to stock of record Dec. 10. This is the forty-fifth consecutive disbursement made by the company.

Wagner Electric company declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on the common, payable Dec. 20 to stock of record Dec. 1. The previous payment was made on Sept. 1, 1932, and amounted to 12½ cents a share.

Weston Electrical Instrument corporation voted $1 on the class A stock on account of accumulations, payable Jan. 1. With this payment the arrearage will amount to 50 cents a share.

Votes Preferred Payment.

Continental Steel corporation voted a $1.75 dividend on the 7 per cent preferred stock. The payment was specified as being for the last quarter of 1934, although it is the second payment made since July 1, 1931. The dividend is payable Dec. 20 to stock of record Dec. 10. On Oct. 1 a similar payment was made on account of accumulations.

Loudon Packing company declared an extra dividend of 12½ cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 37½ cents, payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 14. In the preceding quarter an extra of 25 cents was paid, while in the two quarters prior to that extras of 12½ cents were paid.

Declares 50 Cents.

Todd Shipyards corporation declared a dividend of 50 cents, payable Dec. 20 to stock of record Dec. 5. In previous quarters 25 cents was paid.

Vulcan Detinning company voted a special dividend of $4.00 on the common, payable Jan. 19 to stock of record Jan. 10. In addition the company declared four regular quarterly dividends of $1.75 each on the preferred stock.

Commercial Credit company ordered a quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the common, establishing a $2 annual basis, against $1 previously. The dividend is payable Dec. 31 to stock of record Dec. 11.

Directors of the National Refining company took no action on the dividend on the 8 per cent cumulative preferred stock. In the two preceding quarters dividends of $2 each were paid.

ALLEGHANY PLAN TO REORGANIZE IS MADE OPERATIVE

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Alleghany corporation has declared operative its plan of reorganization and placed itself under the jurisdiction of the United States District court of Baltimore to make the plan effective with holders of bonds not yet deposited. Under the bankruptcy act the consent of two-thirds of any class of creditors affected by a reorganization may make the plan binding upon the remaining creditors with the approval of the court.

As $17,821,000 or more than 72 per cent of the holders of the 5s of 1950 have assented to the exchange of their interest coupons due Oct. 1, 1934, to April 1, 1939, for convertible prior preferred stock and a conversion privilege on their bonds, completion of the readjustment is regarded likely.

The period of grace for payment of the Oct. 1, 1934, coupons on this issue expired today. The Alleghany 5s of 1944 and 1949 are not affected by the plan.

BRITAIN FROWNS ON PLAN FOR LOW FARE SHIP LINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 30.—No encouragement will be given by the British government to efforts to establish a new Atlantic steamship line which may compete with the government subidized Cunard-White Star.

This was made clear by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, today in answering a question about the financing of a plan to buy the Red Star liners and establish a cheap service with a $50 fare for transportation and pay as you eat for food.

Chamberlain said in view of the fact that 45 million dollars of public money was made available recently to secure rationalization of the north Atlantic steamship trade, the government would not encourage the proposed organization. This will make it difficult for promoters to obtain financing in London. They declare, however, they may be able to get it abroad.

Week's Heavy Construction Awards Dip to $16,224,000

New York, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Engineering construction awards reported by Engineering News-Record were for only five days this week which accounts for the low total of $16,224,000.

FDIC Figures Show Great Wealth of New York State

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Indicating the great concentration of wealth in New York state, Federal Deposit Insurance corporation figures disclosed today that only 23 per cent of the deposits in FDIC member banks there on Oct. 1 were insured, as compared with 60 per cent outside of that state and 44 per cent for the country as a whole. Under the FDIC law deposits are insured only up to $5,000.

Preliminary figures as of Oct. 1 showed that there were 49,800,000 fully insured depositors in the country and 800,000 partially insured depositors, or a total of 50,600,000.

Between $12,000,000,000 and $13,000,000,000 of deposits of banks that have so far reported are those of persons having $5,000 or less in banks. The 800,000 depositors have holdings of $24,000,000,000. This group, it was stated, representing 1½ per cent of the number of depositors, has in banks about two-thirds of all the bank deposits.

Since the application of the deposit insurance law Jan. 1, 1934, seven insured banks have failed, with about 14,000 depositors and deposits of about $1,500,000. The insurance liability was about $600,000. Four receiverships resulted from fraud or embezzlement; two banks were held by FDIC officials to have been "economically unjustified," while another failure resulted from bad management. From other sources it was learned that there had been sixty bank failures since Jan. 1, involving deposits of about $40,000,000.

DECEMBER CASH TURNOVER WILL BE 3½ BILLIONS

Total for Month May Be Highest in Years.

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Due to numerous increases and extras dividend disbursements to investors in December promise to be the largest for that month in several years, and the total turnover in the money market will reach approximately three and one-half billion dollars.

Corporations have been more liberal this month than at any time since the depression reached an acute stage. It is estimated that the increase in dividend declarations, most of which will be made in December, will exceed $42,000,000. That will bring the total to $300,000,000 or more. In addition, interest payments to bondholders will come to about $450,000,000, providing $750,000,000 in cash for investors alone.

Christmas Savings Large.

On top of that much Christmas club money will be distributed. Despite the depression, the indications are that a substantial increase will be shown in the amount of funds laid aside for Christmas. The mutual savings banks of the country which operate Christmas clubs will disburse a sum estimated by the National Association of Mutual Savings banks at $33,426,000. That is only a relatively small percentage of the aggregate Christmas savings by clubs representing about 6,000 banks and thrift organizations, now estimated at approximately $400,000,000.

Government operations next month will involve a turnover of more than two billion dollars, consisting of redeemed issues and refunding operations. The United States treasury has $1,142,000,000 securities falling due in December and unquestionably all will be refunded. The only open question is how much new capital the government will ask. Already it has announced an entirely new issue of $75,000,000 discount bills for Dec. 5, and it is expected on Dec. 12 another issue of $75,000,000 will be offered.

Has Other Maturities.

The treasury has two bill maturities totaling $150,579,000 and these doubtless will be refunded with a like amount. On Dec. 15 an issue of $992,496,500 certificates will fall due and these also will probably be refunded. The belief now entertained by many is that the treasury may seek about $500,000,000 additional capital, offering that amount of new securities for cash in conjunction with what will amount to an exchange offer for holders of the maturing certificates.

In addition to the treasury financing tax collections comprising the final instalment of payments for 1933 will be made and these may reach $150,000,000 or more.

The first instalment of December dividend payments will be distributed tomorrow when cash disbursements will be made to stockholders of more than 300 corporations. Extra payments will be made by a dozen or more companies.

NRA FIXES COAL HANDLING COSTS IN CHICAGO AREA

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Lowest reasonable costs for handling coal at retail in the Chicago area, whereby handling charges must be added to mine costs and freight rates to arrive at minimum costs, were fixed today by a special NRA committee.

The minimum charge for trade area No. 1, embracing north and south Cook county, exclusive of Chicago, and Du Page county, is $1.95 a ton for all sizes of Pennsylvania anthracite in 5 to 10 ton deliveries and $2.08 for low volatile bituminous, lump or egg. For trade area No. 2, which includes Lake, McHenry, Belvidere, Winnebago, Stephenson, Carroll, Ogle, Lee, De Kalb, Lane, Kendall, and Will counties, respective minimums are $1.48 and $1.66.

Truck costs range from 55 cents a ton 3 miles or less from mine, to $4.34 a ton from mines 150 miles or more from the consumer. The Illinois sales tax must be added to the costs. Credit sales for less than 100 tons require an additional assessment of 25 cents a ton.

STEEL INDUSTRY PAY ROLLS RISE 12% IN OCTOBER

New York, Nov. 30.—(AP)—A $3,581,000 increase in pay rolls of the steel industry took place in October, compared with September, according to the American Iron and Steel institute. October pay rolls totaled $32,723,909 against $29,142,892 in the preceding month, an increase of more than 12 per cent.

With the rate of steel operations about half that of a year ago the sums paid to workers in the industry were only 17 per cent less than in October, 1933.

The industry is now employing 381,431 men at an average hourly wage of 72.3 cents. A year ago 416,277 were employed but their compensation averaged only 64.8 cents per hour.

Furniture Industry Has Sales Gain During October

October was the first month since March in which the furniture industry bettered its 1933 record, according to Seidman & Seidman, accountants. New business booked was 27 per cent greater in dollar volume than that booked in October, 1933, and 1 per cent less than September, 1934.

STOCKS SEESAW; DIVIDENDS HELP TOBACCO GROUP

Traders Bid Up Prices in Final Hour.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 30.—News over the holiday was not of a character calculated to work any great change in speculative opinion and today's stock market was pretty much of a piece with that immediately preceding the big turkey feed. Dividend declarations or predictions helped some sections of the list, profit taking held others down on a thousand share lot, Chrysler was edged across the 40 mark, and General Motors sold above 33.

Tobacco Group Is Strong.

The tobacco group developed some strength in the earlier dealings, reflecting the possibility that leading manufacturers may decide to pass along some of their huge surpluses to stockholders in the form of extra dividends. Lorillard and G. W. Helme were the most recent examples of favorable action within the group. U. S. Tobacco jumped 16 points on a single sale when it woke up to the possibilities of the situation today. Lorillard rose a point and Reynolds and American Tobacco improved fractionally.

Beneficiaries of actual dividend declarations included Commercial Credit, which advanced to the best price in four years on the doubling of its rate, and Vulcan Detinning, which jumped 3 points on the initial sale on news of a "special" payment and held all but a fraction of its gain.

Rails Hold Up Well.

Railroad shares were well enough taken to keep in the picture in spite of the fact that car loadings figures for the week could hardly be called encouraging. Atchison, New York Central, Lackawanna, and other trading favorites were only fractionally lower at the close, while the first-rater Union Pacific wound up with a small net gain to its credit.

Mild but rather persistent selling, attributed to profit taking, held the utilities down. American Telephone and Consolidated Gas, both prominently active for the last week or so, ranged from good sized fractions to a point lower throughout the session.

Individual performers to attract attention included Franklin Simon, which climbed three points on a fairly large turnover; Houdaille Hershey A, which extended its recent gain to the best price since listing in 1932, and A. M. Byers preferred, which rose more than 3 points.

SELLING FORCES WHEAT LOWER; CORN STEADY

Foreign News Bearish; Steady Rise Halted.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Selling dominated the grain market yesterday, bringing a halt to the steady advance which has been under way for several days. Wheat was the chief target and lost about a cent a bushel. Corn was comparatively steady, as news affecting this grain continued distinctly bullish.

Ruling influences in the day's trade were the sharp decline which foreign markets had shown over the holiday and the liquidation of speculative holdings in December grain futures, on which deliveries of actual grain begin today. Speculators were transferring their holdings from December into May futures. As a result, while December corn lost an eighth of a cent a bushel the may future rose ½ cent.

Closing Prices Lower.

Closing prices on May futures were:

	Yesterday.	Wednesday.	Week Ago.
Wheat	$.98⅜	$.99⅝	$.97½
Corn	.88⅞	.88⅜	.85⅞
Oats	.51⅝	.51⅞	.50⅛
Rye	.74⅛	.75⅝	.74⅝

Wheat had shown extreme weakness in the principal foreign markets Thursday. Prices firmed up somewhat in Buenos Aires yesterday, but the Liverpool market declined again. Compared with Wednesday, wheat prices in Liverpool yesterday were off nearly 3 cents a bushel.

Weather conditions in the Argentine took a turn for the better after heavy rains earlier this week, which were considered a great hazard to wheat harvesting. At the same time the Argentine government announced a minimum price of 52 cents a bushel on the new wheat crop.

Heavy Deliveries Not Expected.

Liquidation in the December futures which took place in this market yesterday was not unexpected, although it did not appear that actual deliveries today on the December futures would be very heavy. The chance that they might be forced to take delivery this morning, however, led many speculative holders to sell or switch commitments into later contracts.

While the wheat market was sensitive to the depressing foreign developments, corn, primarily a domestic affair, shower a better tone. Daily reports from the country on corn are only a repetition of what has been coming in for weeks. The country is setting its own prices on the grain and the market here follows.

F. M'CORMICK IS MADE OFFICER OF INT. HARVESTER

Fowler McCormick was elected vice president of the International Harvester company at a meeting of directors yesterday. He will have charge of the company's foreign sales. Mr. McCormick is 35 years old and has been associated with the company for the last ten years. He is a son of Harold McCormick and a grandson of John D. Rockefeller.

Mr. McCormick joined the manufacturing and engineering department in 1925. He remained in that division until 1928 when he was transferred to the sales department. He served as branch manager in Grand Island, Neb., and as sales manager for the northwest district. Last year he was appointed assistant manager of domestic sales.

Drovers Journal Opens New Plant on South Side

The Drovers Journal Publishing company yesterday formally opened its new $120,000 home at 836 Exchange avenue. The new building is in the same location as the old structure, which was destroyed in the stock yards fire last May. All divisions of the publishing house are again housed under one roof. After the fire various units of the firm carried on in temporary quarters at different locations.

BUTTER AND EGG FUTURES CLOSE STEADY TO HIGHER

Butter and egg futures lost early advances on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, closing unchanged to ¼ cent higher.

Bullish weather news brought buyers into the market at the opening, prices moving up ¼@¾ cent. Later liquidation and new selling set in and prices reacted. The four markets moved out 10,000 cases less eggs and 288,000 pounds more butter than last year.

November butter closed the year at 26⅞ cents and eggs at 21⅜ cents. The year ago close on butter was 18½ cents and eggs 14⅜ cents, this year's contracts showing gains of $1,500 and $840 per car, respectively, over the last sales of 1933.

Sales: Butter, 113 cars; eggs, 227 cars. Deliveries: Butter. 37 cars; eggs, 8 cars. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today as far as the immediate spot situation was concerned, with holders asking 3.08½c per lb. Sugars for use in January were firmer with refiners said to be showing more interest.

A sale was confirmed of 27,000 bags of excess Philippines now due to an operator late on Wednesday at 2.55c, while today an outport refiner bought 21,000 bags of Cuba's for use in January at 2.85c, with rumors that local refiners had paid 2.60c.

Price movements in futures were irregular, with final prices 1 to 2 points net higher. Sales, 21,200 tons.

ACTION TO SPEED TRADE UPTURN FEATURES WEEK

Survey Finds Retail Gains Are Narrowed.

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Action to hasten the resumption of normal industrial operations superseded actual gains in trade indices last week, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., declared today in its weekly review.

Distribution of merchandise, the authority pointed out, was at a slower tempo than when November opened, "despite the growing disposition of cosumers toward a more liberal attitude in their spending."

All Factors Aid.

Stability undoubtedly has reached firmer ground, the agency declared, and nearly all factors are contributing to business recovery. However, it was indicated that too much unsettlement still persists in many directions to permit indulgence in any rampant enthusiasm regarding an accelerated rate of progress during the remainder of the year.

"Gains reported in retail sales a week ago were narrowed substantially in some parts of the country," the review added. "But consumer demand still is broadening, in spite of the prolonged rainy spell, which prevented many buyers from making tours of the shops. In sections where lower temperature prevailed there was an abrupt recovery in the sales of winter wearing apparel, but losses of the two preceding weeks were not regained.

Retail Volume Higher.

"Allowing for declines which were recorded in some states, retail volume for the week gained 3 to 5 per cent for the country as a whole, but was not more than 8 to 12 per cent in excess of the 1933 figures. The lack of the stimulus which good, crisp buying weather would provide was cited most frequently as the cause of the comparatively unsatisfactory results for the period."

Improved consumer demand is beginning to penetrate into manufacturing channels, the agency said, but this trend was not regarded as an indication of any striking recovery. Rather, the authority intimated, it reveals that a bolder attitude toward the future has supplanted timidity which marked business sentiment early in September.

Life Savers.

Investors' Guide: Will you please send me available information on Life Savers stock?—G. B.

Answer: Life Savers corporation was incorporated in August, 1933, as a holding company for Life Savers Inc., coincidental with the dissolution of Drug, Inc. Stock of the present company was distributed to former holders of Drug, Inc., stock on a share for share basis.

The company manufactures Life Savers candy confection, Pine Brothers glycerin tablets, and Oradel, an antiseptic mouth tablet. It also manufactures and distributes Beech-Nut confections in Canada.

The company has a good record of earnings. Although first quarter earnings this year were about 25 per cent ahead of the first quarter of 1933, slump in the second quarter brought net down to $395,000, or $1.13 a share, against $430,000, or $1.23 a share, for the first half of 1933. .

The four year record of earnings follows:

	Sales.	Net income.	Inc. per share
1933	$2,903,000	$ 754,000	$2.15
1932	3,215,000	885,000	2.52
1931	4,208,000	1,179,000	3.36
1930	4,357,000	1,312,000	3.74

Current position at the close of 1933 was strong. Cash assets alone of more than $1,400,000 compared with total current liabilities of $258,000. Capitalization consists solely of 350,140 shares of $5 par stock. Initial quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share was paid on Nov. 1, 1933, which basis has been continued to date.

The stock is medium grade and somewhat speculative.

Kendall Company 5½s.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Kendall 5½s, '48. Thank you for this favor.—M. L.

Answer: Kendall company is an important manufacturer of hospital supplies. It operates twelve plants and nine sales branches. Improved operations and reduction of outstanding debt through bond retirement has enabled the company to make a much improved showing during the last year and a half.

Fixed charges were earned 3.45 times for the first twenty-four weeks of 1934, against 2.05 times during the corresponding 1933 period. These results exclude nonrecurring charges.

Net sales for 1933 were $15,292,000 against $12,897,000 for 1932. Sales for 1931 and 1930 were not reported. Fixed charges in 1933 were earned 3.02 times against 1.14 times in 1932 and 1.60 times in 1931.

Despite a $700,000 reduction in funded debt during 1933, working capital at the close of the year was $6,161,000, against $5,649,000 on Dec. 31, 1932.

The unsecured 5½s, due 1948, are a business man's investment.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable was firmer today on renewed covering and buying by refining interests and commission houses prompted by the strength in crude oil in which sales were made at southern points at 8¾c a lb, the highest point in several years. Strength of lard was another factor, but after showing advances of 9 to 11 points there was a partial reaction under realizing with the market closing 2 to 6 points net higher. Sales, 93 contracts. Bleachable spot, nominal; December closed at 9.75c per lb; January, 9.80c; March, 9.87c; May, 9.98c; July, 10.10c.
